Avoid Sedative Medicines.

If you want to contribute directly to the occurrence of capillary bronchitis and pneumonia use cough medicines that contain codine, morphine, heroin and other sedatives when you have a cough or cold. An expectorant like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is what is needed. That cleans out the culture beds or breeding places for the germs of pneumonia or other germ diseases. That is why pneumonia never results from a cold when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It has a world-wide reputation for its cures. It contains no morphine or other sedative. "Clincher" Paint

We know a paint which holds to the wood like a driven nail. Seasoned lumber is porous. The pores are the empty sap-cells. White lead paint, which dries on the wood in the form of a solid, elastic film, fastens into these pores, and the whole coat of paint is actually riveted like armor-plate to the surface it decorates and protects.

Collier White Lead
(Dutch Boy Painture Trade Mark)

make the paint that spreads into a solid body. It becomes a part of the wood itself—an outer layer that preserves the life of the lumber.

We sell it as well as other painting requisites. Come in and have a talk with us about painting.

226 BUSHELS OF CORN TO THE ACRE

PIKE COUNTY BOY NOW LEADS ALL ENTRANTS IN CORN GROWING CONTEST.

ALL RECORDS NOT YET FILED

More Than Fifteen Hundred Planters Entered Corn Contest this Year.

Montgomery.—Ewell Hickman of Pike county grew 226 bushels of corn on one acre of land, and now leads all entrants in the corn growing contest conducted by the state department of agriculture. This is said to be a wonderful yield considering the fact that this has been a bad season for corn growing. Last year Benny Owens of Elmore county won first prize in this contest by growing 234 2-4 bushels. All of the contestants have not yet filed their records with the department of agriculture and some of the entrants may beat Hickman's yield.

More than 1500 farmers entered the corn contest this year. The prizes will be distributed early in December. Total prizes in the contest offered by the state amount to $2000, and this sum has been doubled by a local fertilizer company. The fertilizer company offers the prizes for cotton growing.

Final records of all the yields will soon be filed in the department. After the leaders have been determined a representative of the department will inspect the yields and verify the quantities.

STRIDES IN AGRICULTURE.

Commissioner Kolb Reviews Work of Department for Year.

Montgomery.—Much damage to the cotton crop in Southern and Middle Alabama has been caused by the arrival of the boll weevil, but otherwise great strides have been made in agricultural matters, according to a preliminary report of the work done in the fiscal year by the state department of agriculture, which has been filed with Governor O'Neal by Capt. R. F. Kolb, commissioner. In his report Captain Kolb declares that he is now preparing his annual report which will contain a detailed account of the work done during the year by the department.

Total receipts of the department amounted to $161,946, all of which was disbursed through the regular channels. From the sale of 3-cent fertilizer tags the state received $137,670 and from the sale of 1 1-2-cent tags $21,480. From the registration of brands, $11,535 was received. Licenses issued amounted to $1261. Captain Kolb used during the year $4380 out of his expense fund, leaving a balance of $1372, which was deposited with the treasurer.

COMMERCIAL CONGRESS.

Greatest Array of Speakers Ever Gathered Together Are on Program

Mobile—Announcement was made at the Southern Commercial Congress of the completed program of the Fifth Annual Convention of the Congress, which will be held in Mobile, Alabama, October 27-29.

The greatest array of speakers who ever attended a convention of any kind in this country are on the program.

Among the events of the convention will be a great trade pageant, a visit of naval vessels and ships of the lighthouse service to Mobile, and a cruise to the Panama canal and Central America by many of the delegates on a specially chartered steamer. A memorial tablet is to be erected at the Panama canal to the memory of the late Senator John T. Morgan of Alabama, "Father of the Canal Idea."

FIRE IN OPELIKA WAREHOUSE.

One Thousand Bales of Cotton Also Go Up in Smoke.

Opelika, Ala.—The Farmers' Alliance cotton cotton warehouse and 1000 bales of cotton were totally destroyed by fire here.

The warehouse contained about 1200 bales and probably not more than 200 bales were safely gotten out. The fire made a clean sweep of the building and everything left in it.

Judge Declares He Will Not Be Candidate for Any Office.

Montgomery.—Judge A. A. Evans, formerly associate justice of the supreme court and a member of the Evans gave positive denial to the report to be a candidate for any office in the next primary. Judge Evans gave positive denial to the report that he might oppose Representative Henry D. Clayton and indicated that he did not expect to run for the supreme court.

GRADING OF COTTON SEED

Secretary of Agriculture to Last Resort When Differences Arise.

Montgomery.—Rules that are of vital interest to every farmer and to every buyer of cotton seed and every cotton oil manufacturer in Alabama were adopted at a special meeting of the Alabama Cotton Seed Crushers' association held at Birmingham.

Following is the rules adopted for the grading of cotton seed in Alabama for the year 1913-1914:

"Prime seed shall be clean, dry and sound, free from dirt, trash and foreign matter. All seed shall be graded before unloading as follows:

"Take ten representative samples of one pound each, from different parts of the car or wagon. Thoroughly mix in one composite sample and divide into quarters, one of these quarters to be reserved for the purpose of submitting to the office of the secretary of agriculture, if necessary. From one of the quarters pick up 100 seed in the order they are found; the 100 seed so taken by the above method to constitute a representative sample.

"Deduction for damaged seed to be as follows:

"No deduction to be made for seed damaged under 9 per cent.

"Seed damaged 10 per cent or not over 15 per cent, deduct 3 per cent from cost.

"Seed damaged 16 per cent and not over 20 per cent, deduct 5 per cent from cost.

"Seed damaged 21 per cent and not over 25 per cent, deduct 8 per cent from cost.

"Seed damaged 28 per cent or not over 30 per cent, deduct 10 per cent from cost.

"If seed run over 30 per cent damage, they may be rejected entirely, but if accepted, settlement to be made by special agreement.

"All trades in cotton seed shall be on basis of sound seed, weight and quality at destination, and settlement to be made in accordance with rules of Alabama Coton Seed Crushers' association.

"The drawing of the samples is to be done in the presence of witnesses on behalf of the mill and the seller, or by disinterested party agreed upon by both. If buyer and seller cannot reach a settlement, then one of the quarters of the composite sample is to be sealed and certified and sent to the department of agriculture.

"When the sample of seed in dispute is received by the commissioner of agriculture, he is to thoroughly mix and pick up 100 seed in the order they are found, cut with a sharp knife and render his decision, which shall be binding on both buyer and seller.

"Those seed that are from light brown to chocolate color, or which are soft and mushy, or which have become dusty by reason of dry rot, or which are so shriveled as practically to furnish no meat, are to be counted off as damaged seed."

AUBURN EXPERTS' BULLETIN.

Conclusions Based on Experiments on State Farm.

Auburn.—Director J. F. Duggar and Associate Agriculturalist E. F. Cauthen have just issued a most interesting bulletin (No. 173), on the culture, varieties and fertilization of oats. The publication is considered especially timely in view of the expected high price of oats next year, and Alabama farmers are advised to increase greatly their acreage in oats this fall. The conclusions set forth in the bulletin are based on experiments conducted on the state farm at Auburn during the past several years.

To secure larger yields of oats per acre, farmers are advised to sow in the fall, preferably in October, as it has been found that fall sowings at Auburn yielded an average of 19.6 bushels per acre more than February sowings. A variety belonging to the Red Dust Proof group was found to be the best for fall sowings, such as Appler, Hundred Bushel, Culberson, Red Dust Proof and Cook. These varieties have varied very little in yield.

To prevent smut, seed oats should be treated with formalin. The open furrow method for fall sowing is recommended rather than the broadcast method, where there is a probability of occasional winter-killing. When the winters are not severe, all thorough methods of sowing oats have given satisfactory yields.

Gas and Oil Inspector.

Montgomery.—It is understood that Governor O'Neal has tendered the position of state gas and oil inspector to Dr. Stewart L. Lloyd, head of the bureau of chemistry at the Alabama university, and it is believed he will accept the appointment. The office was created in the new mining act passed by the recent legislature, and it has not been filled heretofore. It pays $300 a year. Mr. Lloyd can continue in his duties at the university and still discharge the duties of inspector.

Believes Sargent Will Run.

Montgomery.—All opposition to the re-election of Henry D. Clayton as congressman from the Third district has vanished, excepting Henry B. Sargent of Ozark, who, his friends believe, will remain in the race. J. A. Garvey of Elba is out in a statement declaring that he will not run against Mr. Clayton. Byrd G. Farmer of Dothan, who was a candidate, withdrew in favor of Mr. Clayton some time ago. Mr. Garvey's announcement is a surprise.

CAPTAIN BARR.

Captain Barr commands the Cunard liner Carmania, which was the first vessel to reach the burning steamer Volturno in response to Wireless calls for help. Ten other steamers helped in the rescue work.

POWER GIVEN TO FILIPINOS

THE COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED ARE AMONG MOST WELL KNOWN MEN IN ISLAND.

Majority of Natives Named for Commission—First Step Toward Self-Government.

Washington.—President Wilson and Secretary Garrison selected the following Filipinos to be members of the Philippine commission:

Victorino Mapa, Jaime C. de Veyra, Vicente Ilustrio, Vincente Singson. Mapa will be secretary of finance and justice.

The fifth Filipino commissioner will be Rafael Palma, who since 1908 has been the only native on the commission. His resignation was not accepted.

The designation of five natives to majority control of the commission of nine marks the first step in the policy of the Wilson administration, aiming at self-government and ultimate independence for the Philippines. Governor General Harrison recommended the native commissioners, stating that they were among the most prominent and best educated of the islanders.

PRINCE AND DUCHESS WED

Ceremony Witnessed by Great Gathering of Royalties and Notables.

London.—Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of the Duke of Connaught, governor general of Canada, was married to Princess Alexander Victoria, Duchess of Fife, eldest daughter of the widowed Princess Royal Louise. The ceremony took place in the ancient chapel of St. James palace, where both were baptized.

There was room for fewer than 300 persons in the simply decorated chapel, but since the coronation of King George there had not been such a gathering of royalties and notable personages as on this occasion.

Besides King George, Queen Mary, Queen Mother Alexandra, the king and queen of Norway and other royal relatives of the couple, the congregation consisted of the diplomatic corps, the British cabinet, members of the royal households and a few distinguished civilians.

The chapel glittered with diamonds and pearls, almost every woman present wearing a tiara and necklace of fabulous value.

To Restrict Negro Vote.

Washington.—Frank admission that the "grandfather clause" of the Oklahoma Constitution was designed to restrict the right of negroes to vote as far as possible within the limits of the Federal Constitution, featured the argument in defense of the clause before the supreme court by former Senator Joseph W. Bailey. Mr. Bailey, appearing for the Oklahoma election officials, contended that while the state law discriminated against negroes, it did not abridge any of their rights

To Investigate Japanese Question.

Tallahassee, Fla.—Governor Trammell announces that he is investigating the question of Japanese colonization in Florida by land companies and will act as his judgment dictates as soon as he has made up his mind as to the seriousness of the influx. An extra session of the legislature may be called to pass an alien land bill as a big protest has come up over the coming of these Japanese from California. They are settling in the celery belt for the purpose of raising vegetables for the Northern markets.

New Date in Race Cases.

Washington.—The interstate commerce commission has postponed the date when its decision in the Georgia and Florida, Ga., cases will become effective. The new date is February 1, 1914. Many questions have arisen concerning the proper adjustment of rates under the commission's order. The commission is now considering the whole subject of the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act and will probably announce its decision in the Georgia cases before the new date.

COURT DEPOSES WILLIAM SULZER

REMOVED FROM OFFICE BY THE HIGH COURT OF IMPEACHMENT BY BIG VOTE.

THE VOTE WAS 43 TO 12

Martin H. Glynn, Lieutenant Governor, Sworn in to Succeed Sulzer.

Albany, N. Y.—William Sulzer has ceased to be governor of the state of New York. He was removed from office by the high court of impeachment by a vote of 43 to 12, two members not voting.

Martin H. Glynn, lieutenant governor, was sworn in as his successor, the first in the history of the state to step into its high office in this manner.

The verdict of the court was that Sulzer was guilty of falsification, perjury and an attempt to suppress evidence against him. Of all other charges he was acquitted, the court unanimously voting him not guilty of the four remaining articles of the impeachment.

By a virtually unanimous vote, also, the impeachment tribunal decided that Sulzer should not be punished by disqualification to hold office of honor and trust in this state in the future. This would have been extreme penalty under the law.

The ousted executive was served with a copy of the court's verdict at the executive mansion—christened by himself, "the people's house."

"Good! I thank you," he said to the sergeant at arms of the senate, who delivered the document.

Mr. Sulzer, private citizen, will leave the capitol; where he will go, he has not disclosed.

The incoming governor issued a statement in which he said his endeavor would be "to give the people of the state an honest, peaceful, progressive and wise conduct of public affairs."

At the session of the court, which lasted little more than an hour, most of the members recorded their votes without explanation and much of the ponderous formality required by the rules of procedure was dispensed with. Presiding Judge Cullen, who voted "not guilty" on every article of impeachment, stuck to his convictions to the last. He asked to be excused from voting on the removal of the governor, and following out his logic, made a similar request on the vote for disqualification.

28 PERSONS KILLED IN AIR

Germany's Dirigible Balloon Explodes 900 Feet in Air and All Killed.

Berlin.—Twenty-eight persons were killed near Johannisthal, in the explosion and fall of Count Zeppelin's latest dirigible balloon, the "L-II." The twenty-eight men represented the entire personnel of the admiralty board which was to conduct the final trial of the dirigible looking to its acceptance by the government as a new unit of the German aerial navy, the pilot and crew and invited guests. Every person that went aloft in the big dirigible is dead.

Twenty-seven of them were killed almost instantly by the explosion of gas in the balloon, or burned to death as the flaming wreck fell to the ground from a height of 900 feet and enveloped them. One man, Lieutenant Baron von Bleul of the Queen Augusta Grenadier Guards, a guest of the admiralty board, was extricated alive from the mass of twisted wreckage. His eyes were burned out and he suffered other terrible hurts. Begging his rescuers to kill him and end his sufferings he was taken to a hospital, where he died.

The disaster occurred just above the main street of Johannisthal while the dirigible, 500 feet long, was making a trial preliminary to its acceptance as a flagship of the new German aerial navy. The shattered hulk of the airship, a mass of blazing canvas and crumpled aluminum, dropped 900 feet into the public highway. Hundreds of people who had been watching the flight rushed to the scene. There was nothing to be done except to take out the bodies of the victims from the wreckage.

Pensions for School Teachers.

Washington.—Pensions for teachers in the public schools, to be derived from funds founded and administered by the individual states and without contributions by the ultimate beneficiaries, are advocated by Raymond W. Gies, in a bulletin issued by the United States bureau of education. Doctor Gies' recommendations are the result of an intimate study of the pension system maintained abroad. In suggesting the adoption of pensions in the United States, Doctor Gies declared for the Scotch system.

To Grace to Visit Washington.

Washington.—Fifteen girls, one from each of fifteen Southern states, will visit Washington, probably on December 11, as a reward for their success in being awarded first place in the girls' canning club state contests, the department of agriculture announces. Women experts of the canning clubs will assemble here at the same time and will act as chaperons for the girls. The department pays the expenses of the trip.

JOSEPH W. FOLK

Joseph W. Folk, former governor of Missouri, has just been appointed solicitor of the department of state by President Wilson. He succeeds Reuben Clark of Utah, who resigned some time ago.

400 MINERS ARE KILLED

WELSH MINE SHATTERED AFTER NEARLY A THOUSAND MEN BEGAN WORK.

About Five Hundred Were Rescued. Forty Thousand Persons Surrounded Mouth of Pit.

Cardiff, Wales.—A disaster, possibly the greatest in the history of the South Wales coal fields, whose annals are blistering with terrible catastrophes, occurred through an explosion in the Universal colliery near here. Shortly after the day shift of 931 men entered the mine an explosion shattered the works.

After midnight rescuing parties began to get the fire under control and at 2:30 o'clock next morning twenty more men were found alive at the bottom of the pit. This gave hope that others may be found, but there is still a probability that nearly four hundred men perished.

Including the bodies recovered and those killed at the pit head the known death roll numbers 16. Doctors with oxygen and mediaments descended the shaft. A crowd of nearly forty thousand distracted persons surrounded the pit head all night and another five thousand waited for news

So violent was the detonation that the coutnry for miles around was shaken as though by an earthquake, and from the severity of the shock it was feared that all the entombed men had been burned to death or been blown to bits, making the disaster the worst in the history of Wales.

UNITED STATES DISPLEASED

United States Will Not Accept Coming Elections in Mexico as Legal.

Washington.—The United States government informed Provisional President Huerta that it looked with abhorrence and amazement upon his assumption of both executive and legislative powers in Mexico and that in view of his course could not regard as constitutional the elections planned for October 26.

Two notes, one strongly phrased and written by Secretary Bryan, inquiring about the safety of imprisoned members of the Mexican congress, and the other drawn in forceful language by President Wilson himself and said to constitute practically the last efforts of the Washington government to deal with the Huerta authorities by diplomatic means unless there is a decided change of spirit on the part of the officials in Mexico City, were sent to the Mexican president.

4 Persons Killed; 20 Hurt.

Dallas, Texas.—Four persons were killed and more than twenty injured when a freight car loaded with cross ties which broke from a train on a down grade crashed into an interurban passenger car near here. The collision occurred on a 60-foot trestle and practically demolished the entire front end of the passenger car, but without throwing it from the bridge. The dead are Walter O. Seal, Dallas, motorman; Walter R. Hurlbert, Lancaster, Texas; James Shippey, Waxahachie, Texas; J. Carpenter, Waxahachie, Texas.

Americans Killed by Mexicans.

El Paso, Texas.—F. R. Hills of Cripple Creek, Colo., arrived in Juarez from Torreon. He said his brother Joseph was killed by Mexicans while a party of Americans was leaving Torreon for the border. F. R. Hills was shot in the arm. Three others of the party are missing. They are T. M. Parsons, Wichita, Kans.; L. M. White, Ionia, Mich., and A. T. Shelton, San Francisco, Cal. The party was about halfway between Torreon and El Oso when Mexicans in uniform took charge of the wagons, stripped them

DIVERSIFICATION ON SOUTHERN FARMS

Oats Should Be Principal Stock Feed in Cotton Belt.

MOST PROFITABLE IN SOUTH

Plant Would Reduce Washing and Leaching to Minimum, Furnish Grazing and Add to Deficient Supply of Humus.

(By G. H. ALFORD.)

From October 1 to November 15, according to the latitude, is the best time to sow oats in the cotton belt. The oat crop should be made the principal stock feed grown in the cotton belt. The area in oats should be fully as large as that in corn, but let us not forget the facts that as a stock feed and cash crop, oats is one of the best crops that can be grown in the south.

The chief crops grown all over the cotton belt are cotton and corn. As an average for a ten-year period of 1900 to 1909 there was planted from 10 to 15 acres of corn for each acre of oats in the various cotton belt states. During the same time an average of the oat crop per acre was $10.09, while the average value per acre of corn was $11.02. Figuring the cost of growing an oat crop and a corn crop, we find that the oat crop was the most profitable. There are several important reasons why we should sow millions of acres of oats in the cotton belt. The oat crop would reduce washing and leaching to the minimum, furnish grazing, add to the deplorably deficient supply of humus, add to the always short supply of feed stuffs and supplement the money crop—cotton.

Of course, there are better winter cover crops than oats. Burr clover and crimson clover are the vetches, and in some cases some of the other winter cereals are better. We do not claim that oats alone or that oats and hairy vetch combined should be grown for the sole purpose of supplying a cover crop. However, in view of the fact that oats will grow on poor land poorly prepared, and it costs little to seed an acre, it is a good winter cover crop for the many thousands of farmers who have not learned to grow winter legumes.

Two and one-half acres were planted in oats at the experiment station at Baton Rouge, La., for a grazing experiment on September 28. October 29 seven Poland China hogs, weighing in total 776 pounds, were put on this plat and were given no feed but the green oats during the winter. February 17 the pigs weighed a total of 568 pounds. There was an average gain of .37 pound per pig per day for 110 days. From October 29 to January 1 45 head of sheep were pastured on this same plat. Of this number, eight ewes and nine lambs were pastured continuously there after February 17, at which date the lambs averaged 68 days old and 35.5 pounds each. Allowing six cents per pound for the lambs, we have a return of $13.40 per acre, plus the pasturage of the sheep not considered in the estimate.

The loss of humus in the soil results in the increasing of its power of storing up and properly supplying crops with water. Soils with a liberal supply of humus are capable of more effectually withstanding drought than similar soils with less humus. The oat crop fills the soil full of roots, and the stubble also adds much humus to the soil.

The oat grain is very valuable feed, especially for young animals, because of its moderately high protein content and the large amount of ash and mineral matter. Pound for pound, oats are not as valuable for feeding mature animals as corn, four pounds of corn being equal to about five pounds of oats. However, when we consider the cost of growing the two crops and the fact that feed is always scarce when the oat crop is harvested, we are forced to admit that every farmer in the cotton belt should grow oats.

In attempting to build up the worn-out cotton lands, we must depend very largely on the leguminous crops. Now the oat crop is harvested early enough to permit the growing of a leguminous crop. This leguminous crop may be plowed under or it may be saved for feed, and the manure returned to the land. If we propose to keep up our land and raise good crops, the oat crop must be fed to and eaten on the farm.

HOW CAN I INCREASE THE YIELD AND QUALITY OF MY OATS?

1—Fan and Grade Seed.
2—Seed Early.
3—Early and Medium Varieties Best.
4—Better Prepared Seed Bed.
5—Drilling Better Than Broadcasting.
6—Treat Early Oats for Smut.
7—Always Sow Clover.
8—Save the Crop by Good Shocking and Stacking.

The same soil that will produce one bale of cotton or 40 bushels of corn, per acre will produce 60 bushels of oats. At the average price that has prevailed for oats during the last five years, these oats will sell for from $24 to $30. Maybe grow, when baled, will offset part of the cost of growing the crop.

Use land for oats after corn and peas. Cut the corn stalks and pea vines into pieces with disk harrow. The disk harrow is the best possible implement in preparing the corn and pea fields for oats. The drill will clog in trashy ground and particularly when working in uncut stalks and pea vines. When the disk harrow is used before the land is broken, the drill runs freely and easily, thus depositing the seed evenly. After using the disk harrow to cut the corn stalks, plow the land deep, then disk and double disk, and harrow and cross harrow until every inch of the soil has been stirred and broken as fine as possible.

A mixture of 300 pounds of 16 per cent. of acid phosphate, 100 pounds of cotton seed meal, and 200 pounds of potash, followed in March with a top dressing of 50 to 75 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre is good fertilizer for oats on average soil.

The best variety for fall sowing in the south are Red Rust proof type. The original Red Rust proof, the Appler and Bancroft are so nearly alike that no one can tell them apart if shown side by side. The Burt oat is for spring sowing.

The quantity of seed that is necessary to sow an acre of oats is variable. If sown early in the season or sown on very fertile soil a smaller quantity of seed may be used than if sown late or sown on poor land. If the crop is planted 25 per cent. less seed may be used than if the same crop were to be sown broadcast.

There are three methods commonly practiced of planting oats, namely: Sowing broadcast, open furrow and drilling. Drilling of the seed is to be preferred, since considerably less seed can be used if drilled by machine; the seeds are covered at a uniform depth and come up, grow, and ripen uniformly; the small ridges made by the drill afford a slight degree of protection from the cold; and the yield from drilled oats is usually greater than that from broadcast oats. The seed saved, and the larger crops that usually result from drilled oats, will soon pay for a good drill on the farm.

It is well nigh impossible to discuss oats in the cotton belt without discussing lespedeza, cow peas, soy beans and peanuts, as these crops are almost as much a counterpart of oats as the Siamese twin Ang was of his brother Chang.

As soon as all danger of frost is past, sow about one bushel of lespedeza right on top of the growing oats, and make no attempt to cover whatever. It is advisable to divide the bushel into two halves and sow them broadcast, first one-half over the land walking east and west and the other half walking north and south.

The oats will be ready to cut in May and June. At this time the lespedeza plants will be so small as to be hardly perceptable, though you can see whether you have a stand or not. Up to that time the oats have been taking the strength and water from the soil, but the first summer rain makes a difference. The weeds come with a rush and threaten to choke out the lespedeza plants. At this time it is necessary to set the mower blade so high as not to touch the lespedeza and top the weeds once or twice.

The lespedeza begins to bloom in September and October, and is ready to harvest. It is best to cut when in bloom and will grow.

Do not cut when wet from dew or rain. Blow in fodder, windrow and cock in five or six foot high, 200 to 300 pounds to the cock, and cover with lowest or eighth corn. Leave seven days. Test again. After about three days open out to dry, put in barn to keep or stack. It is, of course, unnecessary to state precautions relative to the location of corn, oats and

WILSON TO BE PRAISED

GOES SLOWLY IN RESISTING DEMANDS FOR PLACES.

Though President's Patience and Powers of Resistance Must Be Taxed He Is to Be Commended.

In rejecting the demands of the Democratic workers for the spoils of office that have been denied them for so many years, President Wilson's patience and powers of resistance must be severely taxed. The criticism of some of the dissatisfied Democrats that he is proving himself a poor politician is naturally based upon selfishness and disappointment. What kind of a politician would the president be considered if he turned every efficient Republican out of office and within the course of a few months substituted untried Democrats.

Perhaps he might please the organization workers, but the country would have something to say about the matter when delays in the mail and other defects in the government service directed attention to the fact that to the victors have been given the spoils.

Our system of running the government is partisan and political, perhaps, but it would be an unwise president who would place the demands of the political workers before efficiency in the government service. Nothing that the political worker could do would save such a president from the resentment and indignation of the public.

It is but natural that the leaders of a victorious party should demand some of the spoils. It is but right, moreover, that the workers in a party should be rewarded. In no case, however, should efficiency be permitted to suffer, and where changes are to be made they should be gradual, so that too great a strain is not placed upon the government machinery. If all the places were turned over to the Democrats in a day, the system would be completely disorganized, and government business would be thrown into confusion.

The president is to be commended for going slowly and resisting the demands that are being made upon him.

Wealth Is First Requisite.

It is a fact that in recent days President Wilson has endeavored to obtain the services of several American citizens of distinguished careers, suitable qualifications and high reputations for foreign posts. But they have declined to take diplomatic appointments from the president because the financial sacrifice was more than they thought they would be justified in undergoing.

There will, of course, be no difficulty in filling every diplomatic post at the disposal of the president. And it does not by any manner of means, follow that because a man is very rich he cannot in any case fill a foreign post intelligently and suitably.

No doubt in the Wilson administration some very rich men will represent their country at the important foreign capitals with the same credit as some very rich men have represented their country in previous administrations. But as the situation now stands the first test for an American diplomat is his bank account. This isn't right and it never can be right. The first test ought to be the education, the experience and the natural aptitude of a man for such service, whether he is rich or poor.

By hammering away at this subject, pointing out what the country loses under existing circumstances, President Wilson may be able to arouse the interest of congress and the country in the cause of pay at least sufficient to meet reasonable expenses of our representatives abroad.

Timely Legislation.

Well considered currency legislation would be a welcome relief at this time and of prompt benefit to the Democratic party. Moreover, it would receive the support of all parties and of informed public opinion.

Such legislation is said to be under consideration, and it is hinted will be pressed to enactment with expedition. It follows the reserve association plan with proper safeguards, and is said will meet the approval of banking and business opinion.

It is to be hoped sound legislation on the lines indicated can be accomplished at this time, provided the action is sound, as there is good reason to expect it will be.

The Prosperity of the Farmer.

President Roosevelt led the way with his commission on country life. President Wilson is to follow this up with a study of farm conditions with the purpose of promoting a better organization of farm credits and of farm markets.

The prosperity and efficiency of the farm is at the bottom of the prosperity of the nation. With that in properly recognized by a progressive national administration.

How to Wear Flowers.

Roses are best for evening wear. Even if they are buds do not wear three or four of them; that would spoil the artistic effect. Select one full-blown rose and tuck it into the coil of your hair, letting it nestle close to the ear.

The smart way to wear flowers on the tailored suit is to attach them to the left lapel of the coat. Violets look best worn near the waist line, just a little to the left side and tied with soft, narrow, shaded violet satin ribbon.

To wear old-time garden flowers with artistic effect they should be made into small bouquets and fastened to the chiffon scarf or the dainty fichu, or a bunch of loose flowers may be worn at the corsage.

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR DARKENS YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. —Adv.

FIVE CHILDREN TO WORK FOR

Quite an Undertaking For a Lady, but Mrs. Wright Doesn't Mind Now.

Asheville, N. C.—Mrs. Minnie Wright, of R. F. D. No. 1, this city, says: "I don't think there is any medicine made that would have done me the good Cardui, the woman's tonic, did. I have five children to work for, and I praise Cardui for giving me the good health to do it.

I was in a delicate condition, on account of a relapse of measles which left me in a bad shape, and I also had severe headaches and backache. Was in too bad a fix for anyone to live, it seemed, to me.

I was told that my only chance was an operation, but I decided to try Cardui instead. I only took two bottles, and now I am well and strong again.

I don't believe there is any medicine on earth that will help suffering women as Cardui will. I have already gotten several ladies to try it, and I am going to continue to recommend your medicine."

For more than 50 years, Cardui has been successfully used in the treatment of womanly ills. It has been found to relieve women's pains, and strengthen women's weakness.

If you are a woman, and suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to your sex, we urge you to give Cardui a trial. It has helped more than a million women in the past half century, and will do the same for you if given a fair trial.

Your druggist sells Cardui.

PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

OL 4. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY OCTOBER 30, 1913. NO. 30

ROF. PICKENS ON OUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

ITES STRONG LETTER IN SUPPORT OF THE INSTITUTION

r Sir:

For the past year I have been g my efforts and influence toard the erection of a County gh School for Chilton County. t I have succeeded, partially, dmit, but feel that it is going to e the hearty co-operation of ery good citizen in the county to ng it about. Of course I am ng to be misunderstood by e, but, if I bring this matter fore them in an intelligent way, re are certain incontrovertable ts that will convihce all who re to be honest and reasonle.

It is a matter of public record t the boy who attends school til the age of fourteen years, at age of twenty-five earns on average of two dollars per day; if he remains in school until age of sixteen, at the age of nty-five earns on an avge of four dollars per day; sur to the first boy in no way, e the mental training gained by years of high school. Start two years behind, he overtakes surpasses the former by the e he is twenty-five years of age. has been shown that every day nt in school properly is worth ht dollars. Realizing that the uniary side of an education is very least value that can posly be placed upon it, those who ke it possible to add two more rs to the school life of the ris generation will render the atest service to humanity.

Today ninety-seven per cent of erica's children leave school h only a common school educa. Of these only one in every e thousand gets to be one of ten thousand men who are the al leaders in the different lks of life. Of those who go ough high school one out of evy four hundred attains leaderip. Four additional years spent college during this plastic period the mind increases ones chan at leadership twenty-two fold, one out of every forty bemes one of the leaders.

From the foregoing statements will be seen that America is wing her recruits for the ranks leadership from three per cent her population. Ninety-seven cent of her boys are denied an portunity at leadership because y are sent to the common ools only. The other three cent having no better blood rsing through their veins, go high school or college and reby gain a monopoly on the itions of distinction later in . We Americans dote on equal of opportunity. Then let us ke it possible by placing a high ool education within easy reach every aspiring boy; let us disrage and break down the great ference between the boy whose nts have means and the boy ose parents who have not reby the former has two hund and twenty times the chan of the latter at distinction and dership.

But back to Chilton county. mer's administration enacted a whereby a system of public ools may be established in each nty, but the law required that community in each county seing such a school should raise imum of five thousand dolwith which to erect suitable ldings. When such a commun had met those conditions the nty in which the school was lo d should receive from the Treasury the sum of two nd dollars for the erection of said school. In accordance with this law the Commission that five thousand dollars was not sufficient for the erection of a suitable building; and by the acts of that commission it has become customary to require a building costing on an average twelve thousand dollars, The present administration increased the amount paid the schools from two thousand to three thousand dollars per year, so it is an evident fact that the tax payers have already lost thirteen thousand dollars of their hard-earned tax money which should have come back for the support of their county school. This should not be the case. A condition like this is unjust, and upon each citizen rests a part of the responsibility of changing the situation.

This school will place in easy reach a standard high school, to which the boys of Chilton county could go without tuition. Fifty-five of the sixty-seven counties of the state have availed themselves of such a school. Are not the Chilton county boys as deserving as the boys of other counties? Is not her citizenship as enterprising and progressive as that of other counties? We think so, what say you?

Twelve thousand dollars is no small amount, and, being unable to find any community in the county disposed toward raising that amount, we have asked the county Commissioners to contribute one third the amount to ANY COMMUNITY in the county willing to raise the other eight thousand dollars. The justice of this is easily seen. It will be a county school, controlled by the Superintendent and County Board of Education, duly elected by the people of the county. It is a means of bringing back to the county each year three thousand dollars of the peoples' tax money. It is a county institution that opens its doors and makes special appeal to every boy in the county to come up higher. It is an institution that addresses itself to the poor, and enables them to demand of those who have means to come to their assistance. Are you with us and the home boy, or are you one that believes in paying your tax money into the one hundred and sixty-five thousand dollar fund to support the fifty-five schools in other counties, while your own children at home go neglected? Are you with us and the county Commissioners in our efforts to benefit the poor boy at home before paying to support the poor boy of other counties?

Please reply to us and let us know how you stand, also give your reason for such a stand. Do not get it into your head and go off on a tangent that the county commissioners should do so and so in a high

THORSBY INSTITUTE

Thorsby, Ala., Oct. 23, 1913
To Editor of Clanton Press:

Last Spring I offered to students of Chilton county schools a small prize for the solution of a problem in arithmetic. So much interest was shown in the problem, that I have concluded to try it again with another problem. I will give one dollar to the pupil of any Chilton county school who first returns to me a correct solution of the following problem, provided the solution reaches me by Nov. 10, 1913. If no pupil returns a correct solution, I will pay the dollar to the first public school teacher who returns a correct solution. If no teacher wins the prize any resident of the county may enter the contest.

Each contestant will please give his address, name the school, if any, and its teacher, with which he is connected, and state that he worked the problem without assistance. E. W. Butler.

THE PROBLEM.

A man walking at the rate of a mile in 16 minutes, along side a double track street railway line, on which cars are running each way at a uniform rate of speed and equal distances apart, notices that he meets a car at intervals of 2 3-4 minutes and is passed by a car at intervals of 4 3-4 minutes. How fast are the cars running?

THE COUNTY FAIR

Thorsby, Ala., Oct. 27, 1913

Mr. Editor:—Will you please allow me to say a few things thro' your paper to the people of our good county? It was my privilege to be in attendance at the County Fair Friday of last week' I wish to commend the management for the splendid exhibits in all departments, especially the agricultural and the ladies' fancy work, culinary, etc.

This all goes to show that we, as a county, are progressing very nicely along all these lines and I as a citizen am proud to see so much interest being taken in this direction. But dear Editor, I was surprised and shocked at some other exhibits I saw there, and believe it is a shame as well as a stain on our good county to allow such things. What I refer to is the more than half dozen gaming or gambling devices which were being operated in full blast, open to all, old and young alike. Men were betting and losing hard-earned dollars almost as fast as they could place them on the tables; some [illegible] est debts or for the support of their families, who no doubt will have to suffer for the necessaries of life because their fathers and husbands were there cheated out of their money.

Gentlemen of the Fair management, cannot we have a Fair and not have such things to debauch and demoralize our citizenship? I believe we can, and I would like to ask all who believe it is wrong to allow such things, use every opportunity to keep the minds of the Fair management brightened up on this subject and by another year see if we cannot have a Fair that we can all feel safe in taking our wives, daughters and sweethearts to and enjoy a nice social and profitable time together, learning to know each other better, and thus feel a closer and more sacred tie of brotherhood. And thus having met together for a few days on a common plane, we can go home and feel that we have been made better by our having come in touch with each other. I am not writing this to censure or criticise the Fair management, but to call their attention to what others as well as myself believe to be a great stain upon our good name. And with the hope that our Fairs in the future will be free from such things, with love to all and malice to none, I stand ready at all times to lend a helping hand toward the uplift of the people of our good county, and to help make her one of the very best in our fair State in every respect. Respectfully,

A. K. Horn.

Mr. J. G. Bland, with his wife and daughter, Miss Jewel, made the Press office a much appreciated visit last Friday.

A LOVELY FACE--- BUT UGLY HAIR

How often you see an otherwise lovely face spoiled by homely hair; a face that would be most charmingly beautiful if she only had prettier hair. What a pity!—and how foolish! Because that ugly hair, stringy, dull, lifeless-looking though it may be, can be made as glossy, soft, silky and beautiful as the heart could desire, if only taken proper care of.

Harmony Hair Beautifier is just what it is named—a hair beautifier It is not a hair dye or hair oil—it is just a dainty, rose-perfumed, liquid hair dressing to give the hair its natural brightness and gloss, its natural wavy softness, its natural rich beauty. Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair nor darken grey hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of the hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet-smelling cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beatifier, $1.00; Harmony Shampoo, 50c; both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada, and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories in Boston, where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made.—Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala.

INDIGESTION, GAS OR BAD STOMACH

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin ends all Stomach misery in five minutes.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructation of undigested food.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or bad stomach. Adv.

Unconquerable Cat.

There is just one animal man has never conquered, never can conquer. Centuries ago every other beast became the slave of man or else fled far from human habitation. One and one only refused to flee or to submit. This only exception to a world of servants and of scared enemies is the domestic cat. When some animals became man's slaves and others fled from him, the cat did neither. It simply took all the favors and advantages man had to offer, and refused to do one lick of work in exchange. Beat a dog and he will fawn on you. Beat a cat and it will attack you and then desert you. You can't conquer the cat. You can't make it work.

PAINFUL ECZEMA ON HANDS

Bienville, La.—"I was troubled with eczema in my hands for several years. The skin would break and look like it had been cut with a knife and my hands were so sore I could hardly bear to put them in water and could hardly use them. When I used them the blood would run out. They would heal a little and then they would get worse than ever again. They were very painful. The eczema got to breaking out on my arms in pimples which itched and burned very badly.

"I used different remedies, also used all kinds of facial creams and ——— on my hands and arms and I did not get any relief until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I cured my hands and eczema with Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Miss Fanny Mostiller, Oct. 5, 1912.

Stopping the Wind.

In the village church during the morning service the organist was annoyed because the organ-blower kept working the lever noisily after he had finished playing. A famous preacher had come down from London to preach. The organist scribbled a note to the blower, and sent it round by a choir boy, who, misunderstanding his instructions, put it into the hands of the preacher. The note was as follows: "Perhaps you will kindly stop when I tell you to. The people have come here to hear my music, not your noise."

CHILDREN LOVE SYRUP OF FIGS

It is cruel to force nauseating, harsh physic into a sick child.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With—our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Adv.

COMMERCIAL CONGRESS MEETS IN MOBILE

DISTINGUISHED MEN FROM ALL PARTS OF UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES ATTEND THE FIFTH ANNUAL CONVENTION

GREATEST GATHERING IN HISTORY OF THE SOUTH

Gulf City Crowded With People During the Sessions of the Congress—An History-making Event for Mobile, Alabama, and the South.

Mobile.—Featured by a speech of President Wilson, the seventh annual convention of the Southern Commercial congress opened here October 27, for a tree days' session. In conjunction was a celebration of the opening of the Panama canal and a memorial to Senator Morgan of Alabama, who for more than 30 years was a strong advocate of a water route across the isthmus.

President Wilson arrived here early on the morning of October 27 and at 8 o'clock the ceremonies were opened with a breakfast for the President. Later in the morning he addressed the convention and left for Washington shortly after noon.

On October 28, at noon, 13 of the speakers delivered addresses in as many churches and auditoriums in the city in honor of the memory of Senator Morgan.

Besides President Wilson, Secretary of the Navy Daniels addressed the congress and other speakers included men of the south who have had active interest in development of Dixie's commerce.

The convention theme was: "The Relation of the States of the United States to the Panama Canal, to Latin-America, and to World Commerce."

The convention was perhaps the greatest gathering in the history of Mobile, Alabama and the South.

Gaily Decorated.

Throughout the business district extending to the residential section elaborate decorations were in evidence, here, there, everywhere; Old Glory could be seen floating to the breeze, while pictures of Woodrow Wilson and the late Senator John T. Morgan, "Father of the Canal Idea," were conspicuously in view.

Crowds Fill Streets.

On the morning of the first day, October 27, long before the hour set for President Wilson's public address, thousands crowded the thoroughfares leading to Bienville Square, eager to get a glimpse of the nation's chief executive and hear what he had to say.

The President addressed the surging throng in a brief and happy manner and seemed "dee-lighted" at the ovation given him.

Many Prominent Speakers.

Perhaps the greatest array of speakers who ever attended a convention of any kind in this country delivered addresses, among whom were:

President Wilson, Secretary Daniels, Senators Fletcher, Smith, Bankhead, Ransdell, Vardaman and Brady; Governors O'Neal of Alabama, McCreary of Kentucky, Major of Missouri, Trammell of Florida and ex-Governor Noel of Mississippi; Representatives Underwood, Heflin, Hobson, Abercrombie, Taylor and Clayton; Minister Morales of Panama, Minister Pezet of Peru, Minister Calderon of Bolivia, Consul General for Brasil de Cunah; Director General of the Pan-American Union John Barrett, Managing Director of the Southern Commercial Congress Dr. C. J. Owens, Lt. Col. Sibert of the Isthmian Canal Commission, Powderly, Chief of the Bureau of Information of the Department of Labor; Vice-President Thomas S. Southgate of the Southern Commercial Congress; Treasurer William H. Saunders of the Southern Commercial Congress; General Counsel Charles A. Douglas of the Southern Commercial Congress; Col. Harvie Jordan, President of the Southern Cotton Growers' Association; President Crawford, of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company; Governor Richard L. Metcalf of the Panama Canal Zone, and many other distinguished American and Pan-American citizens.

President Wilson spoke on the first day of the convention and Senator Fletcher, President of the Southern Commercial Congress, delivered the annual address the same day. Dr. C. J. Owens, Director General of the Permanent American Commission on Agricultural Co-operation, reported the results of the European investigations of agricultural co-operation made by the commission during a three months' European tour last summer.

Women's Auxiliary Meets.

On the same dates, October 27-29, the Women's Auxiliary of the Southern Commercial Congress held its convention. Many distinguished women made addresses, including Miss Jane Adams, of Hull House, Chicago; the Countess of Aberdeen and Miss Julia Lathrop, Chief of the United States Children's Bureau. Great Trade Pageant.

Among the events of the convention was a great trade pageant, a visit of naval vessels and ships of the light-house service to Mobile, and a cruise to the Panama Canal and Central America by many of the delegates in a specially chartered steamer. A memorial tablet is to be erected at the Panama Canal to the memory of the late Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, "Father of the Canal Idea."

Souvenir for Wilson.

As a souvenir of his trip to the "Gateway" on the occasion of the Southern Commercial Congress celebration, President Woodrow Wilson carried back to Washington a gold medallion commemorative of the visit to Alabama's one seaport city. On one side of the medallion is a picture of the lamented Morgan and on the other a replica of the Canal and surroundings. Secretaries of President Wilson's Cabinet were given medallions of similar design, but of silver.

Purposes of Congress.

The congress is one of the most important institutions in the South and its meetings are looked upon as very valuable to the progress and development of the South.

The purposes for which the congress was formed are as follows:

To promote and develop the interests of the following sixteen states of the United States, known as the "Southern States," to-wit: Alabama Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia.

To collect and disseminate information regarding the resources and conditions of the said states and the opportunities and advantages offered in them for the safe and profitable investment of capital; the attractions offered in the South to the homeseeker, artisan and laborer, and the importance to the national government of enacting proper legislation looking to the conservation of the natural resources of the South and the improvement of its rivers, harbors and transportation facilities.

To Promote Development.

To encourage, promote and foster the development of the resources of the South with its own capital and by its own inhabitants.

To encourage and obtain the establishment in the South of commercial, manufacturing, industrial and other enterprises and to foster those already existing therein.

To encourage, promote and foster the creation and establishment of institutions and organizations, whose energies shall be principally directed toward the development of the material resources of the South.

To promote and develop proper immigration to the South and to promote and foster the establishment of such organizations as may bring about the development of desirable immigration to the South.

To encourage the movement for the construction of good roads and for the extension of railroad and trolley transportation.

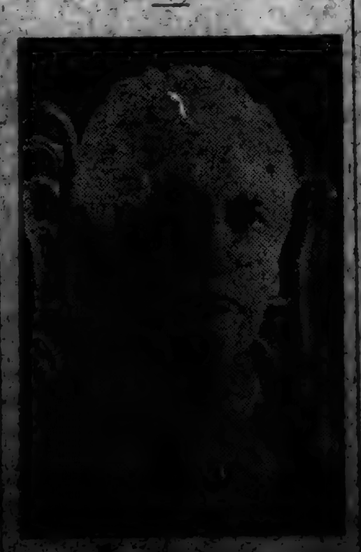
To encourage, foster and develop patriotic and national sentiment throughout the South and elsewhere in the nation, and particularly to promote, encourage and foster the feeling and desire for a greater nation through a greater South.

To promote the improvement of educational and other conditions which tend to develop the material resources and happiness of the residents of the South.



To provide for the permanent establishment of this organization and for the continued enlargement of its sphere of influence and activity; by providing a permanent endowment fund, the proceeds from which shall be used for carrying out the purposes of the organization; and by enlisting in its work the active interest of individuals, corporations, municipalities, townships, counties, states, commercial and other organizations, and of the national government; and by securing from time to time their financial support for the same.

To Clear Up Misunderstanding.

The Southern Commercial Congress is not merely an annual meeting. It is a union of effort on the part of all southern commercial bodies and individual business institutions to bring two things to pass in the present day; First, to induce a proper understanding by the people of the South regarding the significance of the physical resources of their states in establishing a greater nation through a greater South; and, second, to sweep out of the mind of the world all elements of misunderstanding regarding the South, its prospects, its people and its opportunities.

The Southern Commercial Congress was designed to be a confederation of all local southern commercial bodies and individual business institutions interested in southern progress, an extended chamber of commerce doing for a section of country what the local chamber does for its community, a centralized source of information and inspiration for local organizations

DIZZY, HEADACHY, SICK, "CASCARETS"

Gently cleanse your liver and sluggish bowels while you sleep.

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Adv.

Made the Parson Happy.

It was Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, archbishop of York, who, when he was bishop of Stepney, remarked, apropos of the children of the East end: "They are doing a great deal to rebuke the tendency of the clergy to become middle-aged in spirit—dull, morose and superior." And he told one of his favorite stories of an East end cleric who was feeling lifeless and disconsolate on setting out on his daily round of visits, when a little street urchin looked up at him with a cheerful eye and knowing smile, and said: 'Ullo, young man!' That greeting quite reassured the parson for the rest of the day," Dr. Lang declares.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HER GRAY HAIR

She Made Up a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss, Thickness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy. New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

"Despite irregularities of weather and the natural ebb and flow in trade currents, the volume of distribution trade holds up well, though probably not as large as some weeks ago nor as heavy at some centers as a year ago.

"The first touch of winter has benefited retail trade in winter wear clothing, dry goods, shoes and rubber goods. In the northwest this has helped orders from jobbers. In the southwest the disposition is to go carefully.

"In the south the feeling is better fortified by free sales of cotton at excellent prices. Pacific coast reports are also cheerful.

"Large primary markets report some recessions in trade, but in some lines inability to get goods is at the base of the slackening. Early reports as to holiday trade are good.

"Business failures for the week were 246 against 229 in 1912.

"Wheat, including flour, exports for the week are the largest for 12 years, aggregating 8,325,388 bushels, against 6,655,961 last year."

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly trade review says:

"Business situations continue fairly satisfactory though evidences of a reactionary tendency are manifest in certain branches of trade.

"Cooler weather has stimulated both retail and wholesale distribution of seasonable merchandise in numerous sections, but unusually low temperatures at the south had led to reports of further damage to cotton.

"Conditions in iron and steel still reflect curtailment of operations with additions to idle forces and there is a less optimistic sentiment. Reductions in prices are more frequent, yet railroad demands are becoming more of a feature and consumers are urging deliveries.

"Much interest is being shown in the question of imports, but thus far nothing of especial significance has occurred in that connection. A better tone is apparent in the copper market. Continued favorable advices are received from leading dry goods houses.

"Failures this week numbered 340 in the United States against 255 last year, and 31 in Canada compared with 29."

LITTLE JOKE BY SKIMPS

Backed His Statement With Money, but Was Compelled to Compromise.

"Speaking of bantam chickens," remarked Skimps, when the conversation turned to poultry, "I have a hen whose eggs are so small that I put three dozen of them in a collar-box the other day."

"Give him the Ananias club medal!" shouted the rest, in chorus.

"Have any of you gentlemen money with which to back your doubts of my veracity?"

"I have a couple of dollars," replied Gaswell.

"So have I," added Dukane.

"Good enough! I'll cover both of those bets."

"Very well. Now show us those eggs in that collar-box."

"Well, I can do it if you insist, but perhaps it may not be necessary."

"Of course it's necessary! You don't expect to win our money without proof, do you?"

"Not at all, but I merely wish to observe that it was a horse-collar-box I put the eggs in."

With some difficulty the matter was compromised, and Skimps was warned that the next break of that kind would cost him his life.

FALLING HAIR MEANS DANDRUFF IS ACTIVE

Save Your Hair! Get a 25 Cent Bottle of Danderine Right Now—Also Stops Itching Scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, luster and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp. GOOD MEN ARE DISSATISFIED

Find That They Don't Measure Up to Own Standards Every Day in Week.

Are you feel that you're a failure because you don't measure up to your own standards, every day in the week?

Buck up, brother! That's the way all good, go-ahead men feel sometimes!

If they weren't dissatisfied with their performances as well as their promises, they'd be trotting around in a circle; and that means business dry rot, if anyone asks you.

A certain amount of self-dissatisfaction is the best tonic in the world for the genus, man. It keeps him from broodin' on bein' a man—like David Harum's flea-bitten dog, you know!

As long as you can find fault with yourself and your works, you're alive, my friend.

When you get to the point where you feel sorry for other men because they aren't such good salesmen, or managers, or presidents—or porters—as you, then is the time for the doctor to put you on a diet and prescribe perfect quiet—to keep you from going crazy about yourself!

Don't get the glooms over self-distrust. Ambition and dissatisfaction are half brothers, anyway! — Exchange.

"While you correspondents have been reasonably accurate in your accounts," he remarked, "you have overlooked some of our goods points. We acknowledge capturing the insurgent general, starving him a week, beating him regularly, cutting off his ears and finally banishing him, but—"

He paused that the force of the remark might be fully felt.

Mrs. Walls Makes Public Some Interesting Facts Which Should Interest All Women.

Leinarts, Tenn.—Mrs. Martha Walls, of this town, makes the following statements for publication: "I feel it my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me.

For four (4) years I suffered terribly with womanly troubles, and I found no relief in different medicines which I took. Finally, I began to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and after taking six bottles I am completely cured. I feel like a different person altogether. All the pains are gone, and I am in better health than I have been in for four years. Have gained a great deal in weight.

I still take Cardui as a tonic. My husband, as well as myself, cannot praise it too highly.

I hope this letter will induce other poor, suffering women to try Cardui, for it is the best medicine in the world for women."

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second-class mail matter under act of Congress, March 3rd, 1879.

The latest move on the part of the democrats, as a result of their investigation of rural credits, is to loan money to the farmers at four per cent. That is in line with moving the cotton crop with government money.

"Clanton is the largest Shrine town in the world," streams from ev ery auto which takes our Shriners to Montgomery in attendance upon the ceremonial session of Alcazar Temple. The deserted state of our offices and counting rooms tells how numerous is the gay and festive order

Excess of matter crowds out of our columns a most excellent address of Prof. H, K. Meigs at the school opening at Macedonia. He emphazsizes the importance of parental co-operation in the work of our schools, and handles that important subject in a masterful manner. We will watch the work of that school, and predict that its years operations will be fruitful of great and lasting good.

Few people know how to read a newspaper so as to get out of it exactly what is coming to them. The personals are for those in whom curiosity predominates, while the editorials are for those who thirst for knowledge. The advertisements are highly prized, and closely scanned, by all who wish to buy anything. Advertisers always put their best bargains to the front, and those who have no bargains to offer, keep their business out of the newspapers.

When in town call at the Press office, and if your wife and daughter are with you, bring them along. True, we are 'in the sere and yellow leaf," and somewhat faded and shriveled up by the flight of years. Our general architectural structure is decidedly dilapidated, and our physiognomy is inclined to the crooked-nosed and snaggle-toothed variety, but there is something in the presence of a good woman which never fails to awakened all that is noblest and purest in our nature, and to call back from out the distant past, some traces of the old time "suaviter in modo" which once graced our youth. Let us be neighborly. The more we mingle with others the less inclined we are to get big-headed over our own piety and wisdom. Don't think yourself too good to come to see us.

Jno. T. Morgan.

At the Southern Commercial Congress, held at Mobile this week, the highest honors of the occasion were not paid to Woodrow Wilson, who won all hearts, but to John T. Morgan, the brainy and great hearted Alabamian, whose fame now fills the world, because in the face of bitter discouragement, he pressed to a successful issue the sea-to-sea canal project, which today surpasses all of the achievements once known as the seven wonders of the world. Mobile could afford no auditorium large enough to accommodate the vast throngs brought together by the common desire to honor his memory, and contribute to his lasting fame, and so in twelve different halls and churches the people met, where distinguished speakers from many states eulogized our deceased fellow-citizen, whose untarnished name is forever linked with the fortunes of our State and nation. The severest test of knowledge is the power to foretell the events which depend upon the truths known. In the presence of these events now actual and present, how vain and foolish appears the opposition to Mr. Morgan's policy, which was made by wiley politicians who preferred to retard the growth of our country for a hundred years, rather than see the country made prosperous and the people happy, through the agency of a Southern democrat. It was in regard to Jno. T. Morgan that we heard insinuations of incompetency, and vile insuendoes as to character, such as we now hear in regard to Woodrow Wilson in some quarters. These pusilanimous statements are repeated by men without thought, but they are originated and put into circulation by men without character.

DEATH OF MR. JAS. A. DUDLEY

Mr. Jas. A. Dudley died at his home in Montgomery Monday, and his remains were shipped for interment to Clanton where he had a host of friends. He was a one-armed Confederate veteran, and a pioneer settler of this place, where he had a saw-mill. After the town grew up around the mills, he was for years the marshal of the place, until he was appointed by Gov. Samford warden of the convict camp at Dolive, Ala.

He leaves a wife and five sons, one of whom is our efficient postmaster. Sister Dudley, who has so often bound up the broken hearts of others in distress, will have the Christian svmpatny and prayers of her many friends in this dark hour.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society held its regular monthly meeting with Mrs. J. Q. Wade, Monday afternoon. It was a very enjoyable and interesting meeting.

Besides doing good in a financial way, there is a great deal of information to be gained by attending these meetings. Two splendid talks were made by Mrs. Chappelle and Mrs. Gamma Anderson, on conditions existing in Mexico and Brazil, and what great good our missionaries are doing there. We hope soon to have a "Missionary Rally," and thereby enlist the support of a greater number of ladies in this great work. Our learned divine gives three reasons for missionary activity. First "Christ said go." The Great Captain is the leader of the forces of God on earth. He commauds us to go into all the world and preach the gospel to all men. No church member is a real true, foresquare, live Christian, who does not believe in all missionary work which is done in Christ's name.

Second. "The Need." The greatest need of man is the need of the soul. God has given us His Son, but Christ gives himself continually only on condition that we give Him to others. The need is obvious.

Third. "The Reflex Influence and Effect." The law of compensation is as encouraging to a doer of good as the law of retribution is discouraging to a doer of evil. Nothing so broadens and enriches and develops an individual Christian or a church as unselfish and zealous work for missions. The Master says "Go!" Let us resolve to be better Christians by being missionaries for our Lord, if not in person on the foreign field, at home in spirit, in prayer, in gifts, in sympathy with the work, in encouragment to the workers.

M. C. Carey, the Expert Eye Specialist and Optician is in Clanton.

If you have defects in vision in reading or in seeing at a distance, if nature has placed on your vision a defect, I will overcome it. Hundreds of ladies come to me every year, saying "my vision is perfect but I have such violent headaches." Yes, hypermetrophia has set up, the eyeball has become too small and the light falls down before it gets back to the retna of the eye, causing severe pain. This is a lack of cylinderical power of the eye where lack of vigor or advanced age bring on lack of accommodation or presbyopia, which requires a spherical power to a lense. If you have compound hypermatrophia I can cover the defects by adding spherical and cylinderical power in the same lense by a process of grinding. If your eyes are astigmatised I will perfect the vision. I have my office in the VanDerveer Drug Co's. drug store.

Remember my office hours are promptly at from 11 o'clock a.m. till 12, from 1:30 p.m. till 2:30 p.m. At these hours I will make examination of the eye free of charge. I will remain here till Monday evening

BAD VISION RESTORED TO PERFECT VISION.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 28, 1913

I have been troubled for years with poor eyesight, so bad that I have been obliged to stop going to school. I called on the eye specialist, Dr. Carey, now stopping at VanDerveer's drug store. He at once told me that my eye had become in a myopic condition. He ground a lense for my eye which at once placed my vision in perfect condition and my eyes are at perfect rest and ease.

"Whose goods?"
"Damsky's."
"Who was caught?"
"Everybody?"

Damsky is a man of great modification. He only wants all that's right.

A Marvelous Escape.

"My little boy had a marvelous escape," writes P. F. Bastiams of Prince Albert, Cape of Good Hope. "It occurred in the middle of the night. He got a severe attack of croup. As luck would have it, I had a large bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. After following the directions for an hour and twenty minutes he was out of all danger." Chronic Dyspepsia.

The following unsolicited testimonial should certainly be sufficient to give hope and courage to persons afflicted with chronic dyspepsia: "I have been a chronic dyspeptic for years, and of all the medicine I have taken, Chamberlain's Tablets have done me more good than anything else," says W. Avoid Sedative Medicines.

If you want to contribute directly to the occurrence of capillary bronchitis and pneumonia use cough medicines that contain codine, morphine, heroin and other sedatives when you have a cough or cold. An expectorant like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is what is needed. That cleans out the culture beds or breeding places for the germs of pneumonia or other germ diseases. That is why pneumonia never results from a cold when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It has a world-wide reputation for its cures. It contains no morphine or other sedative. Mrs. Blalack of Cooper was in Clanton Thursday.

On the second Monday in November the State Highway Association, recently organized in Clanton to push through the road from Birmingham to Montgomery, will meet in Clanton to receive the report of the executive committee. It would be a good time for those who own lands in Chilton and who desire the road to come their way, to offer right of way inducements. The editor of the Press favors the enterprise, but does not understand the situation as well as those who have been longer on the ground, who own the mudholes to be abolished.

Luther's preceptor, a great German, with a jaw-breaking name, always removed his hat in the presence of his students, out of respect for what each of them might become. It is such deference, on the part of teaachers and preachers, to youthful possibilities, which has made actual and glorious the development of our people. When men of that stamp come our way we entertain angels, not unawares, but with our eyes wide open to the fact.

Hon. R. N. Lansing, of Rensselaer, N. Y., Six Times a Member of the Assembly, Tells of Narrow Escape.

"About fifteen years ago I was taken with rheumatism, which affected my heart producing what was called valvular trouble. Three doctors told me I would never do another day's work. While I had many remedies recommended to me I got a bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and it helped me inside of 48 hours. At the end of the week I called on my doctor and asked him to examine me. He said I was better than he ever expected to see me and asked if I was taking his medicine. When I told him I was not, but was taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, he said, 'Thank the Lord for Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy.' I continued to take it, and while I realized my heart was damaged so I could not expect a permanent cure, for fifteen years I worked every day, notwithstanding I had been told I would never work again. In July, 1913, I was taken with rheumatism again, and it went to my heart as before. I got so bad that one of the Albany papers wrote up my life and said I could not live but a few hours. I again took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy with very satisfactory results, and have not missed a day at business or in the legislature since January. I feel that Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has saved my life and cannot recommend it too highly."

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

LEGALITY OF FEES SUBJECTED TO TEST

PAYMENT OF VOUCHER OF GOVERNOR'S SPECIAL COUNSEL IS REFUSED.

$75,000 INVOLVED IN CASE

Test Case of Constitutionality of Alabama Statute Will Be Made By Daniel W. Troy.

Montgomery.—Judge Gaston Gunter of the city court of Montgomery issued an order to C. Brooks Smith, state auditor, directing him to appear before him on Saturday, October 31, and show cause why a writ of preemptory mandamus should not be issued, ordering him to draw a warrant on the state treasurer in payment of a voucher for $125 in favor of Daniel W. Troy, special counsel for the state, to collect penalties incurred by foreign corporations through violations of the foreign corporation laws.

The action of the court followed a petition of Mr. Troy for a writ of mandamus directing Auditor C. Brooks Smith to honor a voucher, approved by the governor, for a fee of $125 as commission for the collection of $500 from the Illinois Central Railroad company for violation of the state foreign corporation laws. Upon the solution of the case depends the constitutionality of the employment of all special counsel during the present administration and involves the legality of approximately $75,000 for special counsel fees. The case will in all probability go to the supreme court, and will create greater interest among the lawyers of the state than any litigation that has come before that tribunal in a number of years.

In short, the case involves the constitutionality of the employment of special counsel by the governor and is instituted as a test case. Should the courts decide that Mr. Troy is not entitled to his fee, the various special counsel who have been employed by the governor during his administration will be liable to the state, it was stated, for the money they have drawn from the treasury, aggregating something like $75,000. Mr. Troy will be liable to the amount of nearly $20,000, although he has turned into the treasury approximately $90,000, which might have escaped without his services.

The case has been instituted for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of section 561 of the code, as amended by the last legislature. nder the provisions of the amendment the governor is authorized to employ special counsel, but the question is raised that the caption of the bill amending the act does not contain matter germain to the substance of the bill in violation of the constitution.

Mr. Troy's petition for a writ of mandamus followed the refusal of Auditor Smith to approve his voucher, or bill, for $125, which had been duly signed and approved by the governor.

DISCREPANCIES ARE FOUND.

Examiner Gorman Submits Report to O'Neal on Limestone County.

Montgomery.—Owing to negligent and careless methods of bookkeeping, W. H. McClellan, ex-superintendent of education of Limestone county, owes the state of Alabama $899.25, for salaries paid teachers without legal authority, according to a report submitted to Governor O'Neal by Examiner of Public Accounts J. T. Gorman. In addition to the money illegally paid to teachers, Mr. McClellan also owes the state a small sum of money which he collected from the library fund and illegally distributed to school districts, and $118.54 which he collected as rent on sixteenth section lands, and turned over to the treasurer of school funds rather than to the state superintendent of education.

The money paid out for teachers' salaries was held to be illegal because of the fact that Mr. McClellan used that much of the state appropriation for the payments of debts which had accrued during the previous year.

MUST SUBMIT STATEMENT.

A. E. Walker, Superintendent of Banks, Issues Call.

Montgomery.—State banks have been called upon to submit statements of their condition at the close of business October 21 by Alex E. Walker, superintendent of the state banking department. Letters to all the banks have been mailed out by the office of Mr. Walker. On the same date the national banks of Alabama will make similiar statements to the comptroller of the currency at Washington.

Over Hundred Doctors Attend.

Montgomery.—More than one hundred doctors attended the annual convention of the surgeons of the Seaboard Air Line Railway which was held in this city October 29-30. A scientific program replete with addresses and papers was carried out. The social functions included a banquet, a smoker and auto ride over the principal streets of the city. Dr. J. H. Miller, of Creek Hill, S. C., is president of the association, and Dr. J. M. Burns, of Petersburg, Va., is chief surgeon.

BOLL WEEVIL CHECKED.

Early Frost Has Good Effect—Entomologist Hinds Says Farmers Should Clean Up.

Montgomery.—W. E. Hinds, entomologist of the Alabama experiment station, has sent out the following letter urging the farmers of the state to take advantage of the early frost this year and clean up:

"The occurrence of killing frosts through a large part of Alabama on the morning of October 21 and 22 was a very fortunate event for the cotton producers of the state within the infested area and especially to those located along the line of the 1913 advance. The destruction of the food supply of the adult weevils and the killing of imense numbers of immature weevils practically a month before the average date for the first killing frost, is certain to have a very important effect in decreasing the number of weevils to go into winter quarters and will greatly reduce weevil injury to next year's crop wherever these early killing frosts have occurred. Furthermore, it checks the advance of the weevil about three weeks earlier than it occurred in 1912, and thus reduced the newly infested area for 1913 by a very important part of what had been anticipated.

"At the present time there is a very unusual opportunity for cotton planters in the infested area to supplement this unusually early destruction of the weevils' foodsupply by thoroughly cleaning up the cotton fields and removing or reducing the most favorable opportunities for successful weevil hibernation. While in an average season, with cotton green at this time, it would be better for the farmers with small plows and light teams to depend upon the burning of stalks as a means of controlling the weevil. Under these very unusual circumstances, with the cotton already killed and the prospects of several weeks of warmer weather to follow before it is cold enough for the weevils to enter permanent winter quarters, all can more safely depend upon plowing in the stalks and putting on immediately some kind of cover crop. With the immature weevil stages destroyed by the cold, it becomes less important to have the stalks buried as deeply as would be necessary to control the weevil by plowing under stalks if they were filled with green square infested by living weevil stages.

"Every possible effort should be made to take advantage of this unusual opportunity and so reduce the number of weevils going through the winter sucessfully as to insure the making of the 1914 cotton crop with a very minimum of weevil injury.

"This suggestion is applicable to the entire weevil territory in which the cotton has now been killed."

HEAVY DAMAGE TO COTTON

Greater Damage Will Be Done If Cold and Wet Spell Continues Much Longer.

Montgomery.—Thousands of dollars in damage to the crops of the state have resulted from the recent rains and cold spell, according to officials of the state department of agriculture and industries. The heaviest damage has been done to the cotton crop, inasmuch as many thousand bales of cotton was still in the fields when th cold weather came. The corn crop has also been materially damaged by the bad weather, and the agricultural department officials are extremely pessimistic as regards the two crops.

Several weeks ago it was thought that if the fair weather continued the cotton crop would be unusually large this year, and farmers over the state were anticipating fine results from the second crop. However, the recent wet and cold weather played great havoc with cotton and corn, and still greater damage will be done, it is declared, if the present spell continues much longer.

COTTON GROWING CONTEST

Conducted by Department of Agriculture Ends in November.

Montgomery.—Reports of cotton yields in the cotton growing contest being conducted by the State in conjunction with a local fertilizer company, will be received by the Department of Agriculture during the month of November, says Captain A. T. Goodwin, who has charge of the contents. The figures on the cotton yields will not be available until next month because all the cotton will not be picked until that time.

The wreck was caused by the engine running into a tree which had blown across the track during a storm.

UNITED STATES IS PREPARED FOR WAR

SECRETARY SAYS HE IS PLEASED WITH THE PROSPEROUS CONDITION OF THE COUNTRY.

DANIELS VERY OPTOMISTIC

Refuses to Discuss Mexican Situation, But Says Government Has Ships at All Strategic Points.

Atlanta, Ga.—Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, the only member of President Wilson's cabinet on the president's special train which passed through Atlanta, en route to the Southern Commercial Congress at Mobile, seemed well pleased over the policy which the United States has pursued in respect to Mexico.

As to just how seriously complicated the relationship of the United States and Mexico might become, however, he would not venture an opinion.

"The Mexican situation, I believe, can be worked out amicably; he said, "but in any event, we are well prepared on the sea. We have war vessels stationed now at all strategic points. However, the Mexican situation is a matter for the consideration of the state department and not for me to discuss. Secretary Bryan, who had intended speaking at Mobile, has remained in Washington in order to keep in touch with the Mexican election."

As the train rushed through the cotton fields of Georgia, Secretary Daniels commented on the quality of the staple, and said that he was pleased with the prosperous condition of the South as he found it.

The secretary said that he felt greatly honored at the ovation given him in Charlotte, N. C., his native state.

Secretary Daniels expressed his own approval of the suggestion of Winston Churchchill, first lord of the admiralty of Great Britain, that the powers should agree to cease naval construction for a short period.

"I feel sure," said Mr. Daniels, "that if all the other navy building countries agreed to such an arrangement the United States would also gladly do so. I think this suggestion follows as a direct sequence to Secretary Bryan's peace policy."

The secretary said he did not believe, however, that the Churchill suggestion would affect the immediate program of this government.

Mr. Daniels talked naval affairs with the president, but did not discuss the Churchill proposal.

MEXICAN ELECTION A FARCE

In Mexico City Not 10,000 People Went to the Polls.

Mexico City.—At the close of the elections the indications were that not sufficient votes had been cast in Mexico to constitute a legal choice for the presidency to succeed Gen. Victoriano Huerta.

No official announcement was made, but it was unofficially estimated, judging from the results in the capital, where it was expected the vote would be up to the average that less than 10,000 of the 80,000 eligible voters in the Federal district went to the polls. There are said to be more than 3,000,000 eligible voters in the republic.

It would be no suprise if congress, the members of which also were voted for, declared the elections and when that body is organized and revises the returns.

The leaders of the Catholic party claimed a long lead, although they were unable to estimate the number of votes polled for their candidates, Frederico Gamboa and General Rascon.

If this claim is correct, it is generally thought that Gen. Felix Dias and Senor Requena ran second. The Liberal candidates, Manuel Calero and Flores Magnon, had not printed tickets at the polling places, their constituents being obliged to write their names on blank ballots.

A decree will be issued by General Huerta increasing the army from 85,000 men, its alleged present number, to 150,000. General Huerta proposed such an increase some time ago, but the congress, which he dissolved, limited him to 80,000.

7 Firemen Dead and 24 Injured.

Miswaukee, Wis.—Seven dead firemen and twenty-four injured were taken from the ruins of the store of the Goodyear Rubber company here in a fire which caused a loss of $500,000. It is believed there are several more bodies in the ruins. The flames broke out on the second floor, and while the firemen were fighting the blaze from the front and rear, an explosion sent the walls crashing down on fifty firemen. Windows for blocks around were smashed and the flames spread to adjoiningbuildings.

Rebels Capture Monterey.

El Paso Texas.—The city of Monterey, capital of the state of Nuevo Leon and one of the most important strategic points in Mexico, has been captured by the rebels after a two days' siege. A terrific fire from machine guns was poured into the city for 12 hours, according to reports, and many persons were killed. [illegible] dollars damage to the [illegible] Gen. The appearance of the light and its disappearance are dark mysteries. Some one said that the blaze was originally kindled to frighten from their nightly roosting place a pair of falcons which preyed on the domestic pigeons of the capital. The falcons, however, were seen after the light had burned for some time. Now the light is out, and perhaps economy has something to do with it. The chances are that few people in Washington would care much about it one way or the other if it were not for the obstinacy of the government officials of two administrations in refusing to answer plain people's questions as to why the electric switch originally was turned on and afterward was turned off. The attitude of the officials is that of the schoolgirl who when asked who won the battle of Saratoga replied, "I know, but I won't tell."

Large windows at the front of the hall and several skylights afford plenty of light for fencers and revolver shots at day practice and numerous ceiling lights will make night contests possible.

The reorganization of the club has caused considerable interest in Washington society. The first fencing club was started about 17 years ago by Gordon Strong. Count Arthur Cassini, Russian ambassador, and a number of persons from diplomatic and society life participated in the bouts with foil and saber.

Robert M. Thompson is president of the new club, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador, is vice-president. Henry Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war, is secretary-treasurer, and his brother, Dr. Scott D. Breckinridge, is captain of the salle d'armes.

And still the whistle shrieked. It was 8:10 o'clock, and the weird notes of distress had been coming to the city for nearly a half hour.

"Oh! can't somebody save them?" almost cried a woman as she took a taxicab in front of the Willard for the "scene of the tragedy."

"No, it's not a wreck," decidedly answered an individual on the other end of the telephone, after the territory in which the whistle was sending out "distress signals" had been located. "Please don't bother me," continued the voice, exhibiting tones of anger. "About a million people have asked me the same fool question."

Further inquiry elicited that a whistle on one of the locomotives in a railroad yard on New Jersey avenue had broken, and couldn't be stopped from shrieking until it had made its run to the station.

Despite the alarm and "corroborated" stories of the tragedy, no contributions for the sufferers were collected.

DIVERSIFICATION ON SOUTHERN FARMS

Forage Crops Fully as Important as Cotton and Corn.

PROFITABLE AS WINTER FEED

Every Farmer Should Make Growing of Fodder a Big Part of His Farm Operations, Selecting Piece of Land for Purpose.

(By G. H. ALFORD.)

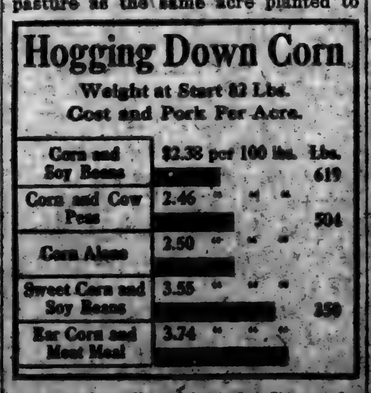
The question of forage crops is not a difficult problem for southern farmers. Almost every farm crop grown can be used for forage. There are, however, many plants that will produce forage in abundance.

Every farmer should make the growing of forage an important part of his farm operations. Each year a large piece of land should be selected especially for the growing of forage crops. Forage crops are of fully as much importance as cotton and corn, but they are usually neglected crops.

The turnip crop should be considered of great value. Prepare the land thoroughly, manure heavy, plant in drills three feet apart, when the leaf is as large as a dime, thin to 15 inches and cultivate often, and you will raise a great quantity and find that the crop is very profitable for winter feeding.

For the earliest spring feed, sow oats, rye or wheat in the fall. Sow two bushels per acre on fertile soil, liberally manured and well prepared. These crops usually produce feed by the first of March and furnish good hay if cut in the dough stage.

Crimson, white, burr and red clovers are valuable winter crops to plant. September and October are the best months for seeding, and to be sure of a big crop plant on fertile soil and a perfect seed bed, using plenty of manure and 200 pounds of acid phosphate per acre. Sow from 15 to 20 pounds of seed per acre. The yield of hay on thoroughly prepared fertile soil is about one and one-half tons per acre. The corn crop planted on this clover stubble will never fail you. As high as 20 tons of silage corn is often grown on clover sod.



Alfalfa excels every other crop in yield per acre, in feeding value, and as a soil enricher, when grown on land to which it is well adapted.

For a large yield of hay, sow one bushel of wheat or oats and 15 pounds crimson or red clover per acre. The crops are cut when the clover is in full bloom. It is easy to make two tons of hay per acre on fertile soil, and these hays are milk and fat producing feeds.

Hairy vetch and wheat or oats are also fine for grazing and hay. More land is being seeded each year to this mixture, and the farmers all like it.

Fall or spring sown oats furnish grazing and make a capital hay when cut in the dough stage. At Baton Rouge, La., two and one-half acres were planted in oats at the experiment station for grazing on September 28. October 29 seven Poland China pigs, weighing in total 276 pounds were put on the oats and given no feed during the winter. On February 17 the pigs weighed a total of 568 pounds, or an average gain of .37 pound per pig per day for 110 days. From October 29 to January 1 45 head of sheep were pastured on this same plat.

Rape will produce more green forage in the south during the winter months than any other one plant or combination of plants that can be grown. It has been demonstrated by the experiment station that an acre of good rich land sown to rape will produce as much pork when used as a hog pasture as the same acre planted to corn and well cultivated. It can be grown a great deal cheaper than corn. One or more acres should be planted on every farm every year.

Wheat, oats, rye, and barley make a good mixture for grazing and hay. When sown in September or October on good land, it may be grazed all the dry days from November 1 to March 1 and then hay may be harvested the latter part of May or the first of June.

There is hardly an end to the summer crop that can be grown for forage. Every farmer is entitled to his choice, and while sorghum and other crops produce an abundance of high-class food per acre we must not fail to keep in mind the fertility of the soil.

It is possible to have a rotation of very fine forage crops that will improve the soil. Cow peas, soy beans, peanuts, alfalfa, lespedeza and velvet beans are found to be a great help [illegible]

The results obtained when turning hogs, cattle, sheep and other stock into velvet beans after the corn is harvested are more than satisfactory.

The soy bean is probably the best annual legume to grow for forage in the cotton belt. Whether used as a hay, grain or for grazing it is a very valuable feed for live stock. Soy-bean hay is practically identical in feeding value with alfalfa, and yields from two to three tons per acre. The grain is more valuable than cottonseed meal as a supplementary feed in the production of pork, mutton, wool, beef, milk and butter. A bushel of soy beans is at least twice as valuable for feed as a bushel of corn.

Spanish peanuts will produce good crops on comparatively poor land, when well fertilized and cultivated. Prof. Duggar at the Alabama station found an acre of Spanish peanuts produced 600 pounds of live weight in hogs. This was after the tops had been cut with a mower and saved for hay. The growing of peanuts after oats and on other land, and the use of the mowing machine or the thresher and hay press, will promote the raising of good live stock and add much to the fertility of the soil.

Cow peas without grain usually give better results than other crops. One season a crop of peas grown on bottom land produced 488 pounds of pork per acre. Peas furnish most excellent grazing for all kinds of stock.

Milo maize, Kaffir corn, millet and other crops furnish excellent forage, but a crop of corn and cow peas, soy beans, peanuts, or velvet beans can be grown on the same land at the same time and furnishes a world of valuable feed and increases the fertility of the soil at the same time. This being true, let us call particular attention to the importance of cow peas, peanuts and soy beans planted in the corn at the last working as a factor in the production of large quantities of cheap forage. All kinds of stock can be turned into the field after the corn is harvested and will soon be rolling fat.

Every farmer who keeps as many as ten head of stock should build a silo. The cost is small. For filling the silo corn is king. The yield of corn on fertile soil is seldom under ten tons per acre, and often as high as 20 tons per acre.

No man can make the best use of forage crops without adequate fencing. Around every field run a woven wire fence 30 inches high, with two strands of barb wire above. Also use several hundred yards of the hurdle or portable fence to divide the fields into lots of any size. This fence is simple and cheaply made and can be stored under a shed until needed.

BEES ARE QUITE PROFITABLE

Honey Gatherers Are Only Producers on Farm That Yield Profit Without Cost of Feed.

(By WESLEY FORSTER, Colorado State Bee Inspector.)

If people knew what a great source of profit is found in the keeping of bees, and how interesting the work there wouldn't be an unused square foot of ground on any farm in the United States.

Bees are the only producers known to husbandry that yield a profit without cost of feed. They find their own pasture. They multiply so rapidly that they more than pay for the small initial expense of housing them, and the first cost of equipment is almost trifling.

Bee culture may be made profitable by the children of the farm, or by the women members of the family. It may be carried on successfully in connection with the keeping of poultry or growing of fruit. In the latter case, [illegible]

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS

ROADS PAY FOR THEMSELVES

Incidents Related Whereby Several Southern Farmers Profited by Improvements Made by State.

The direct effect that changing bad roads into good roads has upon land values and marketing prices, as well as the general economic welfare of the community, is shown in several concrete illustrations which were gathered by the United States department of agriculture. In Lee county, Virginia, a farmer owned 100 acres which he offered to sell for $1,800. In 1908 his road was improved, and although the farmer fought the improvement, he has since refused $3,000 for his farm. A near-by tract of 188 acres is said to have been sold for $6,000. After road improvement, the same farm was sold for $9,000. In Johnson county, Alabama, the people voted a bond issue for $250,000 for road improvement. The selling value at that time was $6 to $15 per acre. The selling price is now from $15 to $25 per acre.

In another state, two farmers living at equal distance from a cotton market learned by telephone that cotton had gone up in price one dollar per bale. The farmer on the bad road hauled one bale of cotton which was all he could get over that road. The other farmer on the good road was able to haul four bales. The man on the good road gained four dollars by the rise in price, while his neighbor on the bad road gained only one dollar. A farmer in Sullivan county, Tennessee, had 100 bushels of Irish potatoes which he intended to market during the winter. Owing to bad roads, he was unable to haul the potatoes at all. They rotted in the cellar. In the meantime, the price of potatoes at a market point went as high as $1.40 per bushel.

a pressure of about 150 pounds to the square inch, and at a temperature of from 100 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit, being sprayed through fine nozzles. Each spraying head comprises four nozzles. So applied, the tar will be more quickly absorbed by the road, penetrating to a considerable distance.

ROADS AND COST OF LIVING

Good Road Is Not Only Convenience and Pleasure, But Is an Actual Economic Necessity.

Until very recently the vast majority of people failed to understand that the good road is not a mere country dweller's convenience, or the means to motorists' pleasure, but that it is an actual economic necessity, says Suburban Life Magazine. That it costs the farmers of this country more for a ten-mile haul of produce from farm to town than it does to ship that produce from New York to London, is a fact. That it costs farmers abroad from one-half to one-tenth as much to haul a ton a mile on a road as it does the farmers of this country, is another fact. That practically every pound of flesh and bushel of wheat we consume must travel over a road at least once and sometimes twice before we eat it, is a third fact. The three are the answer to one part of the question. "Why does it cost so much to live?" Someone has to pay for the depreciation in the value of horses and vehicles caused by poor roads. Someone has to pay for the extra time it takes to haul cotton to market, when two mules are required to haul one bale on a mile in one day, when on a good road the same two mules could haul 24 bales in the same time with the same effort.

LAST WEEK'S INVASION

When the south-bound L. & N. train pulled up here Friday morning we were arroused by school yells, and other yells of a miscellaneous and sundry character, which bore no earmarks of organization, and no flavor of classic halls. Quite a crowd from Jemison were mingled with the three schools which came down from Thorsby to attend the county Fair. As the merry throng, full of young life and hope, rushed past our office, it inspired a thrill in older hearts, and made us wish to be a boy again. The teachers were acting as steering committee, and had everything well in hand. There was just enough authority in evidence to keep down any unseemly excesses, without exerting a stifling influence upon the gala occasion. We saw them later at the Fair grounds, where their bright clear eyes, their clean young lives, and their decorous deportment charmed us. It takes good school discipline, backed by good home training, to produce an output such as that. Our generally favorable impression of the excursion "en masse" was heightened by personal contact with a few of the excursionists. Mr. W. H. Cook a student of the Unity-Chilton Baptist High School, was the first to call, and his courteous visit was a real pleasure to the editor. From him we learned that about forty students from his school were in the party, and the following teachers:—N. W. Henson, H. L. Foshee, Miss Bonie Morton, and Miss Hattie Jones. He said the Thorsby Institute had about the same number in the party, with their teachers, and that the public school and its teachers were also largely represented.

Later, we were honored by a visit from Rev. E. W. Butler, pastor of the Congregational church, and also proffessor of mathematics in the Institute. We found him to be a charming man, in a social way, and we shall never be satisfied until we see him at work in the school room, as we promised to do. He contributes an article to this issue of the Press, which shows him to be a well equipped man, with skill, and aptitude, as well as taste for his chosen work.

Mr. A. K. Horn, a druggist, and influencial business man of Thorsby, also called.

"When it rains, it pours," it is said, and I am certainly experiencing a deluge of delightful social privileges, for this writing was most pleasantly interrupted by the advent of Rev. Dr. Sherman H. Herbert, president of Thorsby Institute. The sturdy old Congregational church does not operate in many sections of our state, but where it has ever gone it is celebrated for the conspicuous service which it renders to education and to foreign missions. The moral and religious natures of our youth, as well as their intellectual powers, ought to unfold and ripen into model characters, under the care and tuition of these elegant Christian gentlemen.

But here comes Prof. Herbert again, piloting another cloud with a silver lining, big with brain-born blessings, in the charming person of Prof. J. S. Thomas, of our great State University. He is professor of secondary education, but his is not a secondary work, and he is not a secondary man. He is also State High School inspector, and is bringing things to pass.

Well, it's worth being an impecunious editor, with corns on his pen-finger, with holes in his elbows, and patches in unmentionable places, just to be in position to breathe the intoxicating ozone which eminates from such associations, and to come in personal contact with such truly royal personages.

But wait, Mr. printer, here is another Thorsby man. It is Rev. W. M. Olive, pastor of the Baptist church, and also connected with school work. This Christian gentleman did for us all that was done by the visitors who preceded him and a great deal more, for he left his subscription for the Press. I would be glad to know that our paper was to carry with it such blessings as these departing friends have left behind them upon this heart and life.

Improved Facilities and Increased Expenses

"We have had to meet rate reductions, increased cost of labor, increased cost of material, and demands from a luxurious people for better facilities, all of which has created a problem that is most difficult to solve, because there are only one hundred cents in a railroad dollar, just like in any other dollar."

The above quotation is from a statement made by a railroad president to his stockholders. The remarks were made right in the bosom of the railroad family, and were never intended for public circulation. They, however, illustrate to a slight extent the problem which now confronts the railroad official from the stockholder's point of view.

Of course, the average individual thinks little and cares less about the welfare of a stockholder in a railroad. What the average individual wants is quick and dependable transportation at the lowest possible rate—the lower the rate the better it suits him.

And many average individuals are exerting every effort to force a reduction in rates, while hundreds of thousands of railroad stockholders want to know what's the matter with dividends. The railroad official, try as he will, can stretch a railroad dollar into no more than one hundred cents.

Consequently thousands of stockholders have become disgruntled and dumped their holdings on the market. Prices have become depressed, and it has been difficult at times to protect standard securities.

If the people throughout the territory were adequate railroad facilities, with a margin for development and extension, they must be willing to permit the railroad to make a fair return on the stockholder's investment. The stockholder is entitled to a fair return, just as you are entitled to interest on your savings bank balance, just as you are entitled to profit on your crop, your manufactured article, or on your stock of merchandise which you buy and sell.

Every time the public demands a pair of $3.00 shoes instead of $2.50 shoes, the public must pay $3 calls more.

But the public demands improved facilities and more luxurious conveniences in the railroads; labor gains have advanced, cost of material has advanced, and

GROW APPLES

One of the most be tiful things saw at our Fair, was the large apples in the agricultural de- ment. There are none in the w-windows of our shops to ss them, and they were n in Chilton county. I am med that it is the custom of grower to store them for win- use, and that they are good ers. "What others have done may do," is an old proverb from the Ancient Greek, and as it is old. The success of grower may be due to the soil ted. Red clay is best for ap- in this latitude, and it should made rich with stable manure wood ashes. Moist land is if well drained, as our apples rally meet their Waterloo in g to carry a crop of fruit gh our June drouths. am inclined to think that the s of this grower is due in a degree to the fact that he selected varieties which are adapted to our conditions, and ould be well to learn from Mr. B. Lowe, (for he is the man, I), where these trees are to d. One variety is the Yates, the othar the Ben Davis, I am . The wisest thing to do d be to propagate these very s, which have succeeded so right here where they have eeded, and can succeed. Any who can chop cotton can graft s, or bud peaches and pecans, u give him the same opportu- to learn it. The truth is that ur schools, in town and coun- should teach grafting and ing. It affords out-door ment, is more attractive foot-ball, and is not so dan- s. I make this suggestion, hope that the children will cry . That is the way we young- have of getting what we . That is the way I came to a fruit farm. My boys learn- bud, and then teased me in- ying some land to set their on. Every boy and girl in on county should have an ap- to eat, not every time he goes wn, but three times every day tays at home,, or goes to ol. Any one of them would y swap his lunch for ple. Now old folks tell us we crave trash, but apples ot trash. They are food, and ger for them, don't you? I ot the craving, but stating a iological fact. We children r bread and you give us a , or at least a refusal, which seems quite as hard, and as isfying. Just as you store for the horse, and hay for w, you should store fruit e children, and hence, should it.

rthermore our Clanton shop ows should blaze with the of Chilton county grown and the clean, cold cash it should stand to the farm- redit in a Chilton county I plead for the farmer ead for the child, d for the bank. Grow . We can never be all that ght to be, as a great people, t fruit, for even the intel- l and spiritual character have ical basis.

It will be impossible to give this school to our youth who are poor without at the same time making it a blessing to those who do not really need it. To doom your own child to ignorance in order to prevent others from profiting by his enlightenment is to "Cut off your nose to spite your face."

The town of Clanton gains much by the presence of your county court house, but it would be foolish to move the court house off to some distant corner, on some spring branch, merely because it would put Clanton to some inconvenience for it would put most of the county to still greater inconvenience and expense. The school is for the county and not for Clanton, and if another place would be accessible and more convenient than Clanton for the people of the county, then school should be located at that place by all means.

This is an irrigating scheme, whose purpose is to carry the streams of knowledge to those who are in poverty only because they are in ignorance. The real object of our care is not the rank growth of weeds along the banks of the canal which conveys the stream, but the thirsty plants spread out over the field beyond, from which the harvest must come. We must give the country boy what he needs and thirsts for even if we are forced, at same time, to give an unneeded and undeserved mite to the town chap.

MAPLESVILLE

The festivities of Halloween were never so thoroughly enjoyed by the social set of Maplesville as was the occasion of the last celebration. Several were summoned to the home of Miss Minnie Branch, that charming hostess whose fame has no equal, where they were greeted upon entrance with huge Jack O'Lanterns cut from pumpkins. Upon being escorted into her home, one was greeted by wierd spectacles, such as witches riding brooms, black cats, etc. Games were enjoyed during the evening until an alarm was sounded in the rear of the house and upon investigation, we found a large table, groaning beneath the weight of good things. In the center was a large pumpkin with black and yellow ribbon protruding. Each guest was bade pull a piece of ribbon, to the end of which was attached his prize for the evening. Dr. Potts was fortunate in securing the money, while Mr. Woods was the lucky fellow in drawing the ring. Much to the delight of all the thimble was not drawn, and ancient history tells us that none of the party will be an "Old Maid." Various and sundry were the articles drawn from this pumpkin and quite a few laughs were had in exhibiting the prizes secured. The table was covered with fruits of every description and the whole affair was one of fruits, in keeping with the season.

The gowns worn by the ladies were most exquisite. Miss Branch, the charming hostess, was arrayed in a blue poplin gown; Mrs. Northrup was tastefully dressed in a black crepe de chine made over red satin; Mrs. Whiteselle wore a white voile gown elaborately embroidered; Mrs. Hull had on a black satin gown while Mrs. Potts wore a pink messaline; Mrs. Sanderson was tastefully gowned in an old rose messaline gown, while Miss Allison wore a bronze silk; Miss Orr was beautifully gowned in a grey voil with Bulgarian trimmings.

Those who enjoyed the hospitality of Miss Branch were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Whiteselle, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Sanderson, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Northrup, Dr. and Mrs. V. B. AN ENDORSEMENT

Editor Press:

I want to endorse what Mr. Horn said in last week's issue of your paper in regard the county Fair. It is unfortunate that the good features of the Fair should be marred by a half dozen gambling tables—and gambling of the worst sort.

We think it bad enough when some of our citizens gamble over a game of cards out in some old out house in the dark shades of the night, but this, at the county Fair, in open day-light, in the most public of places, and in a manner that is nothing short of robery, is a great deal worse. And yet, they are not only permitted, but granted a privilege license to run gaming tables at our Fair, and allowed to occupy the most conspicuous locations.

If we can't have a Fair without these things, I am in favor of disbanding and let's stay at home. It is my opinion that the bad has overbalanced the good. If we can't do BETTER let's STOP.

HUERTA MUST RESIGN AT ONCE

SUCH IS TENOR OF FINAL DECREE OF UNITED STATES TO MEXICO.

GIVE ONE OF TWO ANSWERS

Must Resign Office Immediately or Refuse to Comply With Demands of United States.

Mexico City.—President Huerta has been told he must resign the presidency of Mexico without loss of time and that he must not leave as his successor Gen. Aureliano Blanquet, his minister of war, or any other member of his official family or of the unofficial coterie whom he might be expected to control.

This ultimatum from Washington was conveyed to President Huerta through his private secretary, Senor Rabago, by Nelso O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, acting under instructions from the state department.

Senor Rabago presented the memorandum to his chief November 3, but up to the present President Huerta had returned no answer and as far as could be learned, had guarded its contents from almost all of his official and intimate counsellors.

Those who learned of the Washington note regard General Huerta's position as one in which he will be forced to give one of two answers—refusal point blank to comply with the demand, possibly going so far as to hand the diplomatic representative his passports, or the elimination of himself officially.

Those most intimate with the President insist that latter course will not be taken for many reasons, chief among which is that such action would be tantamount to submission to the rebels. Official Mexico is no longer in doubt that the Washington administration favors the rebel cause, and is convinced that this is the means adopted by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan to assist Carranza to win.

General Huerta summoned to the national palace the diplomatic corps, but for what purpose was not revealed. Three of the ministers, those of Germany, Norway and Russia, were absent. They have been in Vera Cruz, where they were in conference with President Wilson's representative, John Lind, who is understood to be fully conversant with the latest representations from Washington.

Changes in the military situation throughout the country included, according to the report, the advance of the rebels to attack Zacatecas, but the government believes that the garrison there is sufficiently strong to resist an attack successfully.

Queretaro, capital of the state of the same name, on the main line of the National railway, south of San Luis Potosi, is surrounded by rebels and particularly in a state of siege. North of San Luis Potosi a new method has been adopted by therebels to prevent the operation of trains. Placards addressed to railroad employes have been posted notifying them they will be hanged if they attempt to run the trains. As a result the men are refusing to take them out.

REAL WILD WEST SCENE.

One Man Killed and Several Injured When 12 Steers Break Loose In New York.

New York.—A tragedy of the wild west with all its attendant thrills was staged in the streets of this city. One man was shot to death and several were injured when 12 steers, fresh from the western plains, broke loose and raced wildly through the streets, throwing hundreds into panic.

The terror was increased by pursuing policemen, charging the steers on horseback and in automobiles and shooting to kill the frenzied animals. More than 100 shots were fired before the chase ended and one of the stray bullets hit and killed Ged Bettie, a watchman. Some of the animals were shot down and killed; others were trapped and taken back to the stock yards, but several are still loose in the city and the entire police force is searching for them.

While they were being transferred from the car in which they came to a little stock yards along the Hudson river at West Sixtieth street, they were frightened by the rumbling of the elevated trains and stampeded.

All but four of the steers were killed.

Jackson, Miss.—For the first time in the history of the Mississippi supreme court the judges looked down from their bench upon a case dressed in widow's weeds and there on plead his own cause. The prisoner, J. B. Bennett, a former sheriff, was sent up for two years, has served two years of a 10-year sentence for blackjacking a man who had sued him for debt. He pleaded that a former court which had cured in collusion to freedom his case. Bennett came by his evidence to prove his innocence.

RARE PRESENCE OF MIND

At Least It Is to Be Supposed Young Lady's Mother Regarded It as Such.

Speaking of rare presence of mind recently recalled to ex-President Taft the case of a handsome young woman of his acquaintance. She had gone to the railway station to meet a man friend of the family, and when he debarked from the train the young man lost his hear and impulsively kissed her. The girl thought it the part of prudence to tell her mother of the affair, upon which the latter was simply horrified.

"You don't mean to tell me that he had the impudence to kiss you?" she cried. "And to think of the crowd at the station! Why, my dear, what did you do in such an embarrassing situation?"

"Why, mother, I just kissed him back, of course," coolly replied the young woman. "I wanted to give all those people the impression that we were relatives."—The Sunday Magazine.

"Why, I remember when it was considered immodest for a woman to arrange her coiffure so as to show her ears. We have advanced.

"We have advanced, but we haven't advanced as far as the jokesmiths and cartoonists would pretend.

"'Doctor,' said a pretty girl—so runs the latest joke—doctor, I want you to vaccinate me, please, where it won't show.'

ANOTHER SIDE TO MATTER

One Man Has Discovered That Offering Floral Bouquets to the Living Is Not All Joy.

"There has been a good deal in the paragraph section of our exchanges for some weeks to the effect that you should give the bouquets now; not wait to lay them on the coffin lid," says Tom Thompson in the Howard Courant. Ella Wheeler before she was a Wilcox wrote a poem on that theme; Chancellor Bradford at the chautauqua dinged it into us, and most of us have been affected by it. But, say, my brother-sister, have you tried it yet? I have—twice. First, I tried on a very dear friend of the other sex, and she began to get nervout like she thought I was trying to flirt with her. Then I quit, for I am pre-eminently no flirt. Next I tried it on a brother in my lodge and Sunday school, and he shied off like he expected me to ask him for a loan. So after this I shall water my flower beds and raise nice bouquets for funeral occasions exclusively. Very few people know how to receive floral offerings, anyway.—Kansas City Star.

Peculiar Belief.

Two centuries have passed since the Scottish judge Lord Monboddo was born. In his "Origin and Progress of Language" he argued that human beings should be studied like other animals; but this doctrine seemed to the contemporaries of Dr. Johnson so ridiculous that the wags based many a jest upon it. His belief that men got rid of their tails by sitting upon them would now scarcely raise a smile among anthropologists. Among his more startling propositions was the earnestly maintained one that the ourang-outang "was a class of the human species, and that its want of speech was merely accidental."

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT, BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Make It Thick, Glossy, Wavy, Luxuriant and Remove Dandruff—Real Surprise for You.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store and just try it. Adv.

What So Precious As a Healthy Baby?

Every Youngster Can Have Fine Digestion if Given a Good Baby Laxative.

In spite of the greatest personal care and the most intelligent attention to diet, babies and children will become constipated, and it is a fact that constipation and indigestion have wrecked many a young life. To start with a good digestive apparatus is to start life without handicap.

But, as we cannot all have perfect working bowels, we must do the next best thing and acquire them, or train them to become healthy. This can be done by the use of a laxative-tonic very highly recommended by a great many mothers. The remedy is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and has been on the market for two generations. It can be bought conveniently at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, and those who are already convinced of its merits buy the dollar size.

Its mildness makes it the ideal medicine for children, and it is also very pleasant to the taste. It is sure in its effect, and genuinely harmless. Very little of it is required and its frequent use does not cause it to lose its effect, as is the case with so many other remedies.

Thousands can testify to its merits in constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headaches, etc., among them reliable people like Mrs. James R. Rouse, of Marinette, Wis. Her little son Howard was fifteen months old last April, but he was sick with bowel trouble from birth and suffered intensely. Since Mrs. Rouse has been giving him Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin all trouble has disappeared and the boy is becoming robust.

Thousands keep Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, for every member of the family can use it from infancy to old age. The users of Syrup Pepsin have learned to avoid cathartics, salts, mineral waters, pills and other harsh remedies for they do but temporary good and are a shock to any delicate system.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

A GAY LOTHARIO

Jemison sent in a lot of happy visitors during Fair week, but our time was taken up with Mr. W. H. Killingsworth, one of the well-to-do farmers of that section, and a very entertaining fellow, to be sure. He has made a good crop, is satisfied with prices, will sow oats mixed with vetch, and may be expected to make the landing in good shape. A new railroad station, called Kalona, has been established where the L. & N. passes through his place, and we expect him to soon have a little town of his own.

Mr. Killingsworth got a little gay while he was over here, and rendered valuable assistance to a lady who was selling tickets to raffle a cake. Together they sold a large lot of chances, but in the midst of the rush of business the cake itself disappeared, and some uncharitably disposed persons solemnly assert that Mr. Killingsworth "took the cake." The lady's friends may be expected to lobby a bill through the next session of the General Assembly changing his name from Killingsworth to "Worthkilling," unless by some compromise or other, the lady's name may be changed in a satisfactory manner at an early date.

Our Policies

One of the livest topics of conversation and discussion in the state for a number of years has been the service, policies and plans of the L. & N. We have attempted to inform the people of our interest in extensions and improvements, and of our activities along industrial and agricultural lines.

It is practically impossible to reach all of the people with all of the information. We have made use of the newspapers of the state to conduct an advertising campaign, telling of our plans and seeking the co-operation of the general public. Unfortunately, not all of our advertisements have been read by all of the people. Fortunately, a sufficient number of farmers, manufacturers and merchants have read of our endeavors to keep us busy.

But we have by no means let up in our work of development and improvement. Every day gangs of men go out over the L. & N. system grading for extension of main line or spur track; they are making preparations for roadbed, while workmen in other departments are making preparations for rolling stock and other equipment.

Our industrial and agricultural experts are cooperating in an effort to locate industries along the lines of the L. & N. and to improve and promote agricultural yield.

We are determined that L. & N. equipment shall be such as will supply L. & N. service, which has become traditional for its excellence. Different people have different ideas of how to carry on work of this character, but the hundreds of merchants, farmers and manufacturers to whom we have rendered service will testify to the satisfactory results produced.

We want to work with and for the people of the state for the profitable development of the state. Our property is located within the borders of the state, subject to the needs of the people of the state. We believe the people will recognize the superiority of our service and accord us their patronage in the shape of passenger travel and freight shipments.

Ask any L. & N. agent concerning routes and rates. He will cheerfully render any assistance in his power.

DIVERSIFICATION ON SOUTHERN FARMS

Cotton Belt to Raise Live Stock Must Have Pastures.

PASTURES FOR FARM ANIMALS

Very Few Farmers Have Compared Benefit to Be Derived From Acre of Cotton and Acre of Bermuda Grass, Lespedeza and Clover.

(By G. H. ALFORD.)

If the cotton belt is to raise hogs, mules, horses, cattle, sheep and so on successfully under present land and labor conditions, it must resort to pastures and cheap hays. If it is to produce the necessary quantity and quality of all kinds of live stock it must devote more and better land to pastures and meadows.

Many formers in the south prize wheat, corn, oats, cotton, rice, and cane as crops because their growth has become a habit. Very few farmers have compared the profit derived from an acre of cotton and an acre of Bermuda grass, lespedeza and some winter clover. On many farms the growing of cotton represents a loss instead of a profit. On many farms in the south the growing of leguminous crops for two or three years until the worn-out cotton lands will grow good grass and the seeding of the land in Bermuda grass grazing of pure bred hogs, sheep, cattle and goats, horses and mules will result in big profits instead of the loss sustained by the growing of cotton on the same land year after year. Senator Ingalls said: "Next in importance to the divine profusion of water, light and air—those three physical facts which render existance possible—may be recorded the universal beneficence of grass." Ingalls told the whole truth, but few farmers in the south believe what he said. Not one farmer in a thousand fully appreciates the full value of a good, permanent pasture. The most properous counties in England owe their prosperous agriculture to the magnificent pastures. The blue grass regions of Kentucky has done much to cause our farmers to appreciate grass to some extent. There are sections of Tennessee and Virginia where the successful growing of fine stock has helped Kentucky to gain friends for grass.

We firmly believe that we are telling the truth when we say that the main cause of the lack of prosperity on southern farms is the absence of good, permanent pastures. We have turned out a worn, gullied cotton field, stretched two or three barbed wires around it and called it our pasture. Not a furrow was turned, not a seed was sown. No wonder that our pastures are often referred to a "a place where grass does not grow."

A good pasture is made by thoroughly preparing very fertile soil and seeding it to the right kind of mixed grasses, so that every square foot of it is well covered with nutritious grasses instead of broomsedge briars and weeds. The large majority of us have never had a good, permanent pasture and therefore base our conclusions on the value of a permanent pasture on our experience with a pasture where grass does not grow. We have never yet valued a thoroughly goor, permanent pasture high enough.

There are, of course, pastures without grass, such as pastures of cow peas, soy beans, peanuts, velvet beans, oats, and so forth, but there are temporary pastures and last for only a short time. Of course, we must have such temporary pastures in order to succeed in the live stock business, but the subject before us just at present is a good, permanent pasture full of nutritious grasses and clover. We are talking about taking land and thoroughly preparing it and fertilizing it with acid phosphate and planting it in cow peas, soy beans, lespedeza, peanuts or some other good leguminous crop for one or two years and then seeding it in Bermuda grass, crimson clover, hair clover and white clover and lespedeza for pure bred hogs, cattle, horses, mules, sheep and other live stock to graze.

The best pasture grass for the south is Bermuda. We are growing corn and cotton on poor soil to feed a few scrub stock to obtain the necessary cash to pay the expenses. We are not able to say just what is the dressing best of productive of an acre of cotton or cotton, but the cost of production to an acre of Bermuda grass and fertile soil is a fence and a gate to spin the stock in. The stock will harvest the grass and deposit their droppings per cost an acre profit.

Bermuda grass is the most widely distributed grass in the warm temperate regions throughout the world. It is widely distributed throughout the cotton belt and holds the place in those states that Kentucky blue grass holds in the north. It is a warm weather grass. It will not grow in cold weather and usually winter kills when the temperature fall much below the zero point.

It is primarily a pasture grass and is relished by all kinds of stock. It will stand close grazing and much tramping. It also makes hay of excellent quality, but it will not grow tall enough to mow except on very fertile soil. On fertile soil under favorable conditions, it often furnishes two or three cuttings, yielding in a season from two to four tons of hay per acre.

Since it furnishes no late fall or early spring pasture, summer and winter clovers and vetches must be added to the sod or other grasses, or animal pasture crops must be grown, in order to supply continuous grazing

We Must Grow More Grass

WHY?

To Maintain Farm Fertility.
To Cheapen Animal Production.

HOW?

Drain Wet Places.
Keep Weeds Out.
Sow Alsike in Low Places.
Reseed Thin Areas With Clover.
Rotate if Possible.
Use the Manure Spreader.

for stock. We can mix lespedeza, white, crimson, burr clovers and the vetches with Bermuda and they will grow well together. We can also mix orchard grass, tall oat grass and the red top with Bermuda. But putting lespedeza on the Bermuda sod to assist in furnishing summer pasture and winter clovers, or a vetch on it to furnish some winter and early spring grazing, we can supply continuous grazing for our stock and at the same enrich our land.

Sow lespedeza seed on Bermuda sod in February or early March; sow the winter clovers or vetch seed in September and October. When the seed are sown on a heavy sod, it is usually necessary to disk it in order to insure germination of the seed at an early date.

Bermuda may be propogated both from seed and root cuttings. The seed method is not recommended except where it is very difficult to secure pieces of sod. Plow the land deep and disk and harrow until it is fine. Lay off rows about two feet apart and four inches deep with shovel plows. Drop small pieces of the sod every two feet in the furrows and cover with a harrow. A drag or light roller will put the finishing touches on the job. The sodding of the land may be done at any time during the year.

When we have made our hill land fertile by deep plowing, the addition of commercial fertilizers and the growing of leguminous crops, and have thoroughly sodded them in Bermuda grass and summer and winter clovers, we can cut out some of our unprofitable labors, substituting good hogs, brood mares, cattle and furnish the the hands, labor-saving implements and strong teams to till the more level acres on the farm.

The pasture lands should not only be fertile, thoroughly prepared and preporly fertilized before sodding it in grass, but the briars, brush and weeds must be kept down and the grasses fertilized and cultivated every two or three years. Where lespedeza or some winter clover, or both, grow on Bermuda sod it will not be necessary to apply nitrogen except to the poorer spots.

It will usually pay to apply a light dressing of phosphate once every two years where the soil responds to acid phosphates. On some sandy soils it will pay to apply potash every two years. The use of a disk harrow on the Bermuda sod every two years will cause it to take on new life.

We must not permit stock to graze the pastures too close. If we keep the leaves of any plant constantly cut it will finally die. It is a most excellent plan to have two pastures and never graze one more than a week at a time.

Let us urge the farmers of the cotton belt, especially those to the east of the boll weevil line, to put a large per cent of the cotton land in grass. We have a great variety of grasses to choose from, such as Bermuda, blue grass, meadow foxtail, orchard grass, red top, meadow fescu, alsike clover, tall oat grass.

Money invested in thoroughly good permanent pastures is like money invested in government bonds.

Keeping Sheep in Condition.

Pastoring sheep is expensive and often unsatisfactory, unless the symptoms of the disease are clearly understood. If the sheep are not exposed to bad weather in the late fall and are given proper care and feed there is not much show for disease to be brought in from other flocks. With sheep an ounce of prevention is considerably more than a pound of cure.

Sow Rapeseed.

Plenty of cattle feed can be grown on small areas of land by sowing rapeseed broadcast at the rate of 5 pounds per acre. Sow in the spring or fall.

STATE LAND CONGRESS HOLDS MEETING

PROMINENT MEN IN VARIOUS WALKS OF LIFE ENDEAVOR TO SOLVE PROBLEMS OF ALABAMA FARMERS

SUBJECT OF RURAL CREDITS DISCUSSED AT LENGTH

Much Good is Expected to Result From Meeting—Aim of Congress is Development of Alabama's Great Resources.

Birmingham. — The Alabama Land Congress met here November 4 and continued in session up to and including November 6th.

Nearly every farmer engaged in agriculture on an extensive scale was present, while many educators took part in the discussions and as many as six railroad presidents and a number of other railroad officials, together with others in various walks of life, participated in the proceedings of the congress.

In addition to the inauguration of a practical plan for securing more settlers for the idle lands of the state the Land Congress considered many other questions of vital importance to the progress of Alabama. Among the most important questions discussed was rural credits and equalization in assessment and collection of taxes.

The results accrued from the land congress, which passed into history with its closing session will, it is believed, give a renewed impetus to the upbuilding of the agricultural section of Alabama.

Speakers of Prominence

Among the speakers who delivered addresses was Hon. Oscar Underwood, who delivered an address before the congress on the subject of "The High Cost of Living and the Remedy."

The addresses of W. W. Finley, president of the Southern Railway Company, and the paper by Milton H. Smith, president of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, were interesting, the latter gave a resume of what that road has done in the development of the state of Alabama over a period of forty years.

Other speakers of equal prominence discussed practical subjects relating to the soils, crops and conditions, while some of the yields that have been made were shown, among which was the startling fact that aside from cotton the farmers of Alabama are showing remarkable progress and diversification is going on from one end of the state to the other with far more satisfactory returns than under the old methods of only one crop—cotton.

Address by Burnett.

One of the most important features of the first day's session of the congress was the address by John L. Burnett, chairman of the committee on immigration and naturalization, House of Representatives. Mr. Burnett addressed the delegates on the subject, "Immigration—the Kind Alabama Needs."

Congressman Burnett's views on immigration and those of the land congress are in exact accord. It has been the policy of the land congress since its inception to secure selected immigration, more preferably those classes of farmers who are going in thousands every year from the northwestern United States into Canada, and buying their own homes in that frozen section of bleak winters and extreme heat in summer. These men are already American citizens, already assimilated with the American people, and they are hard workers, intelligent and have means to buy their lands. If labor is desired, it is the principle of the land congress that care be exercised in securing those classes of foreign immigrants coming to the shores of the United States, and not permit the pouring into Alabama of countless hordes of immigrants, accepted indiscriminately from the great belching maw of every foreign clime.

Burnett's Immigration Bill.

Congressman Burnett's ideas as to immigration aim at the same end. For this purpose he introduced a bill into the last congress restricting immigration for the entire country, requiring a literacy test of every immigrant permitted to enter. This bill passed both houses of congress, but was vetoed by President Taft on account of the literacy clause. Recent dispatches from Washington contain the information that Mr. Burnett's bill will be re-introduced into the approaching session of congress, and that it is believed President Wilson will sign the measure, making it the law of the land. The immigration question is attracting wide attention at this time. It has gotten beyond the status of a state issue. It is now looked upon as one of the great national issues before the people, and is being supported by all progressive thinkers along politico-economic lines regardless of politics. Congressman Gardner, republican, of Massachusetts, one of Mr. Burnett's ablest supporters, is now running for governor of Massachusetts, and has made restricted immigration, in conformity with the requirements of Mr. Burnett's bill, one of the cardinal planks in his platform. It is stated that President Wilson is strongly in favor of Mr. Burnett's viewpoint as to immigration.

Maintain Special Department

It is the intention and purpose of the land congress to maintain a special department to serve the wants of the state in securing labor in the shape of foreign immigrants. There is a demand all over the state for more dependable labor than the present shiftless class of negroes, who in certain localities will work only as the notion strikes them, permitting the crops to become lost in the field. It is claimed by some of the large farm operators that with a desirable class of labor, one accustomed to hard work and thrift, in competition with the negro, labor conditions would soon be relieved, and hundreds of thousands of dollars that are permitted to go to waste in crops unable to be harvested each year will be saved to the state.

The land congress is amply able to meet the wants of the state not only for securing more farmers to settle the idle lands and become citizens of Alabama, but to furnish them with all the labor necessary for success in their farming operations.

Rural Credits Discussed.

Rural credits, so important to the agricultural development of Alabama, was discussed by three able exponents before the land congress. F. W. Monnish, member from Alabama of the American commission that went to Europe, made a report to the delegates, and gave his ideas as to the solution of the question as applicable in a practical manner to Alabama. He was followed by W. P. G. Harding, president of the First National Bank of Birmingham, who is recognized as an authority on the subject, having given it years of study and investigation, and Governor O'Neal, likewise a deep thinker on the same subject.

The management of the land congress claims that when Alabama can say in all verity to the farmer of the frozen North, of the over-populated sections and high-priced lands of the West and Middle West. "Come to Alabama, and we will give you cheap land, land that will grow anything from 237 bushels of corn on one acre by a 14-year-old boy, to eight bales of cotton on one acre by a 75-year-old ex-slave, and at the same time give you cheap money to develop these wonderful lands," then, indeed, will Aabama come into her own as first not only in the roll call of the States of the Union, but first in material resources as well.

Many Bankers Attend.

The importance of the question of rural credits, especially to the banking interests of the state brought many bankers from all parts of Alabama to the congress.

Another very live subject handled by the congress was the equalization in collection and assessment of taxes. An interesting and instructive address on this question delivered by E. Q. Norton of Daphne, Alabama, who was appointed last year at the Mobile meeting of the congress as chairman of a special committee to present to the Alabama legislature the matter of "local option" in taxation for schools and good roads.

Henry Upson Sims Speaks.

Henry Upson Sims gave the result of his investigations of a financial plan that will apply to the cities of Alabama, as well as to the state at large.

It is believed that the action of the land congress on this all-important subject of taxation will be the policy of the state, as it will be supported by a strong sentiment for some better plan than what is now in vogue.

A subject that proved of keen interest to the many progressive farmers in attendance from every section of the state was the discussion of "Legumes and Their Value," by R. E. Lambert, proprietor of the Lambert Stock and Feed Farm, of Darlington, Wilcox county. Mr. Lambert addressed the congress at its Mobile meeting last year, taking as his subject, "A Carpet of Green," and it was the consensus of opinion of his audience that no other subject discussed before that meeting was of greater interest or value.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver and bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Adv.

Perpetual Motion.

One may well be sure that there is no "perpetual motion machine." For this purpose machines have been constructed from time immemorial, but nothing has ever come of it. Men have gone mad on the subject, but without any practical results. It was demonstrated long ago by Sir Isaac Newton and De la Hire that perpetual motion is impossible of attainment. Even the solar system, the most wonderful machine of which we have and knowledge, will run down in the course of time, some say in about 11,000,000 of years from now.

OTHERS SLEPT SHE WORKED

While Others Were Fast Asleep, Mrs. Sanders Would Often Get Out of Bed and Do Sewing.

Cadiz, Ky.—"I was in a terrible condition, caused from nervousness," says Mrs. Boon Sanders, of this place. "At times, last spring and summer, I did not get any rest at night; could not sleep at all. Very often I would get out of my bed and do some of my sewing, while the rest of the family were fast asleep.

One of my lady friends advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. Just as soon as I commenced taking it, I began resting better. After taking four bottles, I now feel better, and get perfect rest and plenty of sleep. I am doing every bit of my housework now, and although I am small, I feel very strong in every way.

You may publish this letter if you wish, and I hope all women, who suffer as I did, will try Cardui and get relief."

If you are nervous, run-down, discouraged, fagged out, don't give up—try Cardui, the woman's tonic. This great medicine has been used for more than half a century by thousands and thousands of women, and has been found to be a specific, building medicine for nearly all the ills from which women suffer.

Cardui, being composed of harmless vegetable ingredients, cannot possibly harm you, and is almost certain to help you. Try it.

All druggists sell Cardui.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Don't Look Old! Try Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Gray, Faded, Lifeless Hair.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

THOUSANDS APPLY FOR CERTIFICATES

HARDLY MORE THAN HALF OF THE TEACHERS SUCCESSFULLY PASS.

EXAMINER HODGES' REPORT

Successful Applicants for Life Certificates, 199 White, and 5 Colored.

Montgomery.—More than 10,000 men and women of the state took examinations for teachers' certificates during the past fiscal year, according to figures compiled by P. W. Hodges, secretary of the board of examiners of the educational department. The figures compiled by Mr. Hodges will be incorporated in the annual report of the department, which will be issued in the next few weeks.

During the fiscal year three examinations were held, in December, 1912, and in April and July of the present year. The greatest number of applicants appeared at the July examinations, when 4,037 candidates tried for licenses. Out of this number there were 3,124 white applicants and 913 colored.

In December, 1912, there were 2,337 applicants, of which 1,688 were white and 649 colored, and in April of this year there were 3,921 applicants, 3,002 being white and 919 colored.

The percentage of successful applicants during the year is rather small, hardly more than one-half passing the examination at any one time. The figures are as follows for the successful applicants: December, 1912, white, 823; colored, 402; April, 1913, white, 1,377; colored, 448; July, 1913, white, 1,484; colored, 464.

The total number of successful applicants for life certificates during the year was 199 white and 5 colored, while the percentage of successful applicants for first grade certificates was hardly any better, being 288 white and 3 colored. For the second grade certificates there were 1,131 successful white applicants and 164 colored. The applicants for the third grade far outnumbered the other grades combined, there having been 2,063 white and 1,162 colored.

FILES BILL TO OUST RAILROAD

Failure to Pay Franchise Tax Alleged in Proceedings Against Atlantic Coast Line by Commonwealth.

Montgomery.—Proceedings to oust the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, as a corporation, from Alabama were filed in the Montgomery Circuit Court by the State, represented by Daniel W. Troy and R. B. Evins, special counsel. The State asks that the railroad be cited to appear before the court and show by what authority and warrant it has exercised its franchises and has transacted business as a corporation in Alabama and to show why it should not be excluded from further business transactions in this State.

Action by the attorneys for the State was taken under Section 2440 of the State Code. It is said that this case will have a bearing on other railroads in Alabama which are said to have been transacting business in this State as corporations, but which have not paid the franchise tax as required by the Code. If the State is successful in showing that the railroads have not been paying the proper franchise taxes it will mean that a large sum of money is due the State and must be paid over by the railroads.

Montgomery.—Rural school conditions in Sumter County are good and the citizens of that section of the State are progressing rapidly in educational matters, according to a report filed in the Department of Education by Prof. N. Local physicians and members of the Walker county board of health will co-operate with the state officials in the campaigns. Reports from Dr. Sanders received at the state health department indicate that the health campaigns conducted recently in Limestone and Lauderdale counties were highly successful.

Fear for Safety of Negro.

Mobile.—Following his arrest in connection with the shooting of three white men at Daphne, in Baldwin county, Billy Slater, a negro, was rushed to Bay Minette, the county seat, for safekeeping, Sheriff Richerson fearing mob violence. Two other negroes are also in custody, but the authorities state that Slater ambushed the men as he had quarreled with them earlier in the day. J. J. Middleton, Stan Andrews and Jeff Middleton are all seriously wounded.

CONVICT BUREAU O. K.

Flattering Report on Department Submitted to Governor.

Montgomery. — Alabama's convict department is making more money and the convicts are better treated than ever before in its history, according to a report of an examination of the affairs of the convict department made by J. T. Gorman, examiner of public accounts, which was filed with Governor O'Neal. Examiner Gorman gives a detailed statement of the receipts and disbursements during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1913, during the administration of Governor O'Neal and during the period in which Hartwell Douglass has served as head of the department.

In his report the examiner compliments the work accomplished under the administration of Mr. Douglass and declares that since the new rules, prepared by Governor O'Neal, Mr. Douglass and the board of inspectors, were adopted, the convicts have been more humanely treated and better sanitary conditions have been maintained.

"Since March 1, 1913, there has been a decided improvement in the business methods of the department," says the examiner.

Receipts for the fiscal year exceeded the disbursements by $401,953. The receipts for the year totalled $1,131,207. From March 1, 1913, to September 30, 1913, the receipts exceeded the disbursements by $288,070. There is $24,844 due the department, of which $12,323 is owed by the Red Feather Coal Company of Bibb County, and $5,954 by the Thole-Philips Company of Florence. Examnier Gorman recommends that suit be brought against the companies by the attorney general, unless settlement is made at once.

On September 30 there were 2,469 convicts held by the state. Of these 1,149 were working in the coal mines and the rest were confined at Speigners, the lumber camps and the state farms. The state received an average of $38.18 a month from each convict. The state has received annually from each able-bodied convict more than $500, and the net cost per year for each convict has been $291.

WILLINGHAM GOES OUT NOV. 20

Feagin Will Become Superintendent of Education With Spright Dowell As Chief Clerk.

Montgomery. — Governor O'Neal announced that he had received the resignation of H. J. Willingham as state superintendent of education and that he had appointed W. F. Feagin as state superintendent to succeed Mr. Willingham. Simultaneously with these announceemnts, Mr. Feagin authorized the statement that he had selected Spright Dowell, principal of the public schools of East Lake, as his chief clerk. Mr. Feagin was chief clerk of the department during the administration of Mr. Willingham and also during the period that H. C. Gunnels was state superintendent of education.

Mr. Willingham's resignation is effective November 20 and on that date he will assume his duties as president of the State Normal School at Florence, to which position he was elected several weeks ago by the State Normal School board. Mr. Feagin will become state superintendent on that date and at the same time Professor Dowell will become chief clerk of the department of education, to succeed Mr. Feagin. Mr. Feagin and Professor Dowell will prepare their bonds at once.

He received notice of his appointment from James H. Wallis of Boise, Ida., president of the association. Mr. Billingsley's associates on the committee are Dr. Caspari of Maryland, and F. M. Fricke of Missouri.

AUTAUGA DEPUTY ACQUITTED.

There Was No Demonstration in Court House.

Prattville.—W. L. Wells, a deputy sheriff of Autauga county, was found not guilty of the murder of George Lewis, a negro. The jury was charged and retired immediately afterwards returning a verdict in about four and a half hours. There was no demonstration when the verdict of the jury finding the deputy not guilty was read in the court room.

Education Books Audited.

Montgomery. — At the request of State Superintendent of Education Henry J. Willingham, Examiner J. T. Gorman has started on an annual audit of the department of education's books. Mr. Willingham desired this, owing to the fact that he has resigned to become president of the Florence Normal school, and he desires to give his successor a clean slate. It is also customary every year to examine the books of each department.

OLDEST BEST

What He Noticed.

The extent to which the modern child is educated in matters of hygiene appears from a recent episode in a Boston school:

The class had visited the art museum and the teacher wished to learn what the children had observed and how they were impressed. The subject at the moment was the exquisite head of Aphrodite, one of the chief treasures of the museum. A little boy who frantically waved his hand was called upon. He announced triumphantly:

"I noticed she had adenoids!"

"Why, Peter," exclaimed the shocked teacher, "what do you mean?"

"She keeps her mouth open all the time," was the reply.—Youth's Companion.

The thirteenth annual session of the Chilton County Baptist Association met with Mulberry church ten miles south-west of Thorsby, and ten miles west of Clanton. Rev. P. G. Maness, Moderator; W. H. Shaw, Clerk. The session was well attended, well cared for by the community, and full of spirited enthusiasm. Foreign Missions, $58.25; Orphans' Home, $30.00; Baptist High School, located at Thorsby, $335.

The Association set a higher mark for the churches for the future. We hope for great things to come, with all our opportunities and possibilities of the Associction. The session just closed was far greater than any previous session in all of its history. Rev. R. R. Brasher, who is working for the Orphans' Home, has visited many associations during the associationl year, and says that it was the best that he had been in anywhere.

The next session will be held with Union Grove church, about four miles north-east of Thorsby. Rev. F. M. Barnes, one of our own boys, who recently finished from the seminary, will preach the introductory sermon. We look forward to a greater session than ever before, and trust that the Lord will use every plan and effort fostered by the Association, to bring His Kingdom to all the wide wide world.

Declare War on Colds

A crusade of education which aims "that common colds may become uncommon within the next generation" has been begun by prominent New York physicians. Here is a list of the "don'ts" which the doctors which the doctors say will prevent the annual visitation of the cold:

"Don't sit in a draughty car."
"Don't sleep in hot rooms."
"Don't avoid the fresh air."
"Don't stuff yourself at meal time. Overeating reduces your resistance."

To which we would add—when you take a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. To accomplish that you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy most excellent. Sold by Alred Drug Co.

There was a typographical error in the statement of the Peoples Savings Bank published in these columns last week. The "Undivided profits, less current expenses and taxes paid" should have been $15,890.53, instead of $15,380.53. This institution makes a fine showing, which indicates an increasing volume of business.

TO IMPROVE PRETTY HAIR AND BEAUTIFY UGLY HAIR

Harmony Hair Beautifier, a delightful liquid hair dressing, is just what it is named—a hair beautifier. No matter how pretty your hair now is, it can be made to look even better by using Harmony Hair Beautifier. To those who mourn because the hair is stringy, dull, lustreless and homely, Harmony Hair Beautifier will prove a real blessing and pleasure. It seems to polish and burnish the hair, making it glossy, silky-soft and most easy to put up in graceful, wavy folds that "stay put." It overcomes the oily smell of the hair with a dainty, true-rose, fragrance, very pleasing to the user and those around.

Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandruff free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your back. Sold in this community only at our store—the Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories in Boston, where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made. Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Evans visited the Capital City Monday.

Theo. Meyer, the well known grocery drummer from Montgomery, was in Clanton Wednesday, and reports that the singing of Baby Athlone charmed the capital city last week.

THE COTTON CROP SHOWS A DECLINE

DROP OF FIVE POINTS IN COTTON CONDITION—KILLING FROST THE CAUSE.

MANY ESTIMATES ARE MADE

Georgia Crop Declined 4.3 Points. Average Estimate of the Output 13,747,000 Bales.

New York.—According to 1,644 reports of the special correspondents of the Journal of Commerce bearing an average date of October 23, cotton shows a deterioration of 5 points in condition was 67.1. Killing frosts and excessive rain were the chief causes of damage. A year ago at this time condition lost 1.5 points, in 1911 it lost 1.5 points, in 1910 it lost nothing, in 1909 it lost 3.9 points, and in 1908 it lost 3.6 points. Declines occurred in all states except Tennessee and Florida, which improved 2 points and 3 points, respectively. Important declines were: Louisiana, 15 points; Mississippi, 8.6 points; Texas, 6.3 points; North Carolina, 6.8 points; Georgia 4.3 points, Arkansas 4.4 points, and South Carolina, 4 points.

Condition changes for the past four years together with percentage condition last month, are given in the accompanying table:

States.	Condition Oct.	Nov.	Condition '12	'11
N. Carolina	67.43	5.8	.7	.5
S. Carolina	74.0	4.0	3.3	2.6
Georgia	75.8	4.3	5.3	2.0
Florida	77.9	3.0	8.4	3.0
Alabama	68.2	1.0	4.0	.6
Mississippi	68.0	8.6	2.0	3.4
Louisina	62.4	15.0	1.5	6.0
Texas	64.6	6.3	.2	1.3
Arkansas	67.0	4.4	.6	1.2
Tennessee	68.0	2.0	1.3	4.2
Missouri	52.0	1.0	5.0	6.5
Oklahoma	50.5	2.0	3.0	.2
Totals	67	5.00	1.5	1.5

From the above table it will be seen that condition on October 23 was 61.1, against 68.8 a year ago, 69.3 in 1911.

The Journal of Commerce has no opinion of its own to offer regarding the yield of this season's crop; but in order to gather the concensus of Southern opinion its correspondents were specially requested to give their individual estimates of the crop, with these results. Thirty-two replies ranged twelve million to thirteen million five hundred thousand; 97 replies ranged thirteen million to thirteen million five hundred thousand; 226 replies ranged thirteen million to fourteen million; 121 replies ranged fourteen million to fourteen million and five hundred; 71 replies ranged fifteen million to sixteen million.

The average of all replies received is thirteen million seven hundred and forty-seven thousand bales, which closely approximates the estimates made by several good authorities outside of the growing districts, where the tendency is usually to underestimate the crop.

Out of the 547 estimates received, 347 ranged between thirteen million five hundred thousand and fifteen million five hundred thousand bales.

U. S. WANTS FAIR ELECTION

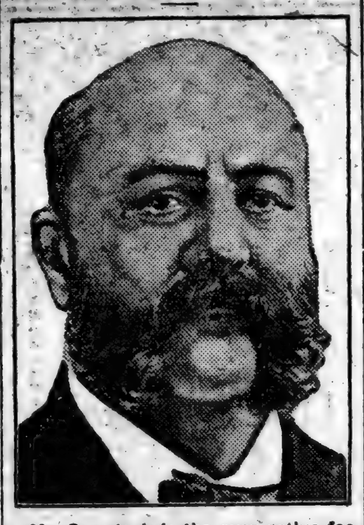
Believed the United States Is Planning to Take Active Part.

Washington.—Reticence which has enveloped the plans of the Washington on the Mexican problem continues.

In whatever is attempted, due consideration of the Constitutionalists as an important factor in the situation will probably be given. It was inferred in many quarters that the cardinal features of the administration's plan will be a comprehensive scheme to bring about a fair and free election, efforts to be made by the American government to use its good office to secure the participation of the Constitutionalists.

In some quarters the suggestion was advanced that the Washington government contemplated assisting materially in the conduct of the proposed elections to insure certain safeguards.

It is admitted that no action will be taken until an announcement of an official character is made in Mexico as to the result of the elections.



Woman Found Guilty of Murder.

New Haven, Conn.—Mrs. Bessie J. Wakefield of Bristol, mother of the three little children, was found guilty of murder in the first degree for her part in the killing of her husband. Evidence in the trial showed that Mrs. Wakefield conspired to get rid of Wakefield. While Mrs. Wakefield took her children out for a walk, James Plew partly drugged her husband and then shot him to death. A knife was driven in the body and a rope placed around the neck to give the appearance of suicide.

Two Men Are Killed.

Atlanta.—Two men were killed outright and two seriously injured and a hundred passengers severely shaken up when Southern railway passenger train No. 36, en route from Columbus to Atlanta, was derailed along a curve near a sleep establishment near Gullatt, Ga. The dead men are Engineer Thomas H. Coy and Fireman R. C. Pennell of Atlanta. They were buried beneath the heavy engine. Conductor D. Prather was terribly scalded by the steam.

ANTHONY COMSTOCK

Mr. Comstock is the ever active foe of vice and indecency in New York.

FLETCHER ELECTED AGAIN

FLORIDA SENATOR RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT AT MOBILE CONVENTION.

Seventh Convention of Southern Commercial Congress Comes to a Close at Mobile.

Mobile, Ala.—The seventh convention of the Southern Commercial congress was brought to a close after a directorate composed of many new members was elected and resolutions upon important subjects discussed had been passed. Soon after the election those directors present met and heard arguments of representatives of Oklahoma City and Houston in favor of their cities for the next convention, and elected officers. The directors will select the next meeting place at some future date. Only the two cites mentioned put in a formal invitation for the 1914 convention. These officers were elected:

President, Senator Duncan U. Fletcher; first vice president, T. S. Southgate; second vice president, Albert P. Bush; managing director, Dr. Clarence J. Owens; treasurer and resident director, W. H. Sanders.

Chief among resolutions adopted was one instructing the directors of the congress to at once begin a systematized propaganda aiming at diverting trade made possible by opening the Panama canal to southern ports. Officials of the congress are ordered to do this as quickly as possible. Another important resolution urges upon the United States congress to put into effect as soon as practicable a system of rural credits. This resolution was adopted unanimously after it had been pointed out in several speeches how the Southern farmer is handicapped by lack of a sound system of credit and how much is lost to the South each year because of the absence of system in growing and handling crops.

The Federal government is called on in another resolution furnished early in each year the cotton spindle capacity of the country so that the producer may have an equal advantage with the consumer in this respect. The congress also urged that cotton be graded at the gin under Federal supervision in order to save the great total loss caused by taking samples from bales and that bonded warehouses receipts be given certifying the correct weight and grade of the product.

BUSCH LEAVES MILLIONS

Only $210,000 of the Brewer's Estate for Charitable Purposes.

St. Louis.—The will of Adolphus Busch, filed for probate, makes charitable bequests aggregating $170,000 to a number of St. Louis institutions, and places the bulk of the estate in trust. Mrs. Lillie Busch, Charges Nagel and August A. Busch are named trustees.

In addition to the charitable bequests in the will, Mr. Busch left a private memorandum requesting members of his family to make certain other donations, most of which are private in their nature. The attorneys, however, made public the names of eight St. Louis institutions, which are to receive, under the memorandum, a total of $40,000, making the total bequests for charitable purposes $21,000.

Big Rail Bond Issue Fought.

Boston.—Former Governor Morgan G. Bulkley of Hartford, Conn., and Charles S. Ensign, of Newton, brought a bill in equity in the supreme court asking that the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company be enjoined from issuing bonds to the amount of $67,552,000 and 675,520 additional shares of stock authorized at the meeting of stockholders August 22. The complainants, who stockholders, say it is contemplated that the additional shares of stock shall be distributed Killed 86-Year-Old Wife.

Pelham, N. H.—The 86-year-old wife of Ernest McCoy, a farmer, was found murdered in the parlor of their home with two pistol bullets in her body. McCoy made an attempt at suicide by shooting himself in the head just as his three daughters arrived hurriedly in response to letters he had written them, saying he was about to commit suicide. While McCoy was receiving medical attention, an inquest was being held in the parlor of the house

MORE QUIET TONE IN STEEL INDUSTRY

Trade Channels Are Confined to Mercantile Requirements — Labor Troubles Felt in Certain Industries.

New York.—Bradstreet's trade review says:

Trade currents still run irregularly with activity tending to shift from first hands to final distributors. The rush of fall trade at primary centers apparently reached its height two weeks ago and is now lessening, but tnere is more doing by interior jobbers who find that cool weather and crop movement have stimulated retail trade to its zenith.

Especial mention is had this week of activity in holiday and winter goods.

There is a very general consensus of opinion that October distributive trade has fully equalled that of the like month a year ago.

In industrial lines the feature is the further quieting down of demand for iron and steel. There is a more quiet tone pronounced in industry generally, and possibly more idle labor than at any time since last spring.

Business failures for the week were 277, which compares with 257 in 1912.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week aggregate 4,108,392 bushels against 6,498,275 bushels last year.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly trade review says:

Trade channels are confined to strictly mercantile requirements. Conditions remain favorable. Reactionary tendencies in iron and steel have become rather more accentuated, further price concessions being announced and a slackening of operators noted at some mills.

Through the process of lowering quotations now demands for new goods have been stimulated in certain directions, and consumption is well maintained with hopeful views expressed regarding the outlook.

While the report of the leading producer for the September quarter did not equal expectations, with one exception the net earnings exceeding all previous records for the period, and a substantial gain was shown over last year.

Labor troubles continue to exact an adverse effect in some industries, but cotton goods manufacturers are well engaged ahead, and values reflect increased firmness as a result of the high cost of the raw material at hand.

Failures numbered 296 this week in the United States against 289 last year, and 30 in Canada compared with 24 one year ago.

TELEGRAPHIC TIPS

Minneapolis, Minn.—The unconstitutionality of the two principal statutes regulating collection of refunds for intrastate shipments of commodities is attacked in a test suit begun here.

Boston.—The high temperature this fall and the small natural ice harvest in Southern New England last winter has brought about an ice shortage which is beginning to be felt, especially on the fishing fleets.

Philadelphia.—The torpedo destroyers Roe and Perkins arrived at the Philadelphia navy yard from Newport, R. I. The vessels will be overhauled.

Providence, R. I.—The three-masted schooner Ella M. Davenport arrived here from Ferandina, Fla., stripped of her foresail and headsails and with a broken gaff. The Davenport was 29 days on the trip, which is usually made in ten days.

Washington.—Material advances in the freight rates on lumber from points on the Oregon-Washington Railway and Navigation Company's lines via Plummer, Idaho, to eastern destinations were suspended by the Interstate Commerce Commission until February 28.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Practically no progress was made by Ethelbert Stewart, who was sent here from Washington by Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor, to try and settle the differences between traction officials and their employes.

Winnipeg.—Hudson Bay officials here received meagre reports from the north that a party of Esquimaux, numbering sixteen persons, were rescued from an island in the mouth of Hudson Bay, on which they have been marooned for ten years.

New Brunswick, N. J.—William Jennings Bryan made his second appearance in New Jersey during the present gubernatorial campaign, speaking in behalf of the Democratic candidate, James F. Fielder. The Secretary made addresses in Penn Grove, Salem, New Brunswick and Perth Amboy.

San Francisco.—The steamer Beaver, from Portland and Astoria, with 500 passengers aboard, was in collision with the lumber steamer Necanicum off Fort Bragg, on the Northern California coast. The Beaver is proceeding toward San Francisco with her port bow stove in above the water line.

Toronto.—The threatened strike of telegraph operators employed by the Bell, Rogers and Yukon railroad companies started on the third Baby Athlone Coming!

While Baby Athlone was playing in Montgomery, Anna Held who appeared at the Grand there one day, heard the child sing, "The cleverest child I have ever heard," was her comment.

Baby Athlone is a beautiful child and is only ten years of age and has a mannerism all her own, her enunciation and pronounciation is perfect, and with this she has a clear, rich voice, that has made her the top liner on all the best vaudeville circuits of America, and has newspaper criticisms tucked away in her little pocket that would make one much older sit up and take notice, but with all this she is a dear sweet child, and one must see her to appreciate her.

Mr. W. B. Rubenstein, manager of the Lyric Theatre, has spared no expense to bring this most wonderful genius, Baby Athlone, and her accompanist to Clanton.

Baby Athlone will change her songs each day. Each man, woman and child should not fail to hear her program each day. ALBRAZAR," who has a world-wide reputation as a pianist, accompanies Baby Athlone.

CANNED AND DRIED FRUIT

At our Fair there was a very creditable display of canned and dried fruits, and we are glad to learn that the girls have a canning club. The Press would be glad to co-operate with these girls in making this line of work one of our leading industries. The editor has had wide observation and varied experiences in it and knows all the details of successful operation. I had on my Texas fruit farm a canning plant with a capacity of a thousand cans a day, where we put up tomatoes, peaches, pears, plums, berries, and snap-beans. I had a market of my own, dealing directly with the retail trade, or with the consumer, and pocketed all the profits of the wholesale man. I put up goods which drove all other brands out of the local market by their superior quality, as long as the supply lasted. In co-operation with other members of our Fruit Grower's and Trucker's Association, I shipped in crates by express or by the car-load as long as the market was satisfactory, but when the prices declined, I put the dryer and canner to work, and converted my perishable stuff into staple articles which could be held for future demand, and better profits. By using the California process of drying, I produced dried fruit of as bright color, and as fine flavor as is to be found, anywhere. This can be done on a large scale anywhere in the South. I dried the over-ripe and under-sized peaches, and canned none except the finest specimens, making a very showy and delicious product. Strictly for our own family use, there was a fruit which we put up, but didn't attempt to "put out," because it is not prepossessing in appearance. It consisted of over-ripe peaches, crowded into the can so as to mash them into an uncooked marmalade whose expressed juices fill the can and all the crevices, so as to make any syrup unnecessary whenever it is opened, even after years, it it possesses the flavor of fruit fresh from the tree, and free from all tang of the can, when served with milk or cream.

I grew tomatoes by the acre, and beans also on what would be considered here a large scale, shipping by express or in car lots, when the demand was strong, and canning everything, when prices were unsatisfactory. No farm should be without the small canner, to supply an abundance for home consumption, but we should also have larger facilities for manufacturing perishable products into staple commodities, which can be held for better market. It is only thus that our love of production may cast out the fear of growing perishable crops, and realize the fancy prices which ordinary farming cannot command. It opens up the way to a broader diversification than most of us have contemplated. In Texas, the boll-weevil proved to be the school-master that brought us to diversification as the highest statement of the farmer's hope, and I commend you to the tender mercies of the same preceptor, who is surely approaching to dread, but majestic splendor. I rejoice that the girls are studying the subject of canning, and I do hope that here and there, we may find women and girls who are not too old to learn.

THE COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

Verbena, Ala., Nov. 7, 1913

To the Editor of the Press:

Dear Sir:—In your zeal for the High School, don't do me an injustice. You should know that there is no objection by any one to a High School in the county—only the method of gaining a portion of the funds is contested.

Yours truly,

H. B. OLIVER.

The above communication surprises us beyond measure. We are unable to recall any editorial utterance to which it can possibly refer. One thing is very certain, and that is that the Press has neither advocated nor condemned any "method of raising a portion of the funds," or all of the funds for building a high school. Our esteemed friend and valued fellow-citizen, must be actuated by his own apprehensions as to what we may have to say in the future, as he cannot be by anything already spoken. We implore him not to grow restive under suspense, and not to kick before he is spurred. Indeed it would be a shame to have any kicking or spurring in the discussion of a matter which all parties seem to favor. So far as the editor of this paper is concerned, the issue is a very simple one. The bare-footed boy back in Hill Billy Hollow, who has been marked out by nature, and endowed by grace, to be the future governor of this proud commonwealth, should now have within his reach the, advantages of a high school education. I was born and brought up in a college town, and have seen, times without number, these boys coming to school from the sticks, gawky in manners, unrefined in speech, and unprepossessing in every way. I have seen them serve their apprenticeship in the green squad, patient under discipline and composed under ridicule. I have seen their eyes brightened by thought, and their brows broadened by intellectual development until they graduated at the head of the classmates who once derided their ambitions, and mocked at their fond hopes of distinction. I have met these fellows in after life, on the stern battle fields where only the fittest survive, and where economic theories are tested by facts. I have seen their characters glow the brighter the more severely they were rubbed by the stress and the competition, to which all must be subjected, until they filled the highest posts of duty and honor. I have seen them conducting the great engineering schemes of the West and the great commercial enterprises of the East. They fill the halls of Congress and shape the policy of every state. It is not only true that the educated man rules the destinies of the world, but it is also true that the country boy is most willing to take advantage of educational advantages when once they are offered to him. None of us fully appreciate the value of the back-woods boy, and he does not half-way appreciate himself. You don't need to educate him. You only need to arouse him and make him conscious of his own power. This is what a school accomplishes by its mere presence. It is like the strains of an orchestra falling upon the ear of an untrained, but natural musician. It is in the response of his nature that he finds himself, and becomes conscious of his native genius. I esteem Mr. Oliver for his manifest interest in the country boy.

There is only one reason why I am not in favor of setting this County High School right down at the front door of our future governor. There is another boy in a situation equally as remote, and on the opposite side of the county, who has been divinely ordained, and intellectually qualified to be the future president of the L. & N. railroad. I think this is the best time to train him to become what we want him to be. Give him to understand that if he will blow his nose, we will blow his horn. If he will be clean, we will make him strong.

Put this school half-way between these two boys, then help Mr. Oliver to grade the roads, so that each of them can ride his wheel to school twenty-five miles every day, as I have seen the students of Leland Stanford University do.

The people to benefit by it are not the people, who ought to build this school, for the future that many of them are now helpless babies, and others are as yet unborn, and destined to be born in poverty. The men who shall build this school will do more for Chilton county than any one has ever done before, and they should be the men for whom the county has done most—men like Mr. Oliver who have grown wealthy by the patronage of our people, and at the same time have so conducted themselves, in public and in private life, as to win, and to hold the love and confidence of their patrons. It would indeed be a generous and noble act for such men to say, "This school school shall not be a drain upon the county's poverty, but shall be a monument to our own gratitude for the people's confidence and patronage." This is what the elder Hurst said to California, what Paul Tulane said to Louisiana, and what Scruggs said to Missouri, and they shall be held in everlasting remembrance.

"Each little rill, each bounding river,
Flow mingling with their names forever."

Shall future generations rise up and bless the founder of the "Oliver Memorial High School?"

STATE HIGH-WAY

The second meeting of the State Highway Association, which took place in Clanton Monday morning, adopted the Constitution and By-Laws reported by the Executive Committee, and authorized Mr. W. W. Fox, committeeman, to appoint a committee of eight to select the route through Chilton county, and to solicit contributions. Every citizen who wants this Highway to come his way had better see Mr. Fox and his committee. Great capitalists, with millions to invest, will soon be speeding along this Highway, and we have the soils, the climate, and the productions to tempt them to empty their wallets here. One speaker at the meeting told how the building of a graded road had advanced the price of land, for ten miles on both sides, from ten dollars per acre to one hundred dollars.

Shelby county has closed the contract for the completion of this Highway between Calera and the line of Jefferson county, which also pledges the continuation of the road to Birmingham. The Highway has been built at the other end several miles out from Montgomery, and we must do our part toward filling up the gap. All the speakers seem to feel that the Highway means more to Chilton county and to Clanton than to any one else. Our County Board of Revenue has voted eight thousand dollars to aid in the movement which is to pour millions into our coffers. Senator Curry, Judge Deason, Mr. Fox and others showed much enthusiasm in favor of the project, and the prominent men from a distance went away with fine impressions of our possibilities, and public spirit. The eight thousand dollars given by Chilton county's progressive Board of Revenue secures an equal amount from the state to aid our work.

A mass meeting of citizens will soon be called for the purpose of explaining the advantages to be derived from the movement.

Judge Dan Green, of Birmingham, was elected Vice President of the Association; Mr. W. S. Keller is President. H. G. Reynolds, Treasurer, and B. M. Roberts, Secretary.

L. & N. RAILROAD

This railroad has made something for its stockholders, perhaps. It certainly deserves some measure of success, for it has developed the country along its lines, and is now putting in double-tracks and taking other advanced steps tending to improve its service to the general public. Senator Luke Lea should not kill the goose just before she is due to lay the golden egg.

POETRY

In this issue there is a poem from the pen of the editor, on "Alabama." It was written upon his return to his native state, about a year ago, after an absence of twenty-three years. He is among those who do not esteem it an unpardonable weakness to court the Muses. This utilitarian age needs to be reminded, by Victor Hugo's Bishop of D———, that "the beautiful is often fully as useful as the practical, and sometimes a great deal more so."

An editor of some literary taste and skill, said to me some time since, that he had made it a rule to cut out all verse. I replied that such polcy is only a "short cut," which economises the time and the genius necessary to discriminate between the true and the false. It was thus that the French Revolution cut out all religion, because some forms of religion had been found unworthy of patronage. However, there was among them a true religion which no human policy could cut out, and there is a true poetry which is equally persistant and abiding. Some very bright genius has tried in vain to make the world believe that "Poeta nasciter, non fit" means "Nasty poet, fit for nothing."

It will not be out of place to say that neither those who read, nor write verse, must be credited with believing litterally all the myths and legends to which poets make allusion. The Indian legend which gives the word "Alabama" the signification of "Here we rest," is to be classed with the story of Jason and the golden fleece, which no one accepts litterally, but from which all learn helpful lesssons. History should correct, but cannot, and should not entirely dispel the illusions of poetry, which are persistent for the simple reason that they are voluntary and instructive, rather than deceptive. After all, much of our faith is like the unbelief of the dear old Hardshell brother, who said, in regard to an universal atonement, that he would die, and go to perdition before he would believe it, even if he knew it was true. It is a faith like this which has emblazoned "Here we rest" upon the resplendant shield of our glorious state. We rest here, whether the Indian ever did or not, and we will continue to attribute to him the lofty sentiments which we ourselves experienee in climbing the mountains, or gazing upon the skies once familiar to his eve and dear to his heart.

EX-GOV. COMER AT CULLMAN

Summary of His Latest and Strongest Speech.

Facts and Figures About His Administration.

Demands That We Go Forward in War for People's Control of their Government.

The following is a summary of an address delivered by ex-Governor B. B. Comer, at Cullman on Monday, November 10, 1913. It's a re-statement of the issues of the campaign and a re-announcement of the policies which he has advocated and the platform on which he has stood—and a strong recommendation that everybody should carefully study:

Let the people—not the railroads—rule. The control of State government by the people rather than control by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company.

Equalize the taxes of the people—also equalize the freight and passenger taxes, that is, railroad rates.

An administration based upon education and progressive principles. Alabama should not be a laggard in the sisterhood of States. Full and equal protection of all property, individual and corporate, coupled with fair and firm State regulation.

TRUE THEORY OF TAXATION.

The sole revenue of government is taxation. A government that protects and educates must be supported. Every good citizen is willing to pay his part, levied on a fair basis. Therefore, fairness requires the equalization of taxes and the wise expenditure of money to the end that all citizens share in the benefits and burdens of government.

In our own business, we require that a dollar spent shall secure a dollar in service or in value. The State should be run on this principle.

IF USELESS, ABOLISH THEM.

If during the Comer administration any useless office—whether administrative or judicial—was created, it should be abolished. The same should be done with every office in the State, regardless of when or how created. Not only this, but every officer, whether clerk or head of a department, in the State's pay, should do the State's work No head of a department has the right to use his department or any other department for his private gain—either politically or otherwise. Offices are primarily created to develop and protect the State. When not responsive to this policy, they should be abolished.

GO FORWARD WITH EDUCATION.

No backward step in the encouragement of education and school facilities. Progress means greater State responsibility to schools. The State's best asset is its boys and girls. An adequate State school system is vital.

Efficient citizenship depends on the equipment which education gives the rising generation.

Without good roads, the prosperous era on which our farmers have just begun to enter, will find a limit at no distant day. Every encouragement that the State can give, must be freely and persistently offered to all the agencies that are now awake and striving to forward this development.

Liberality, justice and gratitude should be continued in the pensions and care of our old soldiers.

The legislature of 1907-10 utilized the moneys of the State to develop every facility along the above lines.

APPROPRIATIONS THAT WERE WISE INVESTMENTS.

There was approximately seven and a half million dollars more expended during my administration than during any previous administration. Approximately a million and a half of this expenditure went as fixed investments, which investments are now the properties of the State, and will show usufruct for all time.

To the Speigner dam and power equipment	$ 50,000.00
To enlarging and re-equiping the cotton mill at Speigners	75,000.00

To repairs and new buildings at the University	400,000.00
	$1,498,000.00

The above is permanent investment and well made.

INCREASE IN MAINTENANCE FUNDS

The Legislature also increased the amounts paid.

Increased expense to Industrial School for white boys at East Lake	50,000.00
Increased amount for keep of old soldiers at Mt. Creek	25,000.00

Appropriations to County High Schools	150,000.00
Appropriations to Public Schools	2,983,193.55
	$5,754,325.25
To the above named investment of	$1,498,000.00

amounts and the $7,500,000.00 increased expenditures went in the attempt to secure greater efficiency in the departments, the largest part of which went to the judiciary, medical and agricultural departments, and to the railroad commission.

FALSE REPORTS CORRECTED.

The report is not correct that the Legislature of 1907-10 exempted cotton mills from taxation; created a horde of offices and made useless expenditures. Neither did it entail heavy debts on the succeeding Legislature, or administration; neither did it leave unpaid warrants. A report from the joint House and Senate committee of the succeeding Legislature, made March 14, 1911, showed a large sum of money on hand and the records show that it was not necessary to borrow any money until after the end of the fiscal year succeeding my administration.

If the laws enacted in 1907-10 were wrong—if the appropriations were useless or excessive, the succeeding Legislature had abundant opportunity to correct both and it's not becoming in anyone, posing as the friend of the present administration, to condemn the laws and appropriations made by the Legislature of 1907-10.

The Legislature of 1907-10 used $7,500,000.00 in excess of the previous administration, used it in the upbuilding of every department of the State and the lion's share, as it should have done, went to the schools and old soldiers.

The above outline shows where, either in fixed or continued appropriations, the amounts were invested, and I challenge any one to show that the State and citizens were not greatly benefited and respectfully ask which office and which appropriation will be repealed?

THE GREAT CORPORATION FUND.

In 1904 the Louisville and Nashville railroad used in Alabama elections $142,385.25 to debauch the voters in the endeavor to elect its candidate president of the railroad commission. What did the Louisville and Nashville railroad want with the Alabama railroad commission?

In the year 1913, the same railroad company is endeavoring to elect its candidate governor. What does the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company want with the Governor of Alabama?

The Louisville and Nashville railroad is now seeking control of the Alabama Legislature, House and Senate. What does it want with the Alabama Legislature?

The Louisville and Nashville in the past has sought to control every function of our State government, whether administrative, legislative or judicial; has sought through these sources the trusteeship of the State to develop its properties, uncontrolled or unregulated, free from competition, according to its own methods and with its own charges.

AN ERA THAT IS PAST.

President Wilson, in his New York speech, said that this kind of trusteeship and property development no longer appeals to the people and Mr. Underwood, in his Birmingham speech, said that this kind of business created a monopoly, and that in our government monopolies of whatever nature must be controlled or regulated.

TREAT ALL ALIKE.

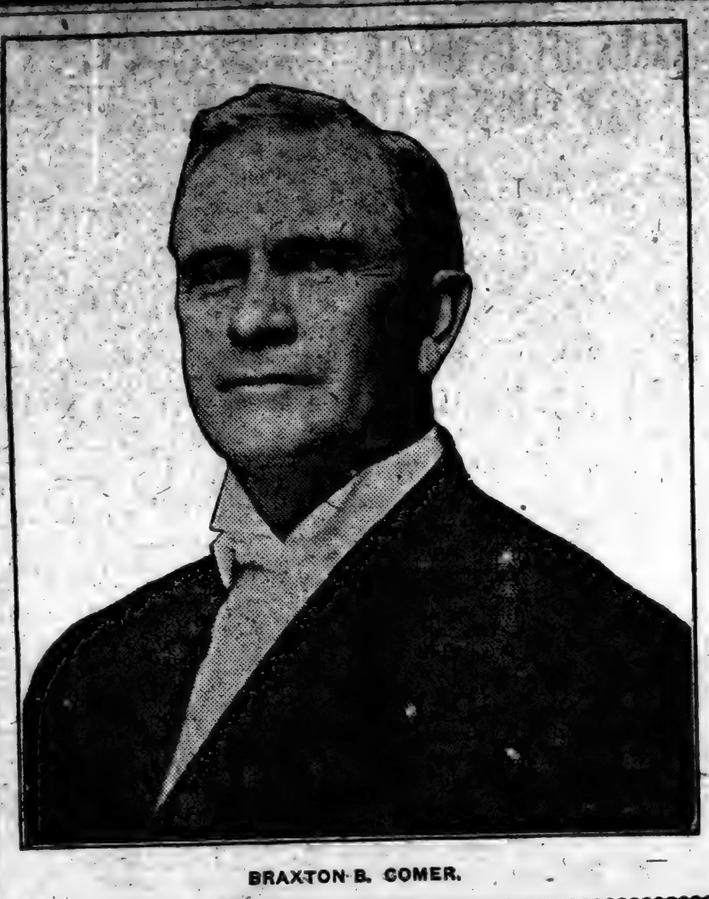
If the charges of the Louisville and Nashville, the Central and the Western, both as to passenger and freight rates, are not regulated, then the restrictions on the rates of the seven railroads of the State which have been observing the law for six years should be removed and all their original high charges restored. This is common justice, as our laws should carry alike for every property and every interest of the State.

In plain terms, if the State is to be bossed and controlled by the railroads, it should be by all of them and not by one of them.

WHAT STATUTE RATES SAVED THE PEOPLE.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad had the State rates, passenger and freight, in effect for three years. Their own testimony shows that the difference between their rates, passenger and freight, and the State rates, passenger and freight, was about $700 000.00 per year—or $2,100,000.00 for three years.

Their own statement made in the Wall Street Journal, published July 14, 1912, shows that in 1910, the first year the Louisville and Nashville had in the Alabama freight and passenger rates, they earned 17.35 per cent; in 1911, 14.26 per cent; in 1912, 16.04 per cent, and this on par value of stock, which had been watered double, and this in addition to the immense sums spent with the press, with the courts and lawyers and in other debauchings of the people which had been charged to its expense.



This $2,100,000.00 was saved to the Alabama patrons of the Louisville and Nashville railroad on passenger and freight rates.

I estimate that this railroad system is one-third of the railroads of the State. All of the roads observed the rates for three years, and for these three years the patrons—that is, passenger and freight—were saved $6,300,000.00.

NINE MILLIONS SAVED IN ALL.

More than half the roads have had the rates in for six years—saving to the people an additional $3,000,000.00, or approximately $9,000,000.00 in all.

From this record of saving to the shippers of the State, and which saving the Georgia farmer has had for thirty-two years, the people will understand why this railroad system seeks through every debauchment of government to obtain control. They throw every environing influence around our politicians, whether bank president or the citizen, whose vote and influence is for hire, for the purpose of obtaining control. They plead that if they are not allowed to make their own charges against the people of the State they will not continue development, a development which every understanding man knows to be made by mortgaging the people of the State to build property with the money of the State, not for the people of the State, but for the owners of the railroad, and in the end the figures to figure additional tax on the people.

BRAXTON B. COMER.

Every influence in Alabama which could be summoned has been approached and the railroads have not hesitated to use any and every means at their command to secure the votes of their employees, both by threats and promises, and the agents of this company and their allies to do that against the people of Alabama which every attitude of good government demands should not be done.

TRUE STATESMANSHIP.

To justly equalize tax assessments and wisely distribute the moneys of the State, constitutes statesmanship.

The $100,000.00 invested in attorneys' fees and court costs in the railroad litigation has already saved the shippers of the State—in passenger and freight charges—nine millions of dollars.

COMPARE FOR YOURSELF.

Let any shipper compare his freight receipts under the rates on the 110 commodities of common consumption, production and use—called the Comer rates—for the three years in which they were enforced on the N. C. & St. L., L. & N., Western, and Central, with the charges today on the same commodities as made by the same railroads. Also let any shipper on the seven other railroads, including the A. G. S., which have been observing the statute rates on the 110 commodities for six years, compare their rates, with the rates which were paid before the law went into effect, you will then fully understand the difference the Alabama shipper—and remember always that the farmer pays the freight—has been paying, and is on some of the roads now paying, more than the Georgia farmer has paid for thirty-two years. Remember again that the seven roads have had the rates in effect for six years and the other systems had the rates in for three years and there was no confiscation or destruction.

TOTAL RAILROAD LEVIES ON THE PEOPLE.

The total railroad charges against the shippers of the State for the four years of 1907-10 were $132,294,720.42. The State taxes for the same years were $18,712,745.00. The railroad taxes against the people of the State were $113,577,972.00 more than the State taxed its people for their own use and benefit. The State taxes have exact constitutional limitation of six and one-half (6 1-2) mills and the law limits the assessment to 60 per cent of value, and this is right, because the people should be protected even against their own assessor, and against excessive taxes for their own use.

IS OUR COMMISSION DOING ITS DUTY?

The State has a railroad commission law, drawn by Mr. Selheimer, and passed in 1907-10, made from the laws of the most progressive States for the protection of the shippers; and to more fully protect the people, the commission was made elective.

This is the only protection, outside of the Legislature, that the people have against this immense sum taxed for freight and passenger carriage. Is the commission discharging its duty? The freight charges against the State last year were $39,900,000.00, practically half as much as the value of Alabama's cotton crop, and more than double the State taxes for four years.

IS THE COMMISSION HELD CAPTIVE?

The only defense that Alabama can possibly have against these charges is the execution of the law in the establishment of reasonable freight and passenger rates. Is the commission doing it? Have the railroads captured the commission? If the commission will not act, if Governor O'Neal will not act, then the only relief is a new administration and a new Legislature which will act.

OUR TARIFF VICTORY.

The National Democratic Party, after a fifty years' struggle, have just accomplished a tariff victory, that is, reduced the tariff tax on all ordinary articles of common consumption, production and use, those things which save most to the common people.

They reduced the tariff two cents per pound on sugar, notwithstanding the people of Louisiana claimed that it would destroy a great property interest engaged in producing sugar.

They reduced the tariff eight cents per pound on wool, notwithstanding the sheep growers protest that it would ruin the industry.

They largely decreased the tariff on all cotton and woolen goods against the protest of every manufacturer.

They decreased the tariff on all hardware and on every meat product. They even came to the Birmingham district, to Coosa, now Fairfield, and reduced the tariff, even on that iron, of Coosa and Red Mountain ores.

[illegible] that no interest should be allowed to write its own tariff, and today the strongest democratic argument, for endorsement by the people, is the immense sum saved from these protected industries in their charges against the people.

TAXING WEALTH, NOT POVERTY.

The Democratic Party went further than that and in the income tax law declared that taxes or money to run the government should be levied on incomes and not on consumption—that is, should be levied on the wealth and not the poverty of the country.

In the reduction of the Tariff, it has been said a thousand times that on the goods reduced in price by the removing of tariff charges, the profit would go to the middle man and not to the consumer—a statement as rotten as ever a demagogue or paid hireling got off.

The Alabama congressmen and senators, all elected as democrats, are now preening themselves on this great tariff reduction victory and it is well. The fight was long, hard and costly, but the value of the victory will be immense

All the evidence in this contest showed that no individual or corporation could be trusted to fix their own charges for any service or product; that in the end, it would be an excessive tax on the people.

ASKS GOV. O'NEAL TO APPEAL THE STATE'S FREIGHT AND PASSENGER RATES ENJOINED BY JUDGE JONES.

I call the attention of our national representatives, just returning home in the full flush of their tariff reduction victory, and ready to accomplish the further success of currency reform, to the fact that here at home we have also won a partial victory in our railroad tariff regulation laws. The Federal law requiring three Federal judges instead of one to sit on an injunction case, against the State law or against the railroad commission law, has had a most important bearing as has the impeachment of Judge Archbold of the interstate commerce court for liason committed with the Louisville and Nashville road. The abolition of the Federal interstate commerce court, evidently because of their interference with the interstate commerce commission, and the decision of the Federal Supreme Court in the Minnesota, Missouri and Arkansas rate cases sustaining the State's control of intra-state rates, has had a most beneficial effect. While the agitation is now on, we trust for a speedy, successful adjustment of our freight and passenger contention and particularly that all of our roads will speedily recognize the right of the State to control and adjust rates. I will suggest to Governor O'Neal that since this Supreme Court decision the rate cases in Alabama enjoined by the inferior Federal judge take on a new aspect and a new importance; that while it's true the appeal to the Supreme Court would cost quite a sum of money, yet the suit is so vital, of so much interest—even money—to the people involved that the importance of the appeal would justify and greatly outweigh the expenditure; that every citizen should ask the Governor to carry these cases to the Supreme Court.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE CLAIMS.

The Louisville and Nashville road still insist on the vested right to make their own tariff or taxes against the people—freight and passenger fares—their own way.

This claim of the Louisville and Nashville road is obsolete, and no longer has place in the government of a progressive people.

COMPARISONS WITH GEORGIA.

The Georgia farmer who ships a ton of fertilizer pays an average rate of $1.10 per ton. In Alabama, the same service is $1.50 per ton, or 40c per ton difference.

In Georgia, a builder pays an average rate of $10.00 per car on lumber. In Alabama, $50.00 per car.

In Georgia, the merchant can ship ten barrels of flour for $1.75. The Alabama merchant pays $2.40.

A farmer or truck gardener ships 100 pounds of potatoes in Georgia at 9 cents. In Alabama, the rate is 21 cents.

In Georgia, a carload of watermelons, average distance, is $10.00. In Alabama, $20.00.

In Georgia, a carload of cotton seed hulls costs $10.00. In Alabama, $17.50.

[illegible] stop agitation for lower passenger and freight charges and allow the railroads to name their own rates; that we will get more railroad buildings, which would increase our population; increase our trade; increase development and thus greatly benefit the State, and if generally practiced, would not cost very much to any one citizen. He specially names the Louisville and Nashville railroad, after the judge of the inferior Federal court at Montgomery enjoined the State passenger and freight rate last year, as using twelve million dollars in double tracking, and also states that they would have built a short line to Mobile if it had not been for the railroad agitation.

GROSS DISCRIMINATIONS.

The Louisville and Nashville charges out of Birmingham, going towards Nashville, 3c per mile, and is contesting a 2 1-2c rate. The Louisville and Nashville charges out of Atlanta, going towards Chattanoga and Montgomery, 2c per mile, and the Louisville and Nashville charges on the 110 commodities out of Birmingham, towards Montgomery and Nashville, $1.40, where they charge for the same carriage out of Atlanta, going towards Chattanooga and Montgomery, $1.00. In other words, there is a difference against Alabama of $50.00 on the $100.00 in the passenger rate and $40.00 on the $100.00 in freight rate.

It is a strange argument that Georgia is hurt and Alabama benefited by such a discrimination in charges.

Alabama could take the overcharge and soon build, own and operate its own railroads. Such arguments as this belong to the out of date class and there is not a banker, business man or paper in Georgia who would advocate permitting the Louisville and Nashville, or any other road to change the Georgia freight and passenger rates to the higher Alabama rates, claiming that it would aid and develop railroads in Georgia or any other property. Mr Wilson has well said that this species of trusteeship over the people for the development of personal property no longer appeals to the people.

All authority agrees that a power to tax is a power to destroy.

THE BANKER'S CLAIM REPUDIATED.

The people, in two successive elections in the State and one in the Nation, repudiated the destructiveness and untenableness of the claim put forward by the railroads, and I am astonished that it is so gravely set forth by so intelligent an authority as the Banker whom I have quoted. This claim is a direct repudiation of every principle of democracy; a direct repudiation of our tariff bills, so hardly won by the democratic party at Washington, and properly belongs to the environments of an Aldrich or a Smoot, and I don't know of any State other than Vermont or Utah which would endorse it as a State Policy.

STATE AND RAILROAD TAXES COMPARED.

The State taxes in Alabama are six million dollars per year for its own use and benefit, and the railroad taxes thirty-nine million dollars per year for their own use and benefit. Would, the same authority allow the State Assessor a free hand in naming the taxes, on the general plea that it would greatly increase the State's power to accomplish good for all the citizens—even though it should be applied to the development of schools, increase of pensions and building of public highways?

OUR WATERWAYS.

Alabama is rich in waterways. A few days since, a great demonstration was made at Tuscaloosa on the arrival of the first steel barge. Many speeches of congratulation were made and future successful river-carriage prophesied. I will caution the barge projectors that the Age-Herald, unchallenged, published that the railroads would not allow freight carriage on Alabama waters; that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in the last few years used $60,000.00 spent through Captain Staples in a single effort to destroy water competition running into the port at Mobile.

RELEASE OUR RIVER HIGHWAYS.

While, in every sense of the word, this is a reflection on our State and National Government, as no railroad should be allowed to obstruct by any tactics whatever a waterways channel or carriage, I appreciate that with Mobile awakened to its possibilities, and the Panama Canal opened, that these great resources of the State will be of much more use than any new railroad in the State, no matter where built. So I say, as one of the prime platform articles of the future: RELEASE the railroad embargo from our rivers and untie these greatest assets of the State.

A BANKING ILLUSTRATION.

Recently, the banks of Birmingham were in controversy with the banks of Montgomery over a question of exchange. Montgomery had advanced the rate from 1-3c to 1-4c and against this increase the Birmingham banks protested and fought. The Montgomery banks could easily claim that with this additional charge they could better do the business and while on the subject, would it be a very tenable proposition for the First National Bank of Birmingham to ask the right of charging 10 per cent for money instead of 6 per cent on a general proposition that with this increase of interest it could do more business, develop more land, and help in the general upbuilding of the State?' Would it be a tenable proposition for the Avondale Mills to demand the right to charge 1-2c per yard more for goods on the general claim that it would be able to build more mills, give more people work, etc.? Or still again, how would it appeal to the First National Bank that its State and county taxes should be doubled in order to establish more schools, build more roads, etc., all of which would increase our population, increase our trade development and greatly benefit the State, and if generally practiced, would not cost very much to any one citizen?

Congress, under the leadership of Wilson has just demonstrated the absurdity of all such propositions, and for the full protection of the people has written the laws of the land.

ALABAMA AND WASHINGTON.

Is the Democratic party at Washington of any different material from the Democratic party in Alabama? Is the Democratic policy at Washington any different from the Democratic policy in Alabama?

Over the great Democratic tariff reduction victory at Washington, we should shout our vivas.

A REFEREE AND HIS PAPER.

What sort of a proposition is it to have the would-be Washington sponsor and Alabama referee in National Democracy, with the jingle of the corporation loot in his pockets, fighting the accomplishment of all these things in Alabama?

What sort of a proposition is it to have a paper that sold its columns to this great corporation to commit libel; whose columns are on the mercenary and not the patriotic side; to be the leader to carry Alabama back into the plunderings of the inviable government?

Esau sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. The dearest right that Alabama can have is the right to govern our State our own way by our own people and not from the offices of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad at Louisville, Kentucky.

THE SENATE TO INVESTIGATE.

Under the resolution of Senator Luke Lea, the Federal Senate by a viva voce vote instructed the Interstate Commerce Commission to investigate the methods and practices of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad and all of its subsidiary [illegible] companies. I suppose some [illegible] Louisville & Nashville improvised decoy [illegible] will hurt business [illegible] building roads, buying [illegible] etc.

[illegible] railroad wreckers are those officials of railroads who, blinded by egotism and brief authority, are determined to ruin their railroads in defiance of law and without respect or regard for public opinion."

THE NEW ENGLAND EXAMPLE.

He says also that the President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, Mellen's management, was directed more toward monopolizing the territory his road served, buying out and ruining competition and directing legislatures and coercing public officials, than in running trains safely, carrying passengers, and transporting freight.

ITS SOUTHERN COUNTERPART.

He says that "the Louisville & Nashville Railroad is the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad of the South. It's a defiance of public opinion, and an attempt to control Government by directing legislatures and coercing public officials. That they continue to oppose giving their patrons the benefit of a 2 1-2c fare when other railroads in Tennessee and adjoining states are making money in charging 2c and 2 1-2c fares; in fighting and defeating just legislation like the employers' liability laws; in crushing out competition and spending its stockholders' money in campaigns to punish public officials who have done their duty; to employ counsel to invoke the aid of courts."

VANITY AND EGOTISM.

He says further: "Tennessee has always and always will be, not only friendly, but cordial to investment in its boundaries, when that capital comes to obey and not make its laws. Tennessee needs and will welcome more railroads, provided they will not try to create monopoly, will not tax their patrons sums beyond profitable rates for the purpose of enabling them to maintain a lobby and legislative agents that harm the railroad, and by their work only please the vanity and egotism of those who happen to be their temporary officials. Let every corporation in Tennessee and every corporation that will come to Tennessee remember that they are created by law and are not creators of the law, with powers to coerce the lawmakers and direct the desires of the lawgivers, and there will be no anti-corporation fight in Tennessee."

THE GOVERNMENT CAN STOP IT.

I recently appealed to the National Government for help to stop this great interstate road from taxing the people of the State to debauch the voters of Alabama, and to see to it that they quit coercion in the politics of Alabama. There is power in Washington to see that the Government of Alabama is left to the people of Alabama, and that the railroads shall be restricted to the running of their railroad. All railroads or any other interests should be run under the protection and control of the Government. If I succeed in accomplishing this, I have discharged the greatest service that could fall to the lot of a citizen of any State.

FROM FEDERAL COURT TO FEDERAL COURT.

The tragedy being committed by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, in going around from Federal Court to Federal Court seeking an injunction against statute rates—passenger and freight—of Alabama, can be equalled only by the red-headed peckerwood as he flies from tree to tree sounding for some rottenness in which to get a worm.

The late decisions of the Federal Judges and our Federal Supreme Court indicate that the people's rights—State's rights—are again above the horizon and we trust that the future will always insure this foundation to safe, good government.

AVOID DELILAH'S LAP.

In thanking Senator Lea and the Federal Senate for this reply to my appeal to the Federal authorities, God grant the Interstate Commerce Commission success in putting a stop to the most unrighteous interference with our State Government. To the people of Alabama, I declare again and again that my position in politics is to hurt nothing but to build up everything, but again and again I caution them to remember the story of Samson and not go to sleep in Delilah's lap. You will be delivered to the Philistines, your eyes put out and you be made to grind and grind and grind.

TRAINMEN WILL GET AN INCREASE

$6,000,000 ANNUAL WAGE INCREASE GRANTED BY BOARD OF ARBITRATION.

AWARD OF BOARD BINDING

Knotty Labor Problem Solved After Lengthy Arguments—Cost of Living Considered.

New York.—The long-lived controversy between railroads of the east and their conductors and trainmen over the latter's demands for more pay has ended. The employes are granted an increase in wages averaging 7 per cent and totaling $6,000,000 annually—about half of what they wanted—from October 1, effective for one year. One hundred thousand men will share in the increase.

Thus ends, by arbitration, under the Newlands amendment to the Erdman act, a controversy that threatened at one time to tie up by strike the transportation facilities of all states east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio. The award of the arbitration commission, filed in the federal district court is binding and final. Two board representatives of employes filed a minority report in addition and the two representatives of the 41 railroads a dissenting opinion.

In reaching its award the board ruled mainly against the employes, on four out of five points submitted as reasons why the increase should be granted, and found for them on the fifth, the increased cost of living. Since 1909, when last an increase was granted, the arbitration found the cost of living has increased 7 per cent. Certain minor contentions embraced also were conceded to the employes. It was therefore more than a coincidence that the increase granted in wages is exactly the increase in the cost of living as outlined by documents introduced by the employes.

"The board does not found its action entirely upon the increased cost of living," reads the award, a document of 75 printed pages, "though it looks upon this as basic."

Without attempting to standardize the rates of pay between railroad employes of the east and the west, the board asserts its belief that it is desirable but not possible at the present time. As to this the award voices the opinion that Congress should make an inquiry as to whether there is any longer a substantial reason for the maintenance of a wage differential between the two sections.

REPORT ON CORN CROP

Crop Will Be Smallest Since 1908, But Is Now Valued at $1,741,353,019.

Washington.—This year's corn crop promises to be the most valuable this or any other nation ever has produced, although the department of agriculture's preliminary estimate of production indicates it will be more than half a billion bushels less in size than the record crop of last year, and the smallest since 1903. Based on the department's figures of 70.7 cents per bushel, the average farm value on November 1, the crop, as now estimated, is worth $1,741,353,019, while the value of the 1912 record crop was $1,520,454,000. The previous most valuable crop was that of 1909, when it was worth $1,652,822,000.

The department's preliminary estimate of production increased by 90,000,000 bushels, the estimate made in October, and also that made in September. This was taken to indicate that the damage from the very severe drouth in the middle west was somewhat over-estimated. The department's final estimate of production, next month, may show further increase in the size of the crop.

The greatest damage from the drouth is indicated in the figures for Kansas, which show the acre yield there to have been reduced to 3.2 bushels, compared with 23 bushels last year; in Missouri, where the yield was 17.5 bushels compared with last year's 32 bushels, and in Oklahoma, where it was 11 bushels, again 13.7 last year. In Illinois the yield was 13 bushels below last year's yield, in Iowa 9 bushels, in Nebraska 9 bushels, in Indiana 8.7 bushels and in Ohio 5.2 bushels.

For a few moments she stood debating the awful question in her mind, and then she took the box in her hands.

"John need never know," she whispered.

Then, with guilty face, she broke open the box and emptied on to the table a collection of—tin tacks, nails, etc.

Capt. W. L. Lancaster of Elmore county is a prominent candidate for State Treasurer. He is a man of intellectual force, and great business capacity.

On another page will be found some fuel to keep the Comer pot boiling. Outside of the strong newspapers Mr. Comer seems to be a pretty strong candidate.

If you have no section harrow then sell your shot gun and buy one. We are fond of hunting ourself, but a farmer who is too poor to own a harrow, or a lawyer who is too poor to buy a book, is certainly not in a financial condition to possess the implements of a sportsman. Heel yourself for your fight with fortune, and get a harrow.

The lazy farmer who can't find time to sow fall oats, should move to the country that Pat tells about. He said that in the old country the days are twice as long as they are in America, and there are twice as many of them.

We call attention to communications in this issue relating to school interests of the county. The writers are not verbose wind-jammers, but speak volumes in a few words that hit the spot. Let us heed what they say.

Pay your debts. There is no better use to which that wad of money can be put. Pay them cheerfully and joyfully, for this spirit begets, or confirms confidence in your business integrity and capacity, which becomes a valuable asset in future business enterprises. Settle your account with the Press. It is doing its share toward building up interests in which all are concerned, and should have a good, wide slice right out of the very heart of the loaf of the general prosperity and joy. Don't dodge any creditor but come right across with the "dough,' and keep a smile on your countenanc, iu the meantime—a mean time it may indeed appear to be!

The Journal Welcomes Ministers Into Journalism

The Journal welcomes the ministers into the new and wider field of usefulness, that of journalism, which they seem to be invading just now. The Geiger Times is now edited by a minister, as are the Clanton Press and the Alexander City Outlook. Dr. J. W. Stagg, one of the best known ministers in Alabama, is editor of the former, Rev. C. R. Lamar, a.n equally well known minister, of the Press, and Rev. J. W. Hamner, also a well-known minister, of the Outlook. All three of the papers in question attracted unusual attention under their new editorial management, and each is showing decided ability and considerable knowledge of politics in Alabama. But ministers, we see, differ on candidates and policies, just like laymen, and we may be pardoned if we have occasion some times to differ with either or all of them on questions of policy and questions as to the most available candidates. However, we shall not anticipate trouble. We shall hope for the best. The Journal extends to each and all of the preacher-editors welcome into Alabama journalism, and assure them there is work for them, lots of work, looking for the betterment of mankind and of conditions socially, politically, and in other ways, and a wide field of usefulness for their varied talents.—Montgomery Journal.

B. M. Roberts sells hairy Vetch.

The editor, some days ago, in a railroad waiting room, had a pleasant chat with F. Loyd Tate, our efficient Circuit Solicitor, who has proved a terror to evil doers, and "the praise for them that do well." He is a successful farmer, as well as an able lawyer, and is enthusiastic in his endorsement of hairy vetch, which he has been growing ing in his oats for several years. He made a fine oat crop this year, but at the time he cut it, you could not see the oats for the vetch which wrapped up the whole field and reached as high as his head—which is pretty high, as well as very level.

Big Show Coming to Clanton

One of America's oldest, richest tented shows, a modernized great combiuation of the very greatest trained wild animals, the most superb horses and ponies, the greatest European and American artists, the latest "thrillers" that mankind can devise and in fact the newest novelties of the present day, all in one union, will be found with Sun Brothers' World's Progressive Shows, now on their twenty-second annual tour and will give two complete exhibitions.

To add to the variety a complete Japanese Circus Company will exhibit in the very cleverest Oriental acts ever imported to this country and now seen in America for the first time.

Over oue hundred great artists appear with this big show. Dean and his matchless band appear at every performance and they are a delight to all that hear their great concerts. The menagerie and wild beast exhibition is complete and an educative diversity.

The great exhibition will appear in its completeness, rain or shine, at Clanton, Nov. 20.

That big sale in millinery is the thing that put Muse in music.

Mr. A. W. Williams of Route 1 called and talked oats and vetch with us.

Mr. E. Hopkins made us a pleasant business call.

Hairy vetch is really a winter pea, and enriches the land like other peas. The editor has raised it, with oats.

B. M. Roberts, near the picture show sells the seed of hairy vetch to plant with oats—ten pounds to the bushel.

Misses Mary Davis and Bertha Smith, two charming young school marms of whom Clanton is very proud, spent Sunday at home here.

Hairy vetch is as easy to cure as oats, and as nutritious to feed as alfalfa. The editor has tried it. "Go thou and do likewise."

Hairy vetch makes from three to ten tons of hay per acre. It is not coarse like peavines and stock ike it better.

I. S. A. Bracey, an intelligent colored man of Route 2, called at our office Friday and subscribed to the Press. We appreciate the interest taken by our many colored subscribers in our humble efforts to improve rural conditions. Their department at our County Fair was especially creditable, and we have had something to say on that subject, but other matter has crowded it out. The products of their farms ranked very high, and their needle-work display was also of a very excellent order. The skill manifested in tailoring the coat-suit which was on exhibitiou, was greatly admired by all visitors.

Hairy vetch grows in winter among your oats without cultivation, and enriches the land as much as a crop of field peas.

Declare War on Colds

A crusade of education which aims "that common colds may become uncommon within the next generation" has been begun by prominent New York physicians. Here is a list of the "don'ts" which the doctors which the doctors say will prevent the annual visitation of the cold:

"Don't sit in a draughty car."
"Don't sleep in hot rooms."
"Don't avoid the fresh air."
"Don't stuff yourself at meal time. Overeating reduces your resistance."

To which we would add—when you take a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. To accomplish that you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy most excellent. Sold by Alred Drug Co.

Sow hairy vetch in your orchard and let the weeds grow for it to lean against, and it will grow as high as your head every year, without any more planting, or any further attention. The peas from it will not rot, but lie on the ground for your hogs next Summer. It will fatten your stock, and enrich your lands.

Hairy vetch will grow as high as the fence, no matter how poor the land, or how high the fence. The editor has measured vines twelve feet long, on land that would hardly sprout cow peas. Mix it with your seed oats—ten pounds to the bushel.

Maid Had Helped.

Young Van Winkle waited nervously in the parlor for Julia to appear. He had been sitting there, twiddling his thumbs, for half an hour. Finally a step was heard in the hall and he rose to his feet expectantly.

But it was not Julia. It was her maid.

"Marie," said the impatient young man, "what keeps your mistress so long? Is she making up her mind whether she'll see me or not?"

"No, sir," answered the maid with a wise smirk. "It isn't her mind she's making up."

Needed Only the Beginning.

Anatole France once agreed to write an essay on Moliere. He repeatedly broke his promise to his publisher, who finally threatened him with legal proceedings unless a certain number of pages were delivered within a specified time. France hurried off to his lawyer, who was none other than Raymond Poincare, now president. M. Poincare heard his story and said that the author would better comply with the publisher's demand. "It's impossible," said France. "But you're a genius," was the reply. "Genius is infinite patience. I can't possibly do it in the time," said France. "Nevertheless begin," replied the advocate, "and we'll see." So Poincare dictated the first sentence, "Moliere is a Parisian," and added, "Go on from there." France was complacent, perhaps inspired by the suggestion of the words, and the brilliant piece of criticism was easily done in time.

WORKS ALL DAY And Studies at Night on Grape-Nuts Food.

Some of the world's great men have worked during the day and studied evenings to fit themselves for greater things. But it requires a good constitution generally to do this.

A Ga. man was able to keep it up with ease after he had learned the sustaining power of Grape-Nuts, although he had failed in health before he changed his food supply. He says:

"Three years ago I had a severe attack of stomach trouble which left me unable to eat anything but bread and water.

"The nervous strain at my office from 6 A. M. to 6 P. M. and improper foods caused my health to fail rapidly. Cereal and so-called "Foods" were tried without benefit until I saw Grape-Nuts mentioned in the paper.

"In hopeless desperation I tried this food and at once gained strength, flesh and appetite. I am now able to work all day at the office and study at night, without the nervous exhaustion that was usual before I tried Grape-Nuts.

"It leaves me strengthened, refreshed, satisfied; nerves quieted and toned up, body and brain waste restored. I would have been a living skeleton, or more likely a dead one by this time, if it had not been for Grape-Nuts."

AFLOAT WITHOUT FOOD

SAILORS IN PANIC ABANDON VESSEL WITHOUT CAUSE AND SUFFER DISASTROUSLY.

The Abandoned Vessel Precedes Them Into Port, and Was Practically Undamaged.

Portland, Maine.—The probable loss of their captain, Vincent Nelson, and three of their mates and the death of one, form part of a tale of the sea brought here by the survivors of the crew of the Gloucester fishing schooner Annie N. Parker. The fact that their abandonment of the stranded schooner near Nantucket and the loss of life was unnecessary was not known to the crew until word reached them that the schooner was in port at New Bedford virtually undamaged.

Nine survivors of the Parker's crew reached here aboard the lumber schooner Tifton, from Jacksonville, which had picked them up from Dories, 30 miles off Nantucket.

Reuben Kenney, the cook, was drowned when he was swept overboard from a dory while his mates looked on powerles to help. His home was at Glenwood, N. S. He leaves seven children. The missing men, besides Captain Nelson, are:

Lester Fletcher of Argyle Soun, N. S.; Ross Worthen of Pubnico Head, N. S., and Thomas Landry

Three boats were put over the leeward side before one was launched. The first was smashed, the second was swamped, the third was floated and eight men put out in it. Two other boats were dropped overboard safely on the windward side. The first held three men, thel ast contained Captain Nelson and three of his crew.

It was pitch dark and the dory crews were lost to the view of each other almost in a moment. The last seen of the boat in which Captain Nelson left his ship was when it was rounding the bow of the schooner.

By an odd chance the Parker preceded her crew into port. Stanch and firm apparently and with only a jib missing, she was towed into New Bedford, raising the question, "Why should a good ship be abandoned by its crew, and where was the crew?"

The Parker had floated herself from the ledge and had been sighted drifting with all sails set by the British steamer Astrakkan, which placed a prize crew aboard.

Snow 15 Inches Deep in Alleghanies.

Cumberland, Md.—Snow has reached a depth of 15 inches at Elkins, W. Va., and other points in the eastern Alleghanies, in Maryland, West Virginia and southern Pennsylvania. The fall continues and the wind is blowing a gale. Traffic on the western Maryland and Baltimore and Ohio railroads is greatly interfered with because of wire trouble and drifts. Several trains on branch lines are snow-bound.

Cost of Living Too High to Live.

Kansas City.—The cost of living in the region of Kansas City has increased 59 per cent. in ten years, while the wages of skilled workers have been augmented a fraction more than 26 per cent., according to conclusions reached by George A. Traylor, agent of the department of labor. "For the unskilled laborer," Mr. Trayer said, "there has been almost no change in wage. The supply being greater than the demand, wages have not increased. The common school has proved a factor in increasing the cost of living."

MANY NEW BANKS ARE ORGANIZED

INCREASE IN FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, ACCORDING TO EXAMINER'S REPORT.

NOT A FAILURE RECORDED

Gorman Declares Banks of Alabama In Most Prosperous and Flourishing Condition.

Montgomery.—Twenty-one new state banks were organized in Alabama during the fiscal year ending September 30 last, and there was a marked increase in the business of the various financial institutions of the state, according to the report of Examiner of Public Accounts J. T. Gorman of the state banking department, submitted to Governor O'Neal.

Examiner Gorman's report shows in detail the progress which has been made by all the state banks since the organization of the state banking department in March, 1911. The department has supervision over 258 banks and 28 branch banks, representing a capital stock of $12,900,000 and $50,000,000 in deposits.

In addition to the state banks, there are 92 national banks in the state, with a capital stock of $10,500,000 and $37,000,000 in deposits. Altogether the various banks of the state have a capital stock of $23,400,000 and deposits amounting to $87,000,000, according to the examiner.

The examiner calls attention to the fact that there was not a single bank failure in the state during the past fiscal year, nor was there one dollar lost by any of the depositors.

"The banks of Alabama are now in the most prosperous and flourishing condition in their history," declares Mr. Gorman.

Examiner Gorman declared that the books of the state banking department are correctly kept, and that the affairs of the department are economically and systematically managed. The receipts of the department for the fiscal year were $9745, an increase of $680 over the preceding year.

Some interesting items contained in Examiner Gorman's report show that there has been an increase in capital in state banks since the department was created of $2,400,000 with an increase in surplus of $1,800,000. Increase in loans and discounts, $10,000,000; deposits, $15,000,000. There was a decrease in overdrafts of $1,250,000.

The state banks organized during the year were:

October 1, 1912: Grand Bay State bank, Grand Bay, Ala. Capital paid in, $10,000.

October 9, 1912: Bank of Madrid, Madrid, Ala. Capital paid in, $10,000.

PROGRESS OF SCHOOLS.

German Compliments Educational Department on Goods Work.

Montgomery.—Marked improvement in every department of the educational system of the state is shown by the report of Examiner of Public Accounts J. T. Gorman, who has completed an examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of Superintendent of Education Henry J. Willingham. The report was submitted to Governor O'Neal.

Examiner Gorman's report is one of the most interesting that has been filed in the governor's office during the present administration. It shows in detail and in condensed form the progress made by the schools of the state, to what extent the state appropriations have been increased and many interesting facts relative to the various teachers' institutes and higher institutions of learning. The examiner begins his report by complimenting the educational department upon the excellent condition in which he found the books of all the departments.

The examiner showed that the total appropriation for the public schools for the scholastic year 1912-13 was $2,259,197.45, an increase of $95,863.09 over the preceding year. The high schools of the state received $147,000, an increase of $17,250 over the preceding year, and the higher institutions, including the University of Alabama, the Alabama Polytechnic institute, the nine agricultural schools and other institutions received a total of $221,780.

Altogether, the state paid out for educational purposes more than two-fifths of its entire revenue, or $2,627,977.45.

Most of this money was used in paying teachers, $2,126,378.70 having been expended for this purpose.

Examiner Gorman gave in detail the amount of appropriation to the various educational institutions. In brief, these amounts are as follows: University of Alabama, $86,000; Alabama Polytechnic Institute, $87,280; nine agricultural schools, $40,500; six normal schools, $90,000; colored normal schools, $22,000. The disbursements to the various white and colored teachers' institutes amounted to more than $5,000.

In addition to calling attention to the various amounts appropriated out of the state treasury, Examiner Gorman gave in details the disbursements out of the Morrill fund, received from the government; the general educational board fund, also received from the government, and the Peabody fund, which is paid out for rural school purposes.

From the sale of school indemnity lands and sixteenth section lands the state received $28,571.23, while $1,752.61 was received from the rental of sixteenth section lands.

Examiner Gorman declared that over 40 counties have local taxation for schools and 43 counties have high schools. "The schools require more money and a more liberal method of taxation should be provided," the report says. "When this is done Alabama will have one of the most successful and efficient systems of public education in the United States."

JUDGE J. B. GASTON DIES.

cDistinguished Career of Montgomery Physician and Public Servant Ended By Death.

Montgomery.—Judge J. B. Gaston, for 50 years a leading and beloved citizen of Montgomery, died at the home of his son, Bernard Gaston, on Clayton street. He was in his 80th year, and death followed a protracted illness of more than a year's length. On November 6 Judge Gaston submitted to Governor O'Neal his resignation as Probate Judge, having realized that he would not be able to again to attend to his duties in the office.

GAME AND FISH REPORT.

Past Fiscal Year Most Successful, Showing Good Administration.

Montgomery.—Administration of the state game and fish department was most successful during the past fiscal year, and the revenues were in excess of the receipts of the previous year, according to the report of Examiner J. T. Gorman, filed in the office of Governor O'Neal.

The balance in the treasury to the credit of the department at the close of business September 20 last was $32,051.65, which was $3,847.73 in excess of the balance on hand on September 30, 1912.

Daylight at All Hours.

Dr. Herbert E. Ives of London has invented daylight, he says. Scientific men have worked for years trying to accomplish this task. Doctor Ives has been at work for at least a dozen, and he asserts he has finally produced a light which is in every way equal to sunshine. The scientist has designed a powerful incandescent lamp with a special mantle, which is so placed in a cabinet he has designed that its rays are immediately beneath a reflector. This is made of metal, and the light is forced downward through a series of delicately colored screens, so arranged that the average rays which are not found in the north light are eliminated, and the effect, it is said, is that of a perfect harmony of light similar in every way to the rays of the sun.

HUMOR DISFIGURED BABY

Clarendon, N. C.—"My baby was broken out with a red, thick and rough-looking humor when about two months old. It would come in patches and went almost all over her in that way. The places were like ringworm and as they would spread they would turn red and make sores and itch. The trouble went to her face and disfigured her badly. Her clothes irritated it.

"I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I got a sample and in one night's time I could see a change in the redness and in two days the place would be nearly gone. I sent and got one twenty-five cent cake of Cuticura Soap and two fifty-cent boxes of Cuticura Ointment, which cured my baby. She was well in three months." SAGE TEA DARKENS GRAY HAIR TO ANY SHADE. TRY IT!

Keep Your Locks Youthful, Dark, Glossy and Thick With Common Garden Sage and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Adv.

ALABAMA.

BY C. R. LAMAR.

Respectfully inscribed to Dr. W. S. Wyman, whom every Alabamian delights to honor.

"Here we rest," Alabama. Thy spell is upon us.
For a time we withdraw from the strenuous life;
We yield to the charms which here sweetly surround us,
Exorcising the demons of Envy and Strife.
Our rest is not that which is free from endeavor,
But comes to the weary, from toil that is meet,
It blesses, because it is sweetened forever.
By sweat of the farm, or the shop, or the street.

'Tis the rest of the toiler, and not of the idle,
Of miner and artisan, not of the tramp.
It quiets the mart and the hum of the spindle;
'Tis peace for both palace and engineer's camp.
It is rest for the body in mental employment;
For minds in repose, while the physical man,
In muscular effort, finds gain and enjoyment,
Now felling the forest, now tilling the plain.

Here is rest for the aged when foot-step shall falter,
When fore-head is wrinkled, and locks have grown grey;
Warm glow at the fire-side, joy at the altar,
To gladden lone hours of life's "rainy-day."
Here is rest for the care-worn, the burdened in spirit,
Who long for those transports this world does not hold:
Our temples, our altars, our pulpits interpret
This gospel of rest to the weary of soul.

Here is rest for the pilgrim—sad, pensive, returning
From far-distant lands where in youth he might roam;
Now, unable to cope with hard selfishness, yearning
For friendly embraces and greetings at home.
Here is help for the hapless, a hand for the impotent,
Shelter for orphan and embecile weak;
A haven for storm-tossed, relief for the indigent,
Work for the unemployed, care for the sick.

We rest in thy fields, rich in harvest and blossom;
In woods whose deep shades and dim grottoes invite:
In homes, where all modern appointments embosom
A greeting most cordial, a grace most polite.
Thy daughters are fair as the flowers they cherish,
Thine atmosphere pure as the Isles of the Blest;
Only things that annoy and contaminate perish.
Oh, here let us linger. 'Tis here me may REST.

As thy mocking-bird blends every song of the forest,
So thou, what is best in each several State:
Thy climate, thy people, thy soils are the rarest,
Thy factories, mines, and furnaces great.
Thy mountains all flame with the glory of morning.
Thy prairies are sweet with the breath of thy coast,
Great schools and rich temples thy hill-tops adorning
Gleam forth as the gems that embellish thy breast.

A CLANTONIAN ABROAD

Mr. Claude Reynolds, a former Clantonian, and a very promising young man, sends us his subscription, and pleasant greetings from Rutherford, Ala., where he is making his home. He is good metal allright, or he would have been fractured or punctured in the collision which took place on our streets some days since, between his motorcycle and Dr. Matthews' automobile. All parties escaped injury except the poor motorcycle. This casulty settled a speculative problem which has long floated around in our mind, as to the possible condition of things which might result should an irresistible projectile encounter an impenetrable obstruction.

FAIR MANAGEMENT CRITICISED

The management of our County Fair are open to criticism, but we must remember that we all make mistakes. To abolish the Fair, or to cripple its usefulness on account of mistakes, would be like burning down the barn to get rid of a wasp nest. Let us punch down the wasp-nest, and keep the barn.

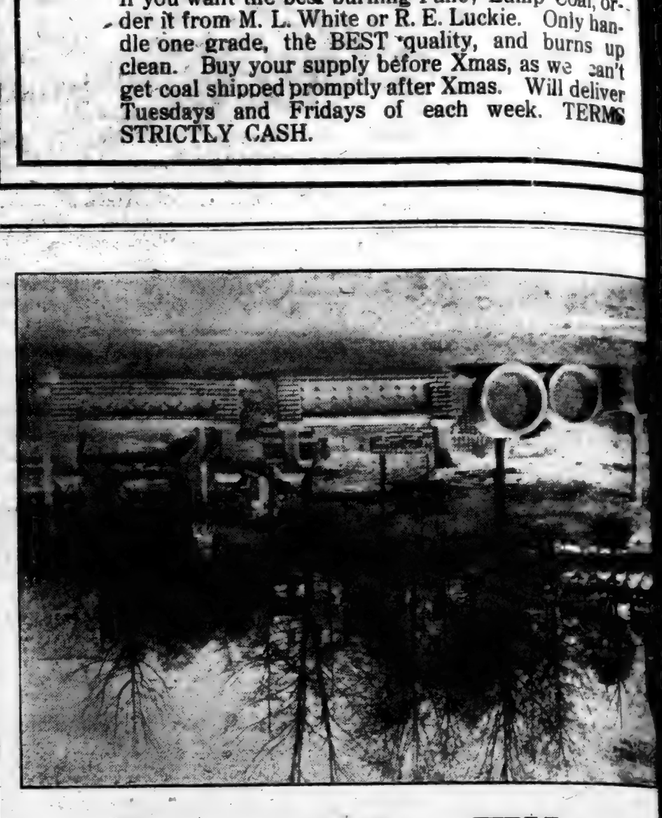
Passing of the Street Parade

Sun Brothers Explain Why They Have Abandoned This Old Traditional Feature.

For many reasons the management of Sun Brothers World's Progressive Shows has decided to abandon the street parade which has, in years past, been the usual thing with traveling organizations of this size and character. It is set forth in many instances the late arrival of the trains bearing the paraphernalia makes it impossible to give a parade and start the afternoon performance on time. Through these delays the public is compelled to experience a tedious wait, while the work of preparing for the performance goes on. Again it is considered an unnecessary hardship to compel men, women and horses to parade for one or two hours before beginning the afternoon performance, especially where it is considered that two shows every day are the rule with this exhibition. By doing away with the street pageant, men and women and horses are fresh for their performance and it would seem that the public is entitled to a perfect performance, which it pays for, rather than to a free street parade which gives, at best, but a poor idea of the magnitude of the exhibition.

The show will positively exhibit at Clanton, afternoon and night, on Thursday, Nov. 20, rain or shine.

EDUCATIONAL BOARO TO MEET



The County Educational Board of Chilton County will hold regular meetings in the court house at Clanton, on lhe Third Frieay in November and December, and also in Januuay, 1914, for the purpose of attending to any business that may properly come before it.

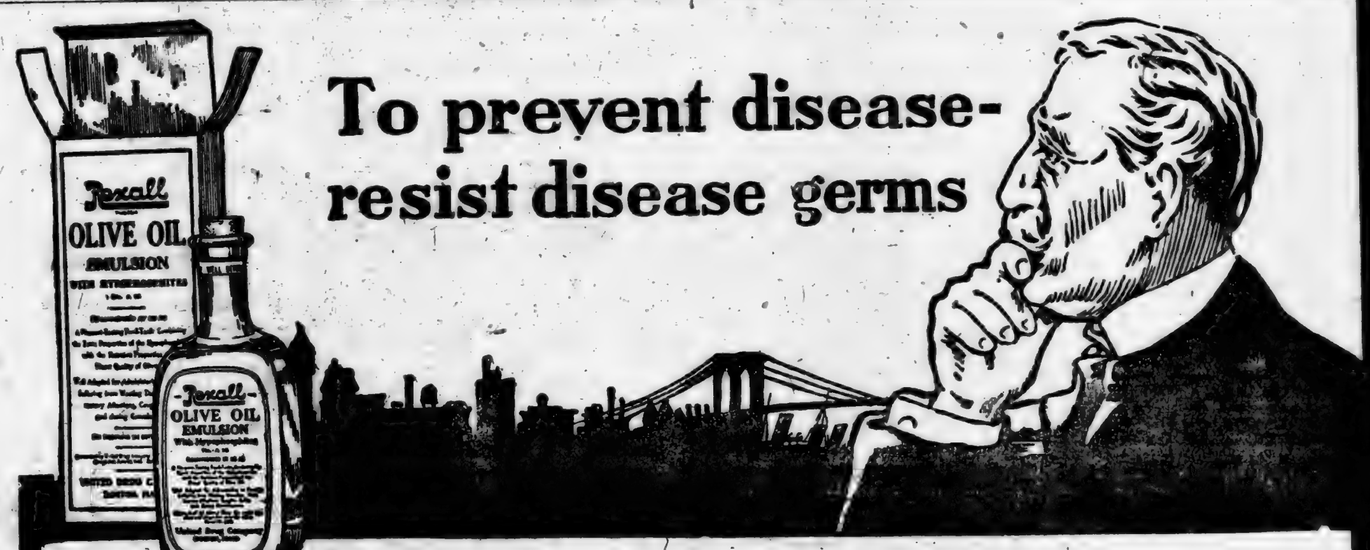
The World at Your Door

The vast expanse of sea and land makes a fascinating appeal to those of us inflicted with the wanderlust.

The queer, the mystic, the unreal; the rush and whir of commerce; the dash and noise of the busy city; the imagination is stimulated and day dreams of effort and conquest hold sway.

There is the pleasing picture of powerful floating palaces, plowing the sea, bound for foreign ports; the vision of upholstered coaches drawn by great and swiftly moving engines to the wonderful capitals of the globe.

The world—a mighty empire of land and water, of ease and effort, of content and contest, of sincerity and sin—with its ever shifting kaleidoscope of human emotions, is at the door of those living along the lines of the L. & N.



The L. & N. supplies unexcelled facilities to the traveler to or from any part of the civilized globe. Through its highly developed and efficient organization it has formed connections that enable the man in Alabama to travel to Boston or Bombay at a minimum of expense and maximum pleasure.

Whether a shipment of freight is consigned to or from Manila or Mandalay, the L. & N. can supply the swiftest surest service to those in its territory.

Every intricacy of transportation has been explored and solved by the L. & N. organization. It is on the basis of satisfactory service and pleasant dealings that the L. & N. appeals for freight and passenger traffic. It stands without a superior among the railroads of the world. It is a successful organization working in co-operation with the people, for the profitable development of the territory through which it operates.

We solicit your patronage, good will and co-operation.

To prevent disease- resist disease germs

SMALLPOX is prevented by vaccination — the injection of vaccine.
DIPHTHERIA is prevented by the injection of anti-toxin.
These enable the body to produce substances which prevent the growth of smallpox and diphtheria germs in the blood.
There are many other diseases, nearly, if not quite as dangerous, and far more common — typhoid fever, the grippe, bronchitis, pneumonia, catarrh, rheumatism, and a score of others — that can be prevented less painfully and more easily by making the body strong to resist germ infection.

Is designed for the prevention as well as the relief of disease — by enabling the body to overcome the germs. It, at the same time, strengthens and tones the nerves, nourishes the blood, puts the entire system into a proper healthy condition to combat and successfully resist disease.

Every person not in perfect health has incipient germs of some distressing ailment in his or her system.
Cold weather, over-work, excesses of any kind, are liable to bring about just the conditions under which those latent disease germs will get the upper hand, and put you on your back "down sick."

You who, though not sick enough to give up, still don't feel good—
You who are apparently well, and want to stay well—
Take home a bottle of Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion today, and use it as a means to get well and keep well.
Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is a real nerve-food tonic.
In this it is different from most other so-called "tonics" which either have no food value and do nothing more than temporarily stimulate you, leaving you in a worse condition than before or, having food value, still are so unpleasant to take that many people can't keep them down.

STATE HIGHWAY

The Birmingham-Montgomery highway is now pretty well assured it will be worth more to the readers of this paper than would be two railroads. Clanton will double its population in a few years, and the county will be benefited much more than the town. Wealthy people will build handsome homes all along the thoroughfare, and poor people in touch with its benefits will soon blossom into millionaires. Flower gardens, truck farms, dairies and orchards will spring up like magic, and all kinds of produce will find a ready market, and big prices, at the front gate, where auto-trucks of the capacity of many tons will make their daily calls. Green field peas will produce a greater revenue than the cotton bales and butter, eggs, milk, poultry and hogs will command fancy prices in the hands of competing buyers. Farmers living on the highway will haul to market sixteen bales of cotton with one pair of mules, as they now do in Elmore and Montgomery counties, and farmers off the highway will soon be demanding graded roads in every direction to connect them with it. This writer has lived in Elmore county, and has heard farmers who opposed the bond issue of $170,000, clamoring for a new bond issue in order to extend the graded roads to the every quarter of the county. Our highways have saved multiplied thousands of dollars by economising horseflesh and vehicles, to say nothing of the breath and nervous energy that would have been spent in profanity. Farmers who twelve months ago swore at the chauffeurs for frightening their mules, have found that the good roads so increased their volumes that they can now afford autos of their own. This highway means the tocsin which strikes the hour of destiny for Chilton county. The bugle-blast of progress is sounding at our gates, while prosperity as a goddess, garlanded with harvest sheaves, sceptered with the horn of plenty, and attended by a rich retinue of social graces, wheels into view, seated in touring car We feel sorry for people who have been shading their eyes from light of civilization, retreating before the advancing wave of our industrial revolution. And as the stars in their courses fought against Sisera in ancient Palestine, so our very geography, our fertile soil, our sunny skies and our balmy breezes conspire in rebellion against the diabolical efforts to exalt ignorance and to apotheosize proletarianism. Our roads from the center to the circumference of Chilton county shall some day be graded and graveled and our fields under improved methods of agriculture shall blossom like the Garden of God. Our conscientious, but misguided old mules shall sleep the sleep of the just and their children will become part of the wealthiest, the proudest, the happiest and the most cultured people on the face of the earth. We will garnish the tombs of these prophets of evil whom we are now compelled to stone with hard fermentation, and cherish their sainted memory while forgetting their unwise counsels.

COUNTRY LIFE

I have known some country homes in which the inmates merely sojourned, with much discontent and impatience, waiting for the opportunity to visit some town, the only thing worth while. I once had a country home myself where comfort and contentment dwelt and where affection and ambition centered, to find their inspiration and their out-

Our town friends flocked out in great numbers to share our joys and to study our plans, and strangers slowed down their automobiles or their teams, to admire and to envy a happiness into which they could not penetrate. It is possible to make all our country homes so attractive that the poor town dwellers will realize their privations, and long for the pleasant retreats and unimportable luxuries which we possess. Then the brainy boy will remain on the farm, and only those who do not possess sufficient genius and force of character to follow the vocation of scientific agriculture will feel disposed to seek the simpler problems presented by city employments.

There are several obstacles in the way of a complete realization of this ideal condition, and we wish from time to time to discuss them. One of these obstacles we find in the class of teachers who at present are in charge of the country schools, and who give color and type to the aspirations of the country boy. He is taught to regard his residence in the rural district as a misfortune, and his continuance on the farm as a confession of inferiority. Instead of being taught that farm conditions can be improved, and can furnish the broadest scope for his genius, as well as offer the highest rewards for his efforts, the idea is instilled into his mind that to better his condition, he must be something better than a farmer.

Generally speaking, this is not the fault of the teacher, but of the course of training through which he has himself passed. He has been a country boy himself, and has become a teacher in order to escape manual labor, under the same kind of advice which he is now imparting to others. His education is defective because he has not attended a modern, up-to-date high school which is under the influence and direction of the Agricultural Department of our state and of the United States. In these high-schools, as they are now constituted, the elementary principles of agriculture are taught, and the possibilities of agricultural advancement and expansion are made plain. The student's life is brought close to the great heart of nature, and feels the inspiration of her alluring calls to duty and to adventure. The student's eyes are opened to the vast possibilities, and to the brilliant careers which are open in the field of scientific agriculture, and counts himself fortunate that there are avenues to distinction and to wealth which do not lead through the old and effete professions. The cure for the evil which we all see, is for the country teacher to inform himself in regard to country life, looking at it, not through the medium of his own experience which abounds is hardships, but through its blessed possibilities now being realized in many rural homes, where plenty and contentment dwell The modern high-school with its emphasis upon the study of rural life as a preparation for rural occupations, has been appropriately called "the poor man's college," though it is destined to make the poor boy rich. It is the source from which the corn-club and the tomato-club movent have gone out into all our land, and it has untold other movements to follow. There is no corner of our state which has not felt the influence of these high-schools, and the nearer they come to us the stronger and the more uplifting the influence becomes. We will have its full benefits when Chilton county children are taught by Chilton county teachers who have attended a Chilton county high-school.

LADIES INVITED

BROOKS LAWRENCE

We have a partial fondness for the dear old Advertiser, and never feel like we have had our breakfast until we have perused its columns, but, like all great papers, it has some faults, which Brooks Lawrence, in his "Alabama Citizen," seems determined to correct. His persistent efforts remind us of the little boy's prayer. He was tacking on to his stereotyped, "Now, I lay me down to sleep" a number of extemporaneous petitions when he remembered that a cold wave always brought an outbreak of influenza into the family, so he added, to the amusement of the home circle, "Lord, make it hot for grandma." Is the coming of Brooks Lawrence in answer to that prayer?

FROM MR. OLIVER

Verbena, Ala., Nov. 15, 1913

Editor Press:—The card I wrote you was not intended for publication, but as you seemed at a loss to understand what I meant, I am glad you did me the kindness, because those who read the Press of Nov. 6th, did see the propriety of calling your attention to the criticism.

In your lengthy reply, like others, you wander off, but you saw a good opportunity to go out after the "wool hat boys," and I don't care a bit, for you said some good things, not new of course, but good just the same.

Now, if you will hustle around and get a lot of subscribers to read your able editorials, poems, etc., you will make "a hit" in your new field of labor.

If you are still "on the war path" you must look some where else for a scrap, for I don't intend to go further you have traveled too much and know too many big words and would always "get" me.

Yours truly,

THE HOBSON GAME

All croquet players will appreciate Hobson's tactics in the game being played in Alabama. All the inferior players have clubbed against him, and are "playing partners" to keep him away from his wicket. Mr. Hobson ought not to complain as "the cracker-jack" in the game generally confronts this kind of a line-up. He is now a rover, and none doubt his ability to hit the post at long range.

JACKSONVILLE TO SEATTLE

THE GREAT NORTH-WEST; REV. J. TOY WILLIAMS WRITES INTERESTINGLY OF LONG VOYAGE.

In a note to the Press before leaving Seattle, I promised to write some things that may be of interest to the readers of the Press.

Mrs. Williams and I left Jacksonville, Fla. on Monday night, September 29th, for Seattle, to catch the steamer for Cantou, China. We arrived in Seattle Monday morning, October 6th. We went via. Birmingham, Kansas City, Denver and Portland. The route was 3697 miles. It was a very delightful trip. The great rolling plains of the West, and the grandeur of the Rocky mountains was enough to inspire me to a greater appreciation of America than ever before.

MOUNTAINS

Pikes' Peak was the first mountain we saw; it came into view early one morning, as we sped across the almost desert plains of Colorado. Mrs. Williams guessed it to be a mile away, when it was thirty miles from us so you see how distance may deceive, when near a mountain. Pikes Peak is always covered with snow and is one of [illegible] river for several miles. It is very narrow, and on each side the rocks rise almost perpendicularly for two thousand feet. It is beyond any power of language to describe, so I shall not attempt it.

For three days we were in sight of mountains, many of which were capped with snow. To those who want to see the beauties of the world, we would say, by all means see America first.

THE NORTH-WEST

It is very interestiug to see how men have made the desert blossom as a rose in the West. A great portion of Utah and Idaho is just a vast desert waste, but here and there a stream of water is found, which is spread out over the vallevs by irrigation, and crops grow very luxuriantly. The land is very fertile and just needs water to bring large crops. Apples, sugar-beets and alfalfa were the principal crops I saw.

As I saw these fields of alfalfa, with huge stacks of valuable hay, my thoughts often turned to the "Sunny South," and to Chilton County, and I wondered if alfalfa could be successfully grown there. It would be a great thing for the county if it can be. If you get tired of Chilton county, go to the great north-west to farm.

AT SEA

There are many interesting things at sea, but for fear I may kill too much space, I shall not speak of them.

Our voyage has been quite pleasant. There is a party of twenty-one Southern Baptist missionaries on board the steamer, and the fellowship of these has been quite dear; since there has not been much sea-sickness, we all have been happy,

One incident that will be of interest to school children and to teachers is the Internatioual Date Line. On one Thursday morning we sat down to breakfast at eight thirty and continued to eat till nine oclock Friday morning. You may think that was a long breakfast, but it was only thirty minutes. At eight forty we crossed the date line. The 180th meridian of longitude has been decided as the International Date Line. It was Thursday on one side and Friday on the other. Since the sun goes all round, it would be a question as to where one day would stop and another begin. So for convenience, this parallel has been selected.

This morning we sighted land for the first time in eighteen days. As we sighted the coast of Japan we could imagine how Columbus felt when he first sighted land after his long voyage. We are going along the coast of one of the Japanese Islands today and will land in Yokohama, Japan tomorrow. Next I will write abot Japan.

J. TOY WILLIAMS.

On board S. S. "Tamba Maru."

WOODY AND UNDERWOODY

Mr. Wilson was selected to the presidency because of his opposition to boss-rule, and because of his promise to bring all government close to the people, by nominating-primaries. The election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people is also in line with his policy. It is a gross misrepresentation of Mr. Wilson to intimate that he now arrogates to himself the right to dictate to the people of Alabama who shall be sent to Washington to serve on committees of the house and senate. We have not merely swapped horses but we abolished the [illegible] Wilson. [illegible]

A Night of Terror

Few nights are more terrible than that of a mother looking on her child choking and gasping for breath during an attack of croup; and nothing in the house to relieve it. Many mothers have passed nights of terror in this situation. A little forethought will enable you to avoid all this. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Keep it at hand. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

Wilson, who has been forced to deny that Ryan financed his campaign. Don't force him to deny that he is trying to nominate an Alabama senator.

Mr Underwood is doing himself great injustice when he projects his campaign for the senate upon the low plane of his availability as an underling of Woodrow Wilson, after his friends had so recently conducted his presidential campaign upon his claims of great seperioriiy. It leaves the impression that he possesses a compliant disposition, which yields with an easy grace in the presence of powerful influences which he has found himself unable to resist or to direct. It gives color to the claim that he can be made a "dupe" where he would scorn to be a "tool." He is too great a man to adopt so unworthy a policy. Every Alabamian is proud of the record he has made, and has considered his success as due to his own power of initiative, rather than to the facility with which he yields to stronger minds, and execute the mandates of stronger wills: It is a humiliation to his real friends and ardent admirers to see him urged as a proper man for the senate because the president applauded him at Mobile, or because his colleagues wish to see him promoted. All this serves to strengthen the charge that "anything to beat Hobson" is the motive of his candidacy. If it cannot be shown that that charge is a slander then it is useless to waste breath in discussing other charges. No one believes that Underwood can be nominated. The question is, can he be elected? Can he be led? Is he leading Woody? And will he be [illegible] and else?

THANKSGIVING DAYS PAST and PRESENT

MONUMENT MARKING THE FIRST LANDING PLACE OF THE PILGRIMS ON CAPE COD

PILGRIMS GOING TO CHURCH

PILGRIM'S HALL, PLYMOUTH

PILGRIM EXILES.

THANKSGIVING DAY has a long and curious history and did not originate entirely with the Pilgrims at Plymouth, for Thanksgiving days are mentioned in the Bible—days set apart for giving thanks to God for some special mercy. These days of fast and prayer were customary in England before the Reformation, and later the Protestants appointed certain days of praise and thanks for various blessings. The discovery of the Gunpowder Plot in 1605 in London brought the common sentiment of Thanksgiving. A scheme had been formed to blow up parliament house on the 5th of November, the first day of the session. Great quantities of gunpowder and inflammable material were found concealed in the vaults underneath the building. The plot was discovered and the traitors were executed. In consequence of this deliverance the day was ordered to be kept as "a public thanksgiving to Almighty God" every year that "unfeigned thankfulness may never be forgotten, and that all ages to come may yield praises to God's divine majesty for the same." All ministers were ordered to say prepers thereon, for which special forms were provided. This annual thanksgiving, together with one established later on May 29, was abolished in 1833 in England, for both had fallen into disuse. For several years afterwards, however, these days were recognized in New England by the Episcopal church on account of its place in their church calendars. England continued to have special days appointed for giving thanks, and as recently as 1872 there was a day selected for the public to offer prayers of thanksgiving for the recovery of the late King Edward, then prince of Wales, from typhoid fever.

The first thanksgiving on the American continent was held by an English minister named Wolfall, and was celebrated off the coast of Newfoundland. This pious man accompanied the Frobisher expedition which brought the first English colony to North America. The log of the ship gives the record of the day's observances and tells how on Monday, May 28, 1578, aboard the Ayde, the men received communion, and how Minister Wolfall in a sermon gave humble and hearty thanks to God for his miraculous deliverance in these dangerous places. This was the first Christian sermon preached in North American waters. Again in 1607 there was a similar service held at Sagadahoc—a little village on the coast of Maine. There is little record of this thanksgiving except that it consumed only a few hours of the day, after which the people returned to their labors.

The great American Thanksgiving day had its origin in the Massachusetts colony in 1621, and Gov. William Bradford, the first governor of that little band of sturdy pilgrims, sent out the first Thanksgiving proclamation, setting apart a day for prayer and rejoicing over the plenteous harvest of that year. The Englishmen recalled their Guy Fawkes thanksgiving, and the Dutch remembered hearing their ancestors speak of the great day of praise and prayer held at Leyden, Holland, in 1578, when that city was delivered from a siege. So, the entire colony began their pious preparation for what proved to be the gayest Thanksgiving the colony ever knew, for after the first one, which lasted several days, the Puritan Thanksgiving meant long sermons, long prayers and long faces. Governor Bradford determined that the initial Thanksgiving should be celebrated with no little ceremony and that feasting should play a part in the occasion. History tells us that he sent out four men, who were to search for game for the feast. Many fowls were shot—in fact, enough to meet the wants of the colony for a week. Wild turkeys predominated, so it seems that the turkey made its appearance early in the history of Thanksgiving. The day selected was December 13 (old style). At the dawn of that day a small cannon was fired from the hill and a procession was formed near the beach, close to where the Plymouth Rock now rests. Elder Brewster, wearing his ministerial garb and carrying the Bible, led the procession as it moved solemnly along the street. The men walked three abreast, with Governor Bradford in the rear. There was a long service in the meeting house, and after it was over there was a dinner—and such a dinner had never been known in the colony, for, apart from the savory turkey and other wild fowl, the women had done their share in providing good things from the limited supply at their command. The most dramatic incident occurred when the dinner was in progress, for as if by magic 90 friendly red men, under King Massasoit, appeared, carrying haunches of venison as an addition to the feast. Thanksgiving day soon lengthened into days, for the psalm-singing and feasting, interspersed with war dances, were continued several days.

After that Thanksgiving days took on a different aspect and occurred at any season, sometimes twice a year, or sometimes a year or two were skipped, just as it pleased the governor of the colony, until 1664, when the day became a formal one in Massachusetts. Other colonies followed the example, and pretty soon all New England joined in giving thanks on the same day.

During the Revolutionary war Thanksgiving days became a fashion, and the continental congress set apart at least eight days during one year for that purpose. On December 18, 1777, General Washington issued a proclamation for a general Thanksgiving to be celebrated by the soldiers of the Continental army. In 1789 congress decided to ask the president to issue a proclamation asking the people to suspend work and give thanks on a certain day of the year. There had been considerable opposition to the passage of the bill, some of the reasons given being more humorous than serious. President Washington acquiesced in the wishes of congress and issued a proclamation appointing November 26 of that year as the day for the American people to join in thanksgiving to God for the care and protection he had given them in their plentiful harvest and freedom from epidemics.

From time to time our presidents issued proclamations, but it was generally left to the governors of the states to determine on what day it should occur. Under the administration of John Adams two national fast days were observed, but no real Thanksgiving. It was not until 1815, after three national fasts on account of the war, that another national Thanksgiving was appointed by the president, James Madison. This was due to peace with Great Britain. After this there was another lull in proclamations as far as presidents were concerned until 1849, when President Taylor set a day of fast on August the third on account of the cholera. Meanwhile the national Thanksgiving day seemed to be dying out, except in the New England states. Then came the Civil war, and the nation was again summoned to fasting, and two such days were kept in 1861—January 4 and September 26—but it was not until 1863 that the horizon had so brightened as to warrant the appointment of a national Thanksgiving. Immediately after the Battle of Gettysburg Mrs. Sarah J. Hale, a Boston woman, wrote to President Lincoln suggesting a national thanksgiving, and following her advice, the president set apart Thursday, August 6, as a day of "praise and prayer." On November 26 of the same year another Thanksgiving was kept, and this was really a great festival and observed in every northern state. In 1864 the 24th of November was kept. After this, with one exception, our great national day of thanks has been celebrated on the last Thursday in November.

The presidential proclamations contain very little that is new or original and usually take the form of an essay. In 1898, after the Spanish-American war, President McKinley had a chance to vary the conventional form by "giving special thanks for the restoration of peace." This was just 100 years after Washington's proclamation. President Roosevelt, who always did original things, declared "that a Thanksgiving proclamation could not be made a brilliant epigrammatical paper." The proclamation of the president stamps the feast with a sort of official character—something possessed by no other holiday. This proclamation does not make it a legal holiday—it merely recommends that the people suspend business for the day. A special statute in each state is required to make the day a legal holiday, and this has not been enacted in every state.

The day was originally set apart for thanksgiving, fasting, prayer and religious devotions, but the modern Thanksgiving has become a day of feasting and jollity, and is made the occasion of all sorts of sports and festivities. The craze for outdoor life keeps many from the churches, although the places of worship continue to be filled with "a goodly company," who gather to give thanks to him "from whom cometh every good and every perfect gift."

The turkey is still king of the Thanksgiving feast and as an addition the good things of the field and vineyard have been added. The famous pigeon pie, which was a popular Thanksgiving dish in the early part of the nineteenth century, is rarely seen in these days. The wild pigeons which alighted in great numbers on the buckwheat fields, were enticed by a decoy duck within a spring net and caught by the hundred. They were kept alive and fattened on grain until the day before Thanksgiving, when they were killed and made into a pie for the Thanksgiving table.

Many of the old customs of the Thanksgiving dinner have passed out of existence. The turkey raffle with dice is still a custom in some parts of the country. Usually the turkey is a tough bird, which was purchased cheap by the proprietor of the saloon (for the raffle usually takes place there). The raffle, of course, draws a crowd of men, who incidentally patronize the bar during the proceedings. Another sportive feature of Thanksgiving no longer in vogue was the shooting match, where live turkeys tied to sticks were used. This cruel practice was abandoned because the New England clergy objected, not on account of its cruelty, but because it kept the men away from the church service. This reason seems to fit in with the idea of the men back in the seventeenth century who, while they were eating a Thanksgiving dinner of venison, discovered that the deer had been killed on Sunday. They at once sent for the Indian and had him publicly whipped, and also compelled him to return the money which he had been paid for the deer. This being done, they at once resumed their dinner and finished up the venison.

New York city is responsible for the strangest of all Thanksgiving customs, and one which has only recently died out. Young men and boys used to dress themselves in fantastic garb and parade the streets—hundreds of the boys wearing their sisters' old clothes, their faces smeared with paint and their heads covered with wigs. As late as 1885 they held parades and made the street hideous with their thumping drums and blaring trumpets. In 1870 this queer performance took on the dignity of a political parade and prizes were distributed to the companies wearing the most unique clothing. Senator William M. Tweed, the famous political boss of that period, was the donor of a prize of $500 in gold. This custom was undoubtedly a survival of Guy Fawkes days, carried out on a later day in the year; for some unknown reason it was practiced only in New York city.

Thanksgiving has always been a day of charity, and in the old days it was considered bad luck to turn even a tramp from the door, and today our friendly inns, almshouses and charitable institutions have their turkey dinners, usually gifts from charitable people. Our prisons, too, serve their inmates with a hearty meal and have some sort of service of praise. The customs of the great national holiday may have changed somewhat, yet the spirit of the first Thanksgiving which was held at Plymouth in 1621, still hovers about the national day of prayer and praise of the twentieth century—a spirit of thankfulness to God for his mercy and kindness to the people of our great American republic.

Poet's License.

Robert W. Chambers, the popular novelist, was talking about a New York poet.

"His poetry is always awkward," Mr. Chambers said. "He drags in words that you can see are there solely for the sake of rhyme. In fact, he reminds me of a Lake Sunapee epitaph.

"In a little churchyard overlooking Lake Sunapee a gray, mossy stone bears this inscription:

"'As sinks the sun with lengthened shadows,
So sank and died the good George Meadows.'

"'N. B.—Deceased's name was Fields, but Meadows is substituted for the sake of the rhyme.'"

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR DARKENS YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. —Adv.

The prince of Monaco said of marriage at a dinner in New York:

"Through marriage a French woman gains her liberty, an English woman loses hers and an American woman—"

The prince paused and looked quizzically about him.

"Yes? The American woman?" said a debutante.

"The American woman," ended the prince, "continues to do as she likes."

BLOTCHES COVERED LIMBS

19 Roach St., Atlanta, Ga.—"A few months ago I had some kind of skin eruption that spread until my limbs and feet were covered with blotches and watery blisters. It looked like eczema. When the trouble reached my neck and face I was almost driven frantic. It itched and stung so intensely that I could not sleep or wear any clothing on the affected parts. After two months I commenced to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after two days I noticed improvement and in six days the trouble left. My skin was fair and smooth again and the eruption never returned.

"My cousin was a sufferer from pimples, known as acne, on his face and seemed to grow worse all the time. I recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to him and now his face is smooth for the first time in three years and he owes it all to Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Walter Battle, Oct. 7, 1912.

MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated give "California Syrup of Figs"

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrup. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

JUST FORGOT HIS MANNERS

Intoxicated Man's Remark May Have Held Some Truth, but It Was Not Polite.

They were seated side by side in a street car. He was very intoxicated and very sleepy. She was very haughty and possessed of a very much wrinkled face.

Though he was trying hard, he simply couldn't keep awake and persisted in toppling over on her shoulder. Each time he did it he smiled ingratiatingly as if promising to do better in future, but she was extremely annoyed.

"Please sit up straight," she said at last, every wrinkle expressing disapproval.

He woke up abruptly. That made him cross. He murmured something.

"How dare you insult a lady?" she exclaimed.

He woke up again.

"I didn't," he sputtered.

"How dare you contradict a lady?" she snapped.

Here the intoxicated one took a tremendous brace, forced one eye wide open, sat up straight, and took a long, long look at the very wrinkled face by his side.

"You're not a lady," he muttered at last; "you're a fig!"

Impossible.

"Silence is gold, isn't it?"

"Of course."

"Then I wish they would invent some new kind of dentistry that could fill a woman's mouth with it."

ERSIFICATION ON SOUTHERN FARMS

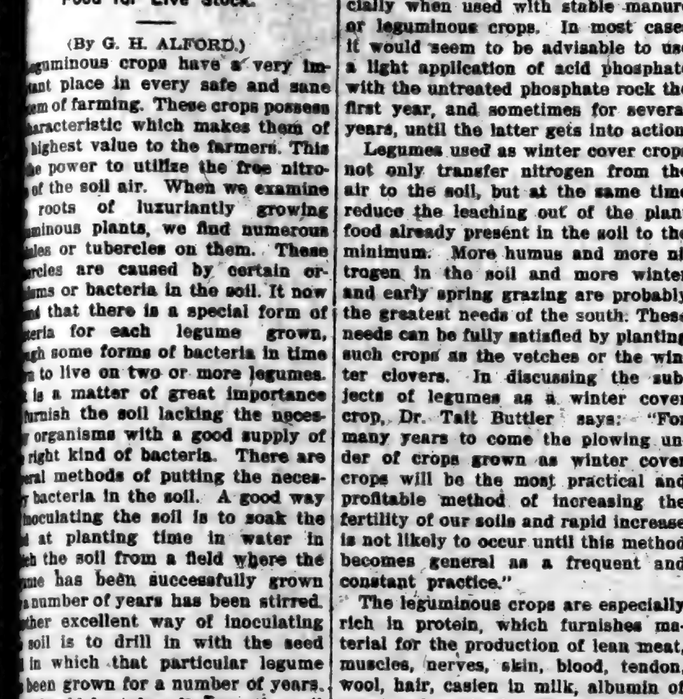
uminous Crops Occupy Important Place on Every Farm.

ANTS HAVE HIGHEST VALUE

t Be Grown In Cotton Belt to Economically Enrich Our Cultivated Lands and to Furnish Proper Food for Live Stock.

(By G. H. ALFORD.)

eguminous crops have a very important place in every safe and sane em of farming. These crops possess haracteristic which makes them of highest value to the farmers. This he power to utilize the free nitroof the soil air. When we examine roots of luxuriantly growing minous plants, we find numerous ules or tubercles on them. These rcles are caused by certain orms or bacteria in the soil. It now nd that there is a special form of teria for each legume grown, gh some forms of bacteria in time n to live on two or more legumes. is a matter of great importance rnish the soil lacking the necesy organisms with a good supply of right kind of bacteria. There are eral methods of putting the necesy bacteria in the soil. A good way inoculating the soil is to soak the at planting time in water in ch the soil from a field where the me has been successfully grown a number of years has been stirred. ther excellent way of inoculating soil is to drill in with the seed in which that particular legume been grown for a number of years. should be taken to keep the soil of the sunshine from the time it aken from the field until it is workinto the soil of the next, as the of the sun will kill the bacteria. best to get the soil and apply it a cloudy day, or late in the afternoon.



Nitrogen is the costliest element of nt food and is becoming scarcer dearer so far as its commercial ns are concerned. This being true, ystem of farming which provides eans for the collection of this valle and costly element from the introduction of legumes into the farm rotation will not increase indefinitely the productivity of the soil. Liberal applications of phosphoric acid and potash must be made where the soil does not contain an abundance of these elements.

The farmer who grows leguminous crops and keep good live stock want to know whether to use the treated or untreated phosphate rock to increase the yields of his legumes and to improve his soil. The conclusions I draw from a careful study of the results obtained at several experiment stations are that on a very poor soil, acid phosphate will pay better for a few years, at any rate, even if the leguminous crops are turned under, but that on a very fertile soil raw phosphate rock will pay better, especially when used with stable manure or leguminous crops. In most cases it would seem to be advisable to use a light application of acid phosphate with the untreated phosphate rock the first year, and sometimes for several years, until the latter gets into action.

Legumes used as winter cover crops not only transfer nitrogen from the air to the soil, but at the same time reduce the leaching out of the plant food already present in the soil to the minimum. More humus and more nitrogen in the soil and more winter and early spring grazing are probably the greatest needs of the south. These needs can be fully satisfied by planting such crops as the vetches or the winter clovers. In discussing the subjects of legumes as a winter cover crop, Dr. Tait Buttler says: "For many years to come the plowing under of crops grown as winter cover crops will be the most practical and profitable method of increasing the fertility of our soils and rapid increase is not likely to occur until this method becomes general as a frequent and constant practice."

The leguminous crops are especially rich in protein, which furnishes material for the production of lean meat, muscles, nerves, skin, blood, tendon, wool, hair, casien in milk, albumin of eggs, and so forth. This makes the legumes especially valuable for feeding farm animals in connection with fat-producing foods, such as corn and sorghum.

The German standard rations were computed from digestion experiments without reference to the comparative cost or convenience of obtaining the various feeding stuffs. There is a growing tendency to break away from the idea which has long prevailed that successful feeding must conform to the German feeding standards. Prof. W. A. Henry says: "The feeder should Experiments conducted at the bama station showed that a crop pea vines grown on an acre of ly soil of moderate fertility coned 115 pounds of nitrogen, and an of velvet beans 201 pounds, an e of crimson clover 143 pounds and acre of hairy vetch 302 pounds. An eriment conducted at Louisiana ion showed that a crop of peanuts tained 192 pounds of nitrogen, an e of velvet beans 191 pounds and acre of cow peas 108 pounds. When culated according to the scale of ilizer valuation, the value of n'trowas equivalent in amount to that tained in from 1,750 pounds to re than one ton of cottonseed meal. he questions is often asked if it is essary to plow under the leguminn crops in order to increase the nien in the soil. Of course, the per of the fertilizer value of the n leaves, stems and roots of the minous crops left in the field at reating time vary. However, the n leaves, stems and roots usually tain about one-third of the manurivalue of the entire weight of the minous crops. This being true, are in a position to assert positly that the nitrogen in the soil will largely increased by the growing leguminous crops, even when the is grazed off or cut for hay.

o live stock farmer should seldom under the leguminous crop. The should graze off the crop or it ld be harvested and d to the , and all the manure sav and reed to the land. It will often pay all-cotton, the all-cane, the all- farmer to plow under pea vines, beans, velvet beans vines and leguminous crops, but the live farmer does not need to plow such valuable grazing and hay an experiment conducted at the ama station a crop of pea vines n on one acre contained 45 ds of phosphoric acid and 101 ds of potash. The legumes add nitrogen to the soil and remove quantities of potash and phos, especially when cut for hay the hay is sold or the manure ting therefrom is not returned to nd. It should be emphasized that nece growing of legumes or the not accept the statement in the standard as absolute, but rather as data of a helpful nature, to be varied in practice as circumstances suggest."

Leguminous crops must be grown in the cotton belt to economically enrich our cultivated lands, and there is every reason why we should feed our live stock largely on legumes. Corn is a fat-producing food and is very expensive in the cotton belt. The fat in the corn and other fat-producing foods cannot be used by animals for building up muscles, blood and other tissues of the body, but the protein in the leguminous crops may under certain conditions form fat and later furnish heat and energy. This at least justifies the farmer who grows leguminous crops to enrich his soil in feeding narrow rations. Owing to the fact that we can grow leguminous crops every month in the year for grazing, for hay and for grain, cotton belt farmers should feed stock largely on legumes although the rations may often be narrow. Legumes mean rich land and fat stock.

DAMPNESS WILL CAUSE ROUP

It Should Be Remembered That Fresh Air Never Made a Fowl Sick, No Matter How Cold.

The beginner very often introduces roup to his flock by doing some foolish thing. For instance, he will close up the house tight at night in winter, when the weather is very cold, and allow it to remain closed all the next day. Naturally a moisture is created which generates a dampness, and the whole house will feel like a vault. The dampness which fills the house at night, and which usually comes from the fowl's breath, can easily be dispelled in the daytime by opening all the windows wide. Nothing will dispel dampness so quickly as fresh air, especially if it be dry. It must be remembered also that fresh air never made a fowl sick and it matters not how cold the outside temperature may be, it will benefit the fowls.

HER TROUBLES BEGAN EARLY

Young Lady Relates Her Experience, and Tells How She Overcame Troubles Which Started at Fifteen.

Paulina, La.—"When I was only fifteen years old," says Miss Lizzie St. Pierre, of this town, "I began suffering from womanly troubles. I had all kinds of pains, felt nervous, dizzy and weak, had headache, backache, and with all that I had fever.

I commenced taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and it made me perfectly well. Am only seventeen years old now, but feel a whole lot younger. Mama got so she couldn't sleep, and always felt dizzy. She took Cardui treatment, and now she is in perfect health.

If you think the publication of this letter will encourage other suffering ladies to try Cardui, you may print it. I certainly feel thankful for what Cardui has done for my mother and me."

Thousands of women have written, like Miss St. Pierre, to tell of the beneficial results they obtained by taking this well-known woman's remedy. You must believe that Cardui will help you, because it has helped so many others.

Composed of purely vegetable, medicinal ingredients, having a gentle, strengthening action on the system, Cardui is a reliable remedy for young and old, with absolutely no bad after-effects. Try it, and you will find it of benefit whenever you need a tonic.

ALL LOOK FOR GRATITUDE

Nothing That Can Be Bestowed Is Able to Take Its Place in the Human Heart.

Gratitude given or received is one of the best things in the world. We need far more of it and far better quality. Yet I have never read and satisfactory account of what it so gloriously means. Its value begins just where the value of pay ends. Thanks are personal, and attempt to fit an adequate response to the particular service performed. Pay is an impersonal coin which has been handed out to many before it reaches you, and will go to many others when it leaves you. It is your right and you are not grateful for it. But thanks are a free gift and enrich the giver. There is no nobler art than the art of expressing one's gratitude in fresh, unhackneyed, unexaggerated terms which answer devotion with fresh devotion, fancy with new fancy, charity with sincerity. Artists who get their reward only in money and in the stale plaudits of clapping hands are restless for something more individual. They want to be intimately understood and beautifully answered. For such gratitude they look to brother artists, to the few who really understand. There they find their best reward—but even this leaves something wanting.—The Atlantic.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Beautify Your Hair! Make It Soft, Fluffy and Luxuriant—Try the Moist Cloth.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all. Adv.

Is Your Body Poisoned?

Well kidneys keep the blood free of uric acid, a deadly poison that is constantly forming inside the body.

Sluggish kidneys allow the uric acid to accumulate, causing rheumatic attacks, headache, dizziness, gravel, urinary troubles, weak eyes, dropsy, and heart disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills restore the normal blood-filtering action of the kidneys. This drives out uric acid and ends uric acid poisoning.

Pay your poll tax. Do it now!

Circuit Court convenes Monday, the 24th. Get ready by putting in your vetch.

Every man, who is worthy of being called a man, wishes to give his boy or girl a better chance in life than he himself has had.

If you can induce Mr. W. W. Fox and his committee on right-of-way to bring the State highway by your front gate, your fortune is made. Get busy.

Mr. Roosevelt has just bobbed up in Buenos Aires in South America, where he proceeded ruthlessly to repeal the Monroe doctrine—our very present help in trouble.

Tammany claims to be democratic with as much ardor as the hypocrit claims to be a Christian, but not a single democratic paper in all the South has expressed sympathy or regret at Tammany's downfall.

Rev. W. Y. Browning of Cordova, Walker county, was called to the pastorate of the Clanton Baptist church by the conference of last Sunday. The committee of notification, consisting of E. B. Deason, H. T. Pipes and J. R. Mullins, have not yet received a reply from Brother Browning.

All republicans with Bull-moose proclivities have been clamoring for a big navy, until our international complications really made a big navy the proper thing, and then they began to howl because a democratic president had the acumen to see that the time for building battleships had at last arrived.

If you are one of those hard-favored citizens, who look like a cross between Bill Nye and the Statue of Liberty, don't move off into the backwoods to hide your ugly self, but get out on the State highway where you can show off that lovely girl sent by heaven to adorn your home and to bless the world.

In the Gamble Hardware ad. in this issue will be seen a cut of the Oliver Chilled turn plow, which we consider one of the best implements we ever saw on the farm. With a heavy chain from the beam to the end of double tree, it will put all your cotton and corn stalks out of sight, and where they will do most good. Put one to running now.

Our County Board of Revenue should do for the high school what they have just done for the State highway—put up some money. Our best investment is that which we make in our own boys and girls. We have the material and must have the machinery to work it up into men and women who shall adorn all the walks of life. A highway for our vehicles is good, a highway for thought along which the aspiring mind shall travel is better.

Don't let anybody persuade you that Woodrow Wilson is dabbling in Alabama politics. When he declares for a strong navy he is not endorsing Hobson, and when he expresses esteem for one Congressman he is not advocating the claims of another congressman upon the senatorship. The man who attempts to ride Woodrow Wilson into public favor had better make sure of his cinch, or he will be thrown over the moon.

Frank P. Glass of Birmingham has been appointed by Gov. O'Neal to succeed Henry D. Clayton, who, in a certain sense, succeeded Jos. F. Johnston as United States Senator. Mr. Wilson was persuaded to persuade Mr. Clayton to remain in the House, but the people of the Third Congressional District have not as yet been fully persuaded in their own minds.

Mr. Glass has accepted. People who live in Glass houses must not throw stones.

THANKSGIVING

Thursday, Nov. 27, has been set apart as Thanksgiving day, and a program to be arranged will be announced from the pulpits on Sunday. It is thought the presiding judge will consent for the service to take place in the Court room from 11 to 12 o'clock, and that he himself will be willing to take part in the exercises. However, he may think that after supper is a better hour.

BILL FOR GOOD ROADS

BANKHEAD SUBMITS BILL FOR FEDERAL AID FOR GOOD ROADS.

St. Louis, Mo., November 11.—Senator Bankhead of Alabama, president of the Good Roads association, today submitted to the national convention a bill providing for a federal appropriation of $25,000,000 for good roads work.

Senator Bankhead expects to introduce it at the next congressional session.

The bill provides that the $25,000,000 shall be divided among the various states in proportion as to what they contribute to road work themselves.

The more we give to our own good roads the more we get from the State, and the more we will get from the United States. Whatever our County Board of Revenue have given shall be given back—"good measure, shaken down, and running over."

Every citizen of Chilton county without regard to creed or party should breathe a prayer for the missionary who fills one of our columns, and whose heart reaches back to us from distant China. Every pupil in our schools will feel an interest in his happy elucidation of the date line. All should read Edgar A. Poe's "Three Sundays in a week," as a further solution of the same problem. It is a charming love story of the better sort.

Three coaches attached to an excursion train on the Eufaula and Ozark branch of the Central of Georgia railroad, left the track three miles east of Clayton and plunging down an embankment 30 feet in depth caused the death of 21 persons and injured more than 150.

It was reported here that the list of casualties would probably run as high as 25. A number of those injured are said to be dying and many others are not expected to recover. The wreck occurred as the result of a broken rail, which caused the rear cars to leave the track. Two of the coaches plunged down one side of the embankment and the other left the track on the opposite side. Eye witnesses of the wreck declare that the coaches turned over three times in rolling down the embankment. The train was crowded with excursionists bound for the Barbour county fair at Eufaula. It is estimated that more than 500 people were on the train, most of them being in the cars that were wrecked. None of the train crew was hurt.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC YIELDS TO ITS MEN

STRIKING TRAINMEN RETURN TO WORK ON SUNSET LINES.

BOTH ACCEPT MEDIATION

Railroad Committee to Meet Joint Committee From Union to Discuss Grievances.

Houston, Tex.—Twelve hours after the settlement of the strike of federated trainmen of the road practically normal passenger service had been restored on the Atlantic division of the Southern Pacific railroad and the first freight trains to move since the strike was inaugurated were started.

It is anticipated that several days will be required to move the accumulation of freight. Officials of the trainmen's organizations and the railroad are working in conjunction in an effort to restore normal traffic conditions.

The strike was ended when both sides accepted a proposal of the federal board of mediation and conciliation that the railroad meet a joint committee from the engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen, for the discussion of the 67 alleged grievances which the men have presented. Many of these are of a personal nature. The recognition of the joint committee, which the road declared inconsistent with existing contracts, was the main contention of the unions, which, when refused, precipitated the walkout.

The term of settlement, as outlined in telegrams from the federal board, signed by William Lea Chambers and Martin A. Knapp, included the road's agreement to meet the joint committee for the settlement of grievances, the unions' agreement to return to service immediately, restoration of all strikers to service without prejudice and reference to the federal board of all matters on which the conference committees could not agree.

No date has been fixed for the proposed conference between representatives of the railroad and the joint employes' committee.

Commercial interests in the territory affected took an active part in the efforts to arrange a settlement between the railroad company and the strikers. Traffic stoppage at this season would have meant serious loss to sugar cane and rice growers as well as to the cotton trade.

GLASS APPOINTED TO SENATE

Governor to Make Test of His Rights to Name Alabama Senator.

Montgomery, Ala.—The governor appointed Frank P. Glass of Birmingham United States senator from Alabama to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Joseph F. Johnston. Mr. Glass is the editor of the Birmingham News, and president of the Montgomery Advertiser company.

In announcing the appointment of Mr. Glass to the high office of United States senator, the governor issued a brief statement in which he declared that he was of the opinion that the seventeenth amendment to the constitution did not deprive him of the power to fill the senatorial vacancy by appointment, and attached as part of his statement the brief of Special Counsel R. B. Evins, upholding the power of the governor to appoint.

The appointment of Mr. Glass to the office of United States senator makes the second appointment to that office, which the Alabama executive has made within the past three months. As the immediate successor of the late Senator Johnston, who died in August, the governor named Representative Henry D. Clayton, congressman from the Third Alabama district. Representative Clayton retired before the Senate passed upon his credentials, having been induced to remain in the House by President Wilson. With his retirement the office again became vacant, and after several weeks the governor has filled it by the appointment of Mr. Glass.

Mr. Glass entered the newspaper profession in Bibb county, becoming editor of the Bibb County Blade in 1880. Later he became editor of the Selma Times, and retained his connection with that paper for four years, when he moved to Montgomery and purchased an interest in the Advertiser.

He was directly connected with the Advertiser until three years ago, when he secured an interest in the Birmingham News, and moved to Birmingham to assume the editorship of that paper. He has lived in Birmingham since that time, though still retains part interest in the Advertiser.

Sweeney, a drug clerk, employed in the Givens' pharmacy, was arrested in the store a few minutes after the discovery.

A Lot of Racket.

Howard Elliott, the new president of the New Haven & Hartford railroad, was talking at a luncheon in New York, about a millionaire who had been boasting overmuch—boasting about his Raphaels, his Louis Seize furniture, his Gobelins and his Aubussons.

"Of course, he's a self-made man," said Mr. Elliott. "I'm very fond of self-made men. The only objection to them is that sometimes they've failed to put themselves together so as to work noiselessly."

A Woman' Heart.

She (gently)—I am afraid I do not love you enough to be your wife, but I shall always be your friend, and sincerely wish for your happiness.

He (moodily)—I know what I'll do.

She (anxiously)—You surely will not do yourself an injury?

He (calmly)—No, I will find happiness. I will marry some one else.

She—Horrors! Give me another day to consider, dear.—New York Weekly.

He had been around from church to church trying to find a congenial congregation, and finally he stepped in a little church just as the congregation read with the minister:

"We have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and we have done those things which we ought not to have done."

The man dropped into a pew with a sigh of relief.

"Thank goodness," he said, "I've found my crowd at last."—Ladies' Home Journal.

FAMILY OF FIVE

All Drank Coffee From Infancy.

It is a common thing in this country to see whole families growing up with nervous systems weakened by coffee drinking.

That is because many parents do not realize that coffee contains a drug—caffeine—which causes the trouble. (The same drug is found in tea.)

"There are five children in my family," writes an Iowa mother, "all of whom drank coffee from infancy up to two years ago.

"My husband and I had heart trouble and were advised to quit coffee. We did so and began to use Postum. We now are doing without medicine and are entirely relieved of heart trouble.

(Caffeine causes heart trouble when continually used as in coffee drinking.)

"Our eleven-year-old boy had a weak digestion from birth, and yet always craved and was given coffee. When we changed to Postum he liked it and we gave him all he wanted. He has been restored to health by Postum and still likes it."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for the little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be boiled.

Instant Postum is a soluble powder. A heaping teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30 cups from one pound. Both kinds cost about the same per cup. Postum

PRESIDENT WILL ATTEMPT TO RESTORE COMPETITION IN BUSINESS.

TASK ADMITTEDLY DIFFICULT

Wilson Soon to Tell Congress His Plans for Breaking Up the Great Corporations Without Harming the Country's Prosperity.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—President Wilson is studying the trusts. In his annual message to congress or as soon as currency is out of the way, he will recommend that the old time conditions of business competition be restored in this country. Attorney General McReynolds is at work on anti-trust law suggestions. Other members of the cabinet will have ready thoughts of their own on the subject when the time, already nearly at hand, shall come when Mr. Wilson must formulate his recommendations on a matter which Democrats say will test the law making abilities of his administration as, neither the tariff nor the currency can.

The president's task is in a sense the remaking of a nation of shop keepers and small manufacturers. He has said publicly that competitive conditions of the old kind can be restored and that it falls to the lot of the Democrats to do the restoring. The dynamite of a new law is to be placed at the foundation of some big concerns and they are to be broken into integral parts, all of them small, "without injuring the industries which they have housed and promoted, and without harming the prosperity of the American people."

There are Democrats, Progressives and Republicans ready enough to admit that the old competitive conditions was an ideal one to foster independence in business, and to promote that interest in affairs which the small business man or manufacturer with his work at stake always must feel. There are Democrats, Progressives and Republicans, however, in congress who seem to think that the administration will have hard work to bring back by the mandate of law the conditions of the days that are gone.

Leaders Admit It Is Big Task.

The Democratic leaders naturally fear that if they fail in anti-trust legislation the good which they say will come from their tariff and their currency laws, may possibly avail them nothing at the next election. They look at same of the great corporations as they exist today and "feel publicly" and "say privately" that to break them into small parts and to set each particular part against the other with prosperity for all is a task big enough to test the ability of any man and any party.

Shortly the president's recommendations for anti-trust legislation will be given to the public. There are more than rumors in Washington that in the attorney general's office, although perhaps not shared by the attorney general himself, there is a feeling that the administration would do much better if it would attempt a regulating rather than a disintegrating policy.

Regulation is the proposal of one of the opposition parties. A resolving into competitive parts is the policy of the administration, and probably will be the announced policy of the congressional majority which is now in power. Compromise will mean a giving way to the proposals of the enemy. Separation into parts, some of the Democratic leaders seem to feel, may mean business disaster. Mr. Wilson is said to have no such fear.

Millions for Defense.

Great Britain, through Winston Churchill, has been sounding the great nations of the world with a view to determining their attitude toward a "naval holiday." It may be as a result of the sounding the greater governments will forego the work of building battleships for one year. This is only possible, however, and so it may be said still that while all the words are for peace, all the works seem to be for war.

This latter expression of seeming conditions epitomizes the state of things in Washington today, and probably in most places in the civilized world. The military authorities under the direction of congress are "fortifying against the future" in proper defensive places outlying everything American which would make a shining mark for an enemy's attack. The peace propagandist may be making headway, but disarmament is not a fact of the day.

Within a comparatively short time congress has authorized the expenditure of millions to fortify the approaches to the Panama canal. Other millions have been spent to make Corregidor the Gibraltar of the Philippine islands. Another huge sum has been authorized to make Hawaii safe against attack from an enemy at sea. New York, Boston, Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, New Orleans, Los Angeles and San Francisco and all the other big places on the coasts have been or are to be safeguarded with defenses costing millions. The end is not in sight.

The willingness of the present administration to urge an appropriation for three dreadnoughts is known. The administration, and with it congress, also have shown a willingness to provide big guns and modern forts to defend the cities of the coast. It seems to be a militarizing inclined administration. The war department recently negotiated a proposal to buy land at Cape Henry at the entrance to Chesapeake bay to be used for fortification purposes. Real estate men attempted to hold the government up and so the project was abandoned.

Chesapeake Bay Fortifications.

In place of the projected fort at Cape Henry the government will construct an artificial island at the mouth of Chesapeake bay and on it a fortification will be constructed to be manned by coast artillerymen who will have for service in case of war the biggest guns known to these days of big ordnance. In the year 1814 the British came up the Chesapeake and eventually reached Washington, burning the Capitol and the White House. If an enemy should have the same opportunity again the chances are few that it would commit such acts of vandalism, but presumably these cities must be protected from attack and occupation, and so in these days of peace the Democrats are consenting to equal, if not to outdo, their predecessor Republicans in preparing for emergencies.

There are forts on the Potomac river and on the Chesapeake below Baltimore. These presumably are powerful enough to make it difficult for an enemy to pass, but it is held that ships of the foe should be prevented from forcing an entrance to Chesapeake bay. Fortress Monroe and Fort Wool are not considered of sufficient strength to keep out the steel dreadnoughts of an enemy on mischief bent.

Pacific Coast Defenses.

Congress has appropriated money for fortifying the approaches to San Pedro in southern California. This work will be pushed rapidly to completion. Puget sound, San Francisco and San Pedro will be the three great defenses against attack on our western coast from the far east. It is the sight of the shadow of Japan—the administration hope probably is that it is a shadow only—which has spurred congress to appropriateion activities in connection with the Pacific defenses.

Representative Bartholdt of St. Louis, who is the prophet of peace in the house of representatives, recently returned from abroad with assurances that the dove is winging its way in swift flight to the "coop of everlasting concord." In Washington one hears peace all the time, and while he is hearing he sees the preparations for war. If the day of lasting good will among nations ever shall come, the junk dealers will have plenty of material to be bought for a song in the forts outlying every American city which lies within striking distance of the coast line.

Cost of Living and Tariff.

By force of the new tariff law is the cost of living to be reduced? Some of the Democrats in Washington apparently desire that the country shall believe quickly and fully that the Underwood-Simmons bill cannot be expected to bring down the price of things until it has been in operation for at least ten months or a year.

The Democrats, while they do not seemingly believe that the tariff alone will make a great difference in the cost of necessaries, are hopeful that other bills which they intend to enact into law, coupled with the tariff, will bring material relief to the consumers of the country. It must be left of course to time to prove whether the Democrats are right or not. President Wilson seemingly is convinced that in a year things will not cost as much as they do now.

Leaders of the three parties together claim, or admit, whichever way you choose to put it, that the political organization which can present the best plan to bring down the high cost of living will be the one to get control of the house of representatives next year and of the presidency two years later. The Democrats are in power and if they have a plan to make living cheaper they can put it into effect if they want to. In the early days the party made definite promises that the tariff would turn the cost cutting trick, but now there is a little hedging on this proposition and the promise is that when the anti-trust laws are in force next year prices will drop so that the consumer can bear them.

Opponents Are Satirical.

Some of the opposition party members in Washington are asking the Democrats why, if their anti-trust legislation is to accomplish such high deeds of service to the people, it is necessary for various official bodies to be studying other means of reducing the cost of living. The agricultural department today is trying to solve the problem and men have been sent abroad to study agriculture and marketing methods over there with the hope that the result of their studies may bring relief over here. Naturally the opposition party men are satirical. They say that perhaps the Democrats hope to cut the prices of living in half through their anti-trust legislation and then to wipe out the other half through the solving of certain agricultural problems, thus bringing the consumers of the country to the blissful condition of men and women who can get everything they want for nothing.

It is definitely known that President Wilson and his Democratic friends in house and senate are hoping and perhaps praying that out of the legislation which the party now in power has enacted or intends to enact something will come which will cause prices to drop without making wages drop with them. The high cost of living is still the chief matter of concern to the leaders of a party who for personal and public reasons want to keep that party in power. The key to the problem lies somewhere, and most of these different party minds are searching each hoping that he may be the one lucky enough to find it.

INDUSTRIES PUSHED TO MAKE DELIVERIES

Factor Exerting a Strong Influence Is Absence of a Free Market for Loans.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says:

Current reports, winter wheat crop advices and consumption of steel products indicate good present conditions, but future buying is slow, showing conservatism. Finished steel is weaker as the result of increased competition for orders and industry is running at a slower speed though the quieting is not general and it remains significant that numerous industries are being pushed to make deliveries.

The conservatism displayed is largely due to uncertainty over the tariff readjustments, which it is thought may force lower prices.

Another factor that exerts a strong deterring influence is the absence of a free market for loans. In many quarters, however, considerable improvement work is planned for the spring of 1914, and optimism still prevails.

Business failures for the week were 305, which compares with 260 in 1912.

Wheat, including flour, exports for the week, aggregate 7,599,134 bushels against 5,471,894 last year.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review says:

Severe storms caused interruption to business and involved also serious property losses. Outdoor work was hindered and railroad traffic impeded, the consequent check to the movement of freight affecting both manufacturing and distribution somewhat.

Advantages accrued, however, from the low temperatures and snow, which accelerated the demand for heavyweight apparel, footwear and fuel supplies.

Broadly considered the mercantile and industrial situation continues fairly satisfactory and signs of trade recession are by no means uniform. Rather more encouraging conditions prevail in iron and steel.

Developments in the Mexican situation were an important factor in financial circles, with the better outlook reflected in a more confident feeling and a rising tendency in securities.

Failures this week numbered 299 in the United States against 271 last year and 42 in Canada compared with 37 one year before.

EGGS RISE STEADILY UPWARD.

American Hens Lay 17.7 Dozen Eggs for Every Citizen in Country.

Washington.—Production of eggs in the United States has increased steadily during the past 14 years. The price of eggs also has moved steadily upward. Department of agriculture officials declared that cold storage is responsible for the high price.

Figures issued by the census bureau show that in 1899 American hens laid 1,293,662,000 dozen eggs, which was 17 dozen for every man, woman and child in the country. Ten years later, in 1909, they produced 17.3 dozens per capita, while this year it is estimated they will produce 17.7 dozens per capitia. As to prices the statistics show that in 1899 "average best fresh" eggs sold at wholesale in New York, highest price, at 3 cents; in 1904 at 47 cents; in 1908 at 55 cents; in November, 1912, at 60 cents. Last month they were 55 cents.

Department officials expressed the opinion that there should be a national law limiting the time which eggs may be kept in cold storage, six months probably being the limit. This, they said, would put eggs on the market more uniformly and prevent them from being held for exorbitant prices. Further, it was declared that shipments of eggs from one state to another, except to retail dealers, should be prohibited so as to prevent evasion of the proposed storage limit law.

Willing to Discuss Settlement.

New York.—Julius Kruttschnit, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific company, announced that the railroad company was willing to discuss with a representative committee of the four labor organizations now on strike the question of inaugurating a system of dealing with controversies through a joint committee representing all four organizations.

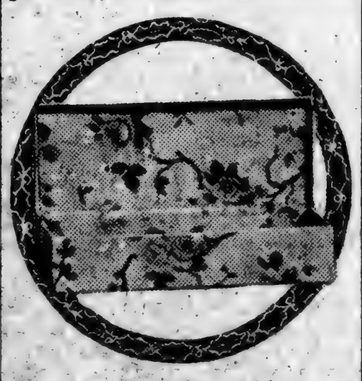
CHOOSING CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR THE MEN

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

When it comes to selecting things for men two facts should be borne in mind. Men appreciate whatever adds to their personal comfort and they are attracted by things that are convenient and useful rather than by mere prettiness.



Here are pictured a few of the many attractive things, made of cretonne, which will be appreciated by the men folks.

The closet bag shown in the picture is made of cretonne having a white ground with red roses and green foliage. White tape serves to bind the edges and fasten the compartments to the back. A yard of cretonne is required for it. It is fourteen inches wide and the remainder of the yard will make the compartments with enough left over to cover a pin cushion or make one of the other small pieces.

The waste paper basket is made by pasting cretonne to a heavy pasteboard foundation and the lining may be of cambric or paper. Four sides are cut out and covered with cretonne. The lining is pasted over in one piece, holding the sides together. Or the pieces may be covered separately and afterward tied together with narrow ribbon.

The small box for handkerchiefs or ties is made by pasting cretonne over a strong pasteboard box. The top is padded with a sheet of cotton wadding. A set of three boxes for ties, gloves, handkerchiefs, with a larger one for shoes, makes an elegant present where one wishes to give so much. But one single box will be appreciated.

The traveling case is cut from rubber cloth first and compartments are sewed on it for the brush and soap, tooth and nail brush. White tape is used to bind the several pieces. The case is then covered with cretonne ...

... Jury made its report in ...h November. They had ...ted seventy-six witnesses ... found thirty-seven true bills.

They recommend that $4,000.00 found in the fine and forfeiture fund be transferred to the General fund or to the Road fund.

They found in the poor house an anomalous state of facts. Eight years ago a marriage license was granted to one of the inmates to marry another inmate, and now their two children are on the county. They advise against such marriages in the future. The spirit of lawlessness is on the decrease and especially violatons of the prohibition law, and carrving of concealed weapons, which is attributed to former visitation of heavy punishment by our iuries, and to the rigorous action of onr County Court.

Their report rings clear on good roads, as will be seen in another column.

DEMOCRATIC FAILURES

Another overwhelming failure that has been expected daily has just turned out to be a gorgeous success. Republicans have predicted that the president's policy in Mexico would bring a conflict with all the world powers, and have naturally tried to verify their predictions, not only by withholding their co-operation, but by plotting against their own government.

As a part of this policy Mr. Roosevelt raised the standard of rebellion down in South America, against the Monroe doctrine, which he was ready to make a casus belli when he was America's dictator. Viscount Hildane, the Lord High Chancellor of England, speaking at a thanksgiving dinner of the American society in London voiced the sentiment of all the world powers in endorsing the Monroe doctrine which accords to the United States a general supervision over all the smaller American republics, and endorses in the strongest language possible the character of Woodrow Wilson as a thinker, as a moralist, as an office holder, and as a man. The next time the republicans predict disaster, all those who fatten on apprehension and dread will say, "well, they are telling the truth this time, because nothing except the truth remains to be told. It does seem that all phases and combinations of falsehood have already been put forth. Let us remember that while truth has but one form, error is susceptible of infinite variations and combinations.

MR. CONWAY WRITES

Editor Clanton Press:—

Jemison, Ala., Dec. 2, 1913

I see a great deal about the County High School through the columns of your paper.

I don't wish to enter into any discussion through the newspaper, but if nothing happens I will meet the Commissioners' Court on the 18th of December, and will make my defense in person.

I will be prepared to give the facts and figures of every high school in the State and after they hear the facts, if they then want to appropriate the $4,000 from the county treasury for the purpose of building a high school in Chilton county, I have no more to say.

Yours truly,

W. H. Conway.

California Woman Seriously Alarmed

I would have hard coughing spells and my lungs were so sore and inflamed I began to be seriously alarmed. A friend recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saying she had used it for years. I bought a bottle and in a week I was rid of the cold and soreness of my lungs." For sale by Alred Drug Co.

GOOD ROADS

We are delighted to see that our Grand Jury have stood squarely by all we have been saying in these columns in behalf of good roads. Read their cheering words given below, and lift your hearts to God in gratitude for such citizens as compose this honorable body. Their position is a distinct advance over any step that has ever been taken, and will put Chilton far to the front. In their report, they say: "The majority of this body is in favor of a bond issue for building roads, and all are in favor of an educational campaign along this line, so that the people of the county may be informed as to how a bond issue is to be had, how roads are to be constructed under this plan, how the money is to be handled and spent, the cost per mile of such roads, how, when and where such rosds will be built, and all questions pertinent to a bond issue, which the people have a right to know. It is the sense of this grand jury that now is the proper time to launch a campaign of education in Chilton county for the purpose of building roads. We believe that the people of the county are ready and willing to listen to argument along this line, and we believe that they are intelligent enough to adopt any method that will give them good roads speedily, and at a reasonable cost."

Our gates have swung wide open to advancing progress, and we hail the dawning of a brighter day. Who will get the first good road? Those who first get busy, provided they get busy enough. Let us get this business well under way before the political campaign gets in the way, and let us crack the head of any man who wants to use the good roads question in his own little political game. It is a broad question that concerns every body and appeals to the good sense, and to the personal interest of every citizen.

GLADDEN THE POOR HOUSE

The Grand Jury, reports nineteen inmates in the poor house—twelve white females, six white males, and one colored male The best regulated poor-house is a poor substitute for home, and Christian people should brighten these lives with their sympathy and service. Our thanksgiving for the bounty we enjoy should prompt us to make a thank offering for the distressed. At the suggestion of a big hearted friend, the Press hereby opens a subscription list which may be found in this office, for the purpose of bringing a bright and happy Christmas to the poor house of Chilton county. We will see that every dollar that is contributed is wisely invested in fruits, food, clothing, or such other comforts as are never supplied by the cold charity of legal enactments, however humane they may be. The Grand Jury and Circuit Solicitor are to be commended for their increased stipend of $10 per month for each inmate, but this leaves a large margin for Christian benevolence and we appeal to the ladies especially to assist in this effort. A committee of ladies will be asked to visit the place, and to suggest how the amount that is raised may be best expended. Such a visit would of itself be an expression of the general interest, and the Christian sympathy, which, as a civilized community, we feel for the unfortunate, and the unhappy.

MR. CONWAY'S LETTER

A few lines have been cut of Mr. Conway's communication because they refer to statements which this paper had previously refused to publish. If any word of a personal nature can be pointed out in these columns by our esteemed friend, Mr. Conway, or any one else, we will be only too glad to correct it over our own signature. This paper deals with arguments, not with personalities, and we cannot allow Mr. Conway to attack others whom we have prevented from attacking him. Our columns are open to argument whether it is for or against the high school, for any cause which cannot live in the atmosphere of light and free discussion deserves to die. We would be ashamed to advocate any measure unless we had confidence in its ability to stand this test. Turn on all the light you please by all means but turn off the heat of passion, and all the poisonous exhalations that proceed from personal spite, and splenetic prejudice. I never feel like I am fit to argue with any man unless I am in a specially good humor with him. A man always confesses his own weakness of reason when he appeals to personal feeling. The test of Christianity, according to the example of Christ, is our attitude toward those who differ from us and harm us, and it is the attitude of love and prayer as the basis for argument. Let sober thought umpire this game. The stake is not the personal triumph of a moment, but a proud people's happiness for all time. We who take part in this discussion will soon pass away but these questions we discuss will be here when our mountains are leveled with the plain. Let us eliminate all personal interests and all political tricks and be too proud to hit any adversary below the belt.

JNO. T. MORGAN

Some of us remember that when Jno. T. Morgan first ran for the United States Senate, he was handed around as a "captivating," brilliant talker." "full of plausible theories," and "unpractical." He was opposed by men of "solid rather than shining qualities," who were "debaters and not orators." Morgan was a great "theorist" whose theories were true. He "dreamed" about a ship canal which he put upon the map of the world. He encountered such ridicule as has never been heaped upon any other undertaking except the effort to close the saloon. He combined the qualities of the martyr and the cavalier as no other Alabamian has ever done except Hobson. His followers were moved by a devotion which was based upon personal esteem, and conscientious convictions, and which no amount of campaign funds could purchase, and no frowns of greatness could daunt. He was defeated time and time again. His speeches were answered in the metropolitan dailies of America, and his plans thrown upon the scrap heaps like dry bones in the valley of Jehosephat but at the sound of the trumpet voice of his eloquence, bone met bone in harmonious readjustment and became bound together with the ligaments of reason and truth.

THE CHRISTMAS CIGAR

BY C. R. LAMAR.

Dedicated to the unfortunate nineteen inmates of the Chilton County Poor House.

'Twas on the front veranda,
One merry Christmas day,
I leaned upon the ballustrade
To puff, then faint and pray;
For, as tobacco fumes arose,
A nausea, stealthier far,
Began to settle on my soul.
It was my first cigar.

I grieved the nickel that it cost,
And, as my powers relax,
I wish I'd tossed its price into
The contribution box.
I saw cheap Bibles it might print,
Wrecked souls it might repair—
All weighed upon my conscience, for
It was my first cigar.

I've smoked, since then, ten thousand times—
Maduras and the rest—
I've smoked the vilest of cheroots,
I've smoked Havana's best:
No qualms disturb my gastric nerve
Or conscience debonair,
Both cured, like bacon, in the smoke
Which wreathes my fond cigar.

Estates, no doubt, have changed to smoke,
The houses with the lots,
Big stocks and bonds have floated off,
And futures, with the spots.
The cost of living cannot with
Tobacco's cost compare:
I'd have a fortune, if I ne'er
Had smoked that first cigar.

Think of the glow it might have cast
Upon the widow's hearth,
The gospel light it might have flung
To furthest ends of earth.
Who burns the Bible thus and leaves
The heathen to despair,
May light his own perdition, when
He lights his first cigar.

This season we devote to mirth,
We "cuss," carouse and treat,
So let us make, for Christendom,
A Christmas cigarette,
Put in the orphan's shoes and socks,
Hats, caps and blouses fair,
Then wrap it round with cloak and gown
The widow ought to wear.

Ascending from this sacrifice,
Which none can well afford;
An incense to the god of lust,
An insult to the Lord;
The filthy offering wreeks on high,
A stench infects the air,
And poisons every passing breeze,
Which fans this foul cigar.

CLANTON PRESS

PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF CHILTON COUNTY AND HER PEOPLE

VOL 4. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY DECEMBER 4, 1913 NO. 35

THE VOICE OF THE MASTERS

When Captain Hobson spoke at Moulton a few days ago, editor Jourd White, of the Moulton Advertiser, introduced the speaker as "a man who stands for God and against the devil; for heaven and against hell; for the home and against the saloon; for all that is good and against all that is bad." Evidently the editor got his cue from the Captain, who told the editor what to say.—Advertiser.

It cannot be denied that Editor White's speech sounds a good deal like Hobson, but we can't always go by the sound, for many things in the editorial columns of the Advertiser sounds like Cousin Charles and Milton H. Smith, of the L & N. We can't believe all we hear nor half we see, during a political canvass or real estate boom.

THE UNDERWOOD RALLY

The man who built the Gipsy Smith Auditorium testifies that 5,306 people is the utmost limit of its capacity. Preachers present at the great Underwood rally held there, say that it was not full, and would have held another thousand very easily. The Birmingham papers claim that there were eight thousond persons present. The explanation is that whisky newspapers fill an auditorium like the bar-keeper filled the jug for Simon Suggs. When Simon went to pay his bill he saw at a glance that he was charged with twice the quantity he had really received. "Did you put two gallons in this jug?" he idquired. "I did," was the reply. "Well then empty half of it out, quick, before it bursts the jug," he exclaimed. "That jug wont hold but a gallon."

HOW TO BOOM CHILTON

The attempt to build up the county without building up the county-site, is like trying to get rich by stealing oats from your own mule. Clanton is to Chilton county what the tail is to the kite —they rise or fall together. If Clanton is not what it oughl to be, then make it better, but don't kill it, or injure it in any way. The only way you can kill Clanton is to kill yourself, and even then you might do the very best thing for Clanton, for some other fellow might come along to take your place; who would marry your widow, enrich your acres by putting them in vetch and crimson clover, build a county high-school which would make your poor orphan children the leading business men of the better Clanton of the future. Let us forget the past, and build a future. Let us as a united people seek an out-pouring of prosperity, even if some droppings should chance to fall on Clanton. Let us not waste our energies in vain efforts to equalize the blessings of providence which come to the just and to the unjust alike. The best thing Clanton can do is to build up Chilton county. The worst enemy of both is the meddlesome busy-body who would divorce these two, whom God and destiny have joined together

Train your boys to become ideal citizens. The ideal citizen is the town-man who has a patriotic devotion to his county, or the country-man who feels a pride in his county town.

GRAND JURY REPORT

Grand Jury made its report on the 24th November. They had nvestigated seventy-six cases and found thirty-seven true bills.

They recommend that $4,000.00 found in the fine and forfeiture fund be transferred to the General fund or to the Road fund.

They found in the poor house an anomalous state of facts. Eight years ago a marriage license was granted to one of the inmates to marry another inmate, and now their two children are on the county. They advise against such marriages in the future. The spirit of lawlessness is on the decrease and especially violatons of the prohibition law, and carrying of concealed weapons, which is attributed to former visitation of heavy punishment by our iuries, and to the rigorous action of our County Court.

Their report rings clear on good roads, as will be seen in another column.

DEMOCRATIC FAILURES

Another overwhelming failure that has been expected daily has just turned out to be a gorgeous success. Republicans have predicted that the president's policy in Mexico would bring a conflict with all the world powers, and have naturally tried to verify their predictions, not only by withholding their co-operation, but by plotting against their own government.

As a part of this policy Mr. Roosevelt raised the standard of rebellion down in South America, against the Monroe doctrine, which he was ready to make a casus belli when he was America's dictator. Viscount Hildane, the Lord High Chancellor of England, speaking at a thanksgiving dinner of the American society in London voiced the sentiment of all the world powers in endorsing the Monroe doctrine which accords to the United States a general supervision over all the smaller American republics, and endorses in the strongest language possible the character of Woodrow Wilson as a thinker, as a moralist, as an office holder, and as a man. The next time the republicans predict disaster, all those who fatten on apprehension and dread will say, "well, they are telling the truth this time, because nothing except the truth remains to be told. It does seem that all phases and combinations of falsehood have already been put forth. Let us remember that while truth has but one form, error is susceptible of infinite variations and combinations

Editor Clanton Press:—

Jemison, Ala., Dec. 2, 1913

I see a great deal about the County High School through the columns of your paper.

I don't wish to enter into any discussion through the newspaper, but if nothing happens I will meet the Commissioners' Court on the 18th of December, and will make my defense in person.

I will be prepared to give the facts and figures of every high school in the State and after they hear the facts, if they then want to appropriate the $4,000 from the county treasury for the purpose of building a high school in Chilton county, I have no more to say.

Yours truly,

W. H. Conway.

"A short time ago I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs and caused me a great deal of annoyance. I would have bad coughing spells and my lungs were so sore and inflamed I began to be seriously alarmed. A friend recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saying she had used it for years. I bought a bottle and it relieved my cough the first night and in a week I was rid of the cold and soreness of my lungs," writes Miss Marie Gerber, Smyrna, Cal. For sale by Alred Drug Co.

GOOD ROADS

We are delighted to see that our Grand Jury have stood squarely by all we have been saying in these columns in behalf of good roads. Read their cheering words given below, and lift your hearts to God in gratitude for such citizens as compose this honorable body. Their position is a distinct advance over any step that has ever been taken, and will put Chilton far to the front. In their report, they say: "The majority of this body is in favor of a bond issue for building roads, and all are in favor of an educational campaign along this line, so that the people of the county may be informed as to how a bond issue is to be had, how roads are to be constructed under this plan, how the money is to be handled and spent, the cost per mile of such roads, how, when and where such rosds will be built, and all questions pertinent to a bond issue, which the people have a right to know. We believe that the people of the county are ready and willing to listen to argument along this line, and we believe that they are intelligent enough to adopt any method that will give them good roads speedily, and at a reasonable cost."

WANTS MONEY BILL PASSED

Urges Enactment of Legislation to Make Farming a More Efficient Business.

LET SHERMAN LAW STAND

Primary Elections for Selection of Candidates for Presidency Urged—Ultimate Independence of Philippines an Obligation—Double Duty Toward Alaska—Employers' Liability.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The following is President Wilson's complete message delivered to congress today:

In pursuance of my constitutional duty to "give to the congress information of the state of the Union," I take the liberty of addressing you on several matters which ought, as it seems to me, particularly to engage the attention of your honorable bodies, as of all who study the welfare of the nation.

I shall ask your indulgence if I venture to depart in some degree from the usual custom of setting before you in formal review the many matters which have engaged the attention and called for the action of the several departments of the government or which look to them for early treatment in the future, because the list is long, very long, and would suffer in the abbreviation to which I should have to subject it. I shall submit to you the reports of the heads of the several departments, in which these subjects are set forth in careful detail, and beg that they may receive the thoughtful attention of your committees and of all members of the congress who may have the leisure to study them. Their obvious importance, as constituting the very substance of the business of the government, makes comment and emphasis on my part unnecessary.

Country Is at Peace.

The country, I am thankful to say, is at peace with all the world, and many happy manifestations multiply about us of a growing cordiality and sense of community of interest among the nations, foreshadowing an age of settled peace and good will. More and more readily each decade do the nations manifest their willingness to bind themselves by solemn treaty to the processes of peace, the processes of frankness and fair concession. So far the United States has stood at the front of such negotiations. She will, I earnestly hope and confidently believe, give fresh proof of her sincere adherence to the cause of international friendship by ratifying the several treaties of arbitration awaiting renewal by the senate. In addition to these, it has been the privilege of the department of state to gain the assent, in principle, of no less than 31 nations, representing four-fifths of the population of the world, to the negotiation of treaties by which it shall be agreed that whenever differences of interest or of policy arise which cannot be resolved by the ordinary processes of diplomacy they shall be publicly analyzed, discussed, and reported upon by a tribunal chosen by the parties before either nation determines its course of action.

There is only one possible standard by which to determine controversies between the United States and other nations, and that is compounded of these two elements: Our own honor and our obligations to the peace of the world. A test so compounded ought easily to be made to govern both the establishment of new treaty obligations and the interpretation of those already assumed.

Huerta Must Let Go.

There is but one cloud upon our horizon. That has shown itself to the south of us, and hangs over Mexico. There can be no certain prospect of peace in America until General Huerta has surrendered his usurped authority in Mexico; until it is understood on all hands, indeed, that such pretended governments will not be countenanced or dealt with by the government of the United States. We are the friends of constitutional government in America; we are more than its friends, we are its champions; because in no other way can our neighbors, to whom we would wish in every way to make proof of our friendship, work out their own development in peace and liberty. Mexico has no government. The attempt to maintain one at the City of Mexico has broken down, and a mere military despotism has been set up which has hardly more than the semblance of national authority. It originated in the usurpation of Victoriano Huerta, who, after a brief attempt to play the part of constitutional president, has at last cast aside even the pretense of legal right and declared himself dictator. As a consequence, a condition of affairs now exists in Mexico which has made it doubtful whether even the most elementary and fundamental rights either of her own people or of the citizens of other countries resident within her territory can long be successfully safeguarded, and which threatens, if long continued, to imperil the interests of peace, order and tolerable life in the lands immediately to the south of us. Even if the usurper had succeeded in his purposes, in despite of the constitution of the republic and the rights of its people, he would have set up nothing but a precarious and hateful power, which could have lasted but a little while, and whose eventful downfall would have left the country in a more deplorable condition than ever. But he has not succeeded. He has forfeited the respect and the moral support even of those who were at one time willing to see him succeed. Little by little he has been completely isolated. By a little every day his power and prestige are crumbling and the collapse is not far away. We shall not, I believe, be obliged to alter our policy of watchful waiting. And then, when the end comes, we shall hope to see constitutional order restored in distressed Mexico by the concert and energy of such of her leaders as prefer the liberty of their people to their own ambitions.

Currency Reform.

I turn to matters of domestic concern. You already have under consideration a bill for the reform of our system of banking and currency, for which the country waits with impatience, as for something fundamental to its whole business life and necessary to set credit free from arbitrary and artificial restraints. I need not say how earnestly I hope for its early enactment into law. I take leave to beg that the whole energy and attention of the senate be concentrated upon it till the matter is successfully disposed of. And yet I feel that the request is not needed—that the members of that great house need no urging in this service to the country.

I present to you, in addition, the urgent necessity that special provision be made also for facilitating the credits needed by the farmers of the country. The pending currency bill does the farmers a great service. It puts them upon an equal footing with other business men and masters of enterprise, as it should; and upon its passage they will find themselves quit of many of the difficulties which now hamper them in the field of credit. The farmers, of course, ask and should be given no special privilege, such as extending to them the credit of the government itself. What they need and should obtain is legislation which will make their own abundant and substantial credit resources available as a foundation for joint, concerted local action in their own behalf in getting the capital they must use. It is to this we should now address ourselves.

Allowed to Lag.

It has, singularly enough, come to pass that we have allowed the industry of our farms to lag behind the other activities of the country in its development. I need not stop to tell you how fundamental to the life of the Nation is the production of its food. Our thoughts may ordinarily be concentrated upon the cities and the hives of industry, upon the cries of the crowded market place and the clangor of the factory, but it is from the quiet interspaces of the open valleys and the free hillsides that we draw the sources of life and of prosperity, from the farm and the ranch, from the forest and the mine. Without these every street would be silent, every office deserted, every factory fallen into disrepair. And yet the farmer does not stand upon the same footing with the forester and the miner in the market of credit. He is the servant of the seasons. Nature determines how long he must wait for his crops, and will not be hurried in her processes. He may give his note, but the season of its maturity depends upon the season when his crop matures, lies at the gates of the market where his products are sold. And the security he gives is of a character not known in the broker's office or as familiarly as it might be on the counter of the banker.

Efficiency in Farming.

The agricultural department of the government is seeking to assist as never before to make farming an efficient business, of wide co-operative effort, in quick touch with the markets for foodstuffs. The farmers and the government will henceforth work together as real partners in this field, where we now begin to see our way very clearly and where many intelligent plans are already being put into execution. The treasury of the United States has, by a timely and well-considered distribution of its deposits, facilitated the moving of the crops in the present season and prevented the scarcity of available funds too often experienced at such times. But we must not allow ourselves to depend upon extraordinary expedients. We must add the means by which the farmer may make his credit constantly and easily available and command when he will the capital by which to support and expand his business. We lag behind many other great countries of the modern world in attempting to do this. Systems of rural credit have been studied and developed on the other side of the water while we left our farmers to shift for themselves in the ordinary money market. You have but to look about you in any rural district to see the result; the handicap and embarrassment which have been put upon those who produce our food.

Study Rural Credit.

Conscious of this backwardness and neglect on our part, the congress recently authorized the creation of a special commission to study the rural credit systems of Europe, and this commission is already prepared to report. Its report ought to make it easier for us to determine what methods will be best suited to our own farmers. I hope and believe that the committees of the senate and house will address themselves to this matter with the most fruitful results, and I believe that the studies and recently formed plans of the department of agriculture may be made to serve them very greatly in their work of framing appropriate and adequate legislation. It would be indiscreet and presumptuous in anyone to dogmatize upon so great and many-sided a question, but I feel confident that common counsel will produce the results we must all desire.

Let Sherman Law Stand.

Turn from the farm to the world of business which centers in the city and in the factory, and I think that all thoughtful observers will agree that the immediate service we owe the business communities of the country is to prevent private monopoly more effectually than it has yet been prevented. I think it will be easily agreed that we should let the Sherman anti-trust law stand, unaltered, as it is, with its debatable ground about it, but that we should as much as possible reduce the area of that debatable ground by further and more explicit legislation; and should also supplement that great act by legislation which will not only clarify it but also facilitate its administration and make it fairer to all concerned. No doubt we shall all wish, and the country will expect, this to be the central subject of our deliberations during the present session; but it is a subject so many-sided and so deserving of careful and discriminating discussion that I shall take the liberty of addressing you upon it in a special message at a later date than this. It is of capital importance that the business men of this country should be relieved of all uncertainties of law with regard to their enterprises and investments and a clear path indicated which they can travel without anxiety. It is as important that they should be relieved of embarrassment and set free to prosper as that private monopoly should be destroyed. The ways of action should be thrown wide open.

I turn to a subject which I hope can be handled promptly and without serious controversy of any kind. I mean the method of selecting nominees for the presidency of the United States. I feel confident that I do not misinterpret the wishes or the expectations of the country when I urge the prompt enactment of legislation which will provide for primary elections throughout the country at which the voters of the several parties may choose their nominees for the presidency without the intervention of nominating conventions. I venture the suggestion that this legislation should provide for the retention of party conventions, but only for the purpose of declaring and accepting the verdict of the primaries and formulating the platforms of the parties; and I suggest that these conventions should consist not of delegates chosen for this single purpose, but of the nominees for congress, the nominees for vacant seats in the senate of the United States, the senators whose terms have not yet closed, the national committees, and the candidates for the presidency themselves, in order that platforms may be framed by those responsible to the people for carrying them into effect.

Independence for Philippines.

These are all matters of vital domestic concern, and besides them, outside the charmed circle of our own national life in which our affections command us, as well as our consciences, there stand out our obligations toward our territories over sea. Here we are trustees. Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, are ours, once regarded as mere possessions, are no longer to be selfishly exploited; they are part of the domain of public conscience and of serviceable and enlightened statesmanship. We must administer them for the people who live in them and with the same sense of responsibility to them as toward our own people in our domestic affairs. No doubt we shall successfully enough bind Porto Rico and the Hawaiian islands to ourselves by ties of justce and affection, but the performance of our duty toward the Philippines is a more difficult and debatable matter. We can satisfy the obligations of generous justice toward the people of Porto Rico by giving them the ample and familiar rights and privileges accorded our own citizens in our own territory and our obligations toward the people of Hawaii by perfecting the provisions of self-government already granted them, but in the Philippines we must go further. We must hold steadily in view their ultimate independence, and we must move toward the time of that independence as steadily as the way can be cleared and the foundations thoughtfully and permanently laid.

Test of Responsibility.

Acting under the authority conferred upon the president by congress, I have already accorded the people of the islands a majority in both houses of their legislative body by appointing five instead of four native citizens to the membership of the commission. I believe that in this way we shall make proof of their capacity in counsel and their sense of the responsibility in the exercise of political power, and that the success of this step will be sure to clear our view for the steps which are to follow. Step by step we should extend and perfect the system of self-government in the islands, making test of them and profiting by experience of the inexperience that characterizes their counsels, and should more and more put under the control of the native citizens of the archipelago the essential instruments of their life, their local instrumentalities of government, their schools, all the common interests of their communities, and so by counsel and experience set up a government which all the world will see to be suitable to a people whose affairs are under their own control. At last, I hope and believe, we are beginning to gain the confidence of the Filipino peoples. By their counsel and experience, rather than by our own, we shall learn how best to serve them and how soon it will be possible and wise to withdraw our supervision. Let us once find the path and set out with firm and confident tread upon it and we shall not wander from it or linger upon it.

Double Duty Toward Alaska.

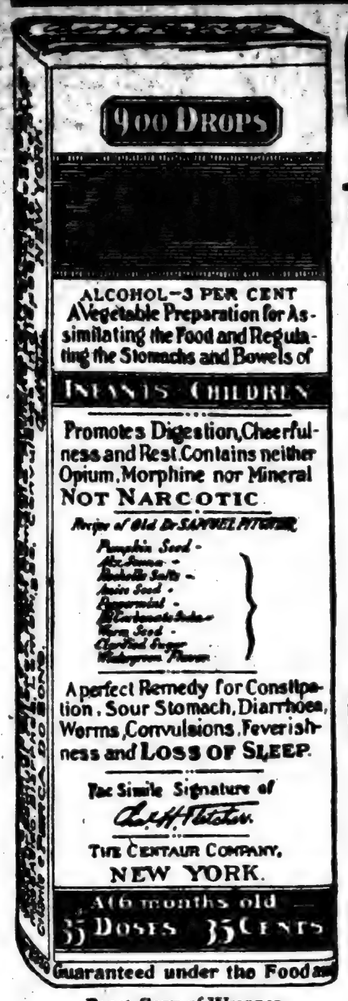
A duty faces us with regard to Alaska which seems to me very pressing and very imperative; perhaps I should say a double duty, for it concerns both the political and the material development of the territory. The people of Alaska should be given the full territorial form of government, and Alaska, as a storehouse, should be unlocked. One key to it is a system of railways. These the government should itself build and administer, and the ports and terminals it should itself control in the interest of all who wish to use them for the service and development of the country and its people.

But the construction of railways is only the first step; is only thrusting in the key to the storehouse and throwing back the lock and opening the door. How the tempting resources of the country are to be exploited is another matter, to which I shall take the liberty of from time to time calling your attention, for it is a policy which must be worked out by well-considered stages, not upon theory, but upon lines of practical expediency. It is part of our general problem of conservation. We have a freer hand in working out the problem in Alaska than in the states of the Union; and yet the principle and object are the same, wherever we touch it. We must use the resources of the country, not lock them up. There need be no conflict or jealousy as between state and federal authorities, for there can be no essential difference of purpose between them. The resources in question must be used, but not destroyed or wasted; used, but not monopolized upon any narrow idea of individual rights as against the abiding interests of communities. That a policy can be worked out by conference and concession which will release these resources and yet not jeopard or dissipate them, I for one have no doubt; and it can be done on lines of regulation which need be no less acceptable to the people and governments of the states concerned than to the people and government of the nation at large, whose heritage these resources are. We must bend our counsels to this end. A common purpose ought to make agreement easy.

Specially Important.

Three or four matters of special importance and significance I beg that you will permit me to mention in closing.

Our bureau of mines ought to be equipped and empowered to render even more effectual service than it renders now in improving the conditions of mine labor and making the mines more economically productive as well as more safe. This is an all-important part of the work of conservation; and the conservation of human life and energy lies even nearer to our interest than the preservation from waste of our material resources.



We owe it, in mere justice to the railway employes of the country, to provide for them a fair and effective employers' liability act; and a law that we can stand by in this matter will be no less to the advantage of those who administer the railroads of the country than to the advantage of those whom they employ. The experience of a large number of the states abundantly proves that.

We ought to devote ourselves to meeting pressing demands of plain justice like this as earnestly as to the accomplishment of political and economic reforms. Social justice comes first. Law is the machinery for its realization and is vital only as it expresses and embodies it.

Safety at Sea.

An international congress for the discussion of all questions that affect safety at sea is now sitting in London at the suggestion of our own government. So soon as the conclusions of that congress can be learned and considered we ought to address ourselves, among other things, to the prompt alleviation of the very unsafe, unjust, and burdensome conditions which now surround the employment of sailors and render it extremely difficult to obtain the services of spirited and competent men such as every ship needs if it is to be safely handled and brought to port.

May I not express the very real pleasure I have experienced in co-operating with this congress and sharing, with it the labors of common service to which it has devoted itself so unreservedly during the past seven months of uncomplaining concentration upon the business of legislation? Surely it is a proper and pertinent part of my report on "the state of the Union" to express my admiration for their devotion, the good temper, and the sound constructiveness of public duty which has already been manifested by both the houses; and I hope that it may not be deemed an impertinent intrusion if I speak of myself how this pleasure [illegible]

A LITTLE RUNAWAY

By AVIS INGALLS.

OF COURSE there was snow, newly fallen — what would Christmas be without that? And sleigh-bells, all a tinkle, and cheery greetings and gladsome smiles on every hand; and there were clear twinkling stars now above the housetops looking down from a deep blue sky, and, of course, it was nothing but hustle and hustle, in most places, and all the necessary hullabaloo that makes Christmas the adorable holiday that it is—but—and here is where my story comes in.

On a quiet street, where the better class of houses stood, a trifle away from the shopping district and the street car lines, a little face was pressed against the window-pane, and two large tears stole down over a straight little nose. Other little girls were joyfully looking forward to this happy season, but Elizabeth Rockerby felt sadly at a loss and out of place as she stood in her black velvet and lace in her grandmother's huge drawing-room. She had overheard the parlor-maid and the upper house-maid, in a whispered conversation.

"The poor darlint," Nora, the housemaid, had said. "The poor darlint! And is it Christmas the little one's after havin'? Never a bit of it! Don't ye believe it! Oh, the poor lamb! that solemn and stiff-like in her black dress—"

"Think of Cook's Ruby rigged out like that!" said Ellen. "Do you think she'd stand it for a minute? Not on your life; She'd be down under the table pulling the cat's tail; and she'd be teasing her mother for goodies, when she got tired of that! But this pale-faced mite, she's passed from one calculating relative to another, till she hasn't got a speck of zzip left in her. Do you know what Ruby'd do? She'd run away!" and Ellen laughed outright at the thought.

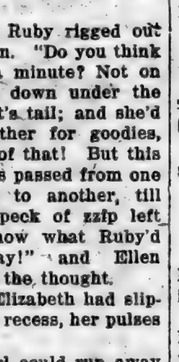
It was here that Elizabeth had slipped into the window recess, her pulses throbbing.

If Cook's little girl could run away why shouldn't she?

Elizabeth had not known it could be so cold when one got out into the night; but the stars had a friendly twinkle, and the shop-windows looked so pretty with their tinsel drapings and red paper bells that she almost forgot the cold as she went eagerly from one gay collection of toys to another, an felt the companionship of children, as she rubbed shoulders with ragged newsboys and pinched-faced little girls who gazed quite as eagerly as she at the Christmas dolls holding outstretched arms to the passers-by.

"Are they—are they to sell?" she asked timidly, of a little girl who held her baby sister by the hand and stamped her feet to keep them warm.

"Sakes alive, yes!" said the other, in astonishment. "Ain't that one with the black curls too cute for anything!" she added, gazing at it with wistful eyes.



"Could we go in and—and buy it?" asked Elizabth earnestly.

"'Course we could, if we had the ninety-eight cents."

"Come on, then!" said Elizabeth, and, grasping her incredulous companion by the hand, she plunged into the store. "The doll with the black curls!" she stammered. "May I buy it for this little girl?"

"Sure," said the salesman.

Elizabeth fished a dollar bill out of her little chain purse and watched curiously as the child lifted the doll tenderly in her arms and walked out, forgetting, in her delight to say "thank you," and the baby sister toddled after.

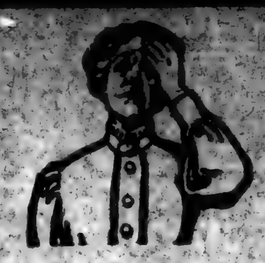
Out in the street again Elizabeth saw two small boys with their faces glued to the window of the next shop, where sticks of candy lay in fascinating rows, and chocolates and gum-drops were heaped in pyramids, with trays of fudge and molasses candy in between.

She stopped, and, without any hesitation this time, gave them each a cent.

Her chain purse was empty now, her exhilarating occupation gone, and she stood, a forlorn little figure in her ermine and velvet, on the corner of the crowded street.

She had remained thus for some little time when she heard a quick step behind her and she was quickly grasped by strong but kindly hands and swung on to the steps.

"So-ho!" said a big man, who had come up the street, "It's Mistress Elizabeth Rockerby! What are you up to, Betsy Jane?"



"Cousin Bob!" gasped Elizabeth.

"Yes, 'Cousin Bob,' and now, 'cry your trail,' little sister!"

"I—I ran away," faltered Elizabeth.

"Well, come along in and I'll introduce you to the cousins," said Cousin Bob, cheerfully, and then I'll 'phone 'em up and tell them that it's our turn to have you!"

And Elizabeth snuggled her frozen hands happily into her big cousin's hand as she stepped forward into a new life.

CLEARLY NOT FOND OF WATER

Seemed to Be a Fact That Old Gentleman Had Been Neglecting His Ablutions.

Vaughn Comfort, interlocutor of Honey Boy George Evans' Minstrels, is circulating this story:

An old rustic, bent and painfully limping, was accosted by a friend, who inquired:

"Hello, Zeb! What ailin' yo?"

"Got a big corn between two toes," said Zeb, "and it hurts something awful!"

"Lemme see it. Mebbe I kin do ye some good."

"No use, Joe. It's been thataway for six weeks."

"But it won't do any harm to let me try."

Slowly and tenderly the old man removed his boot.

"Great guns, man!" the friend exclaimed. "How long did you say you have been suffering?"

"Just about six weeks."

"This ain't any corn," cried Joe. "It's a collar button!"—Youngstown Telegram.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Don't Look Old! Try Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Gray, Faded, Lifeless Hair.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

The Slash.

Paul Poiret, the French dressmaker, was asked by a New York reporter if he thought woman's present mode of dress made for morality.

"I do not deal in morality," M. Poiret replied. "I deal in beauty."

Then, apropos of the slashed skirt, he told a story.

"A young lady in a white dinner gown," he said, "stood under a blazing electrolier and, swinging round before her fiance, she asked:

"'How does my new dress show up?'

"'Up almost to the knee,' the young man replied. 'Those white silk stockings with gold clocks are beautiful.'"

This Is Vital to Every Owner OF A Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Car

Made at Tarrytown, N. Y. and New Castle, Ind., 1905 to 1913

Also to all Owners of Stoddard-Dayton, 1905 to 1914; Columbia Gasoline and Electrics, 1906 to 1914; Everitt Cars of Any Model; Brush, Sampson and Courier Cars

THERE ARE THREE GOOD REASONS why you should have your car overhauled now and worn parts replaced.

FIRST: The garage man can give you better service—and you can spare the car better now than later. No matter whether you are going to keep the car, or sell or trade it in on a new one—it will pay you well to have it thoroughly overhauled, worn parts replaced by new ones and body repainted.

SECOND: We are able to furnish replacement parts for all models of above makes of cars within 48 hours from receipt of order. Have concentrated this branch of the business at Newcastle, Ind. (center of population of the U. S.) Here we have a $1,750,000 investment in plant and stock. 45,000 separate bins of parts.

THIRD: And perhaps the best reason why you should secure your requirements now—we must increase prices 20% January 1st, when the new parts price lists will be off the presses.

NOW NOTE THIS—Never before in the history of this industry has a new concern, having bought the plants and assets of a bankrupt one, taken upon itself the obligation of furnishing replacement parts for the cars it never made.

THE MAXWELL MOTOR COMPANY DID. We considered it good business, even if not a moral or legal obligation.

WE FOUND 122,000 owners out in the cold, as it were—pleading for parts. Their cars laid up and useless in most cases.

WE'VE INVESTED about one and three-quarters millions ($1,750,000) dollars in a plant and stock of parts, for over 150 different models, made by the concerns that comprised the United States Motor Company, whose assets we purchased from the Receiver thru the U. S. Courts.

WE TOOK THE NAME MAXWELL solely for the protection of 60,000 persons who had bought cars under that name.

HAD WE CHOSEN ANOTHER NAME those 60,000 cars would have had almost no value in the second-hand market. As it is, they have a definite value. And by the replacement of the worn parts your car will be good for a long time to come.

ANY RECOGNIZED DEALER or repair man—whether he handles the present Maxwell line or not—can procure these parts for you. Or you can order direct. Shipment will be made within 24 to 48 hours after receipt of the order at Newcastle.

Write for our booklet, "How to Make Your Car Live Twice As Long," in which we set forth the Maxwell policy toward owners of the above mentioned cars. Address

Telephone Memorandum.

A little combination pad and telephone list that may be attached directly to the instrument is a new and handy contrivance. A thick pad covered with leather has a spring holder at the top which slips around the receiver and holds the pad firmly in place. Attached to brass rings on the pad is a set of ruled cards with a thumb index arranged alphabetically for the list of telephone numbers, and on top of these, mounted on a silk-covered board, is a little memorandum pad containing about 100 sheets with a lead pencil in a little holder at the top. The memorandum sheets can be renewed, as the piece of cardboard at the back fits into a slit in the silk covering.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR STATE SENATOR.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the Senate of Alabama from the the Fifteenth district, composed of the counties of Chilton, Shelby and Autauga, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

W. W. Wallace.

The preacher in politics is all right, but the politician in the pulpit is what hurts.

"The grand jury of Barbour county is probing the Clayton wreck."—Exchange.

Oh, leave all that to Steagall.

The anti-Comer men will get together soon, according to the Montgomery Advertiser. Well, they had better hurry up or it will be everlastingly too late.—Opp Messenger.

The anti-Hobson men got together, but what has it amounted to? They are even ashamed to confess that they got together.

The politician everywhere thinks that the best way to help Woodrow Wilson is to tie his hands, but the people everywhere are shouting "Loose him, and let him go!"

A preacher is now editor of the Clanton Press. Success to the parson, and may his religion stand the test.—Opp Messenger. Suppose he pies a form?—Mobile Register.

A preacher is now editor of the Clanton Press. Success to the parson, and may his religion stand the test.—Opp Messenger. It's the acid test all right.—Andalusia Star. Likewise the "test of steel" (pens).—Scottsboro Age.

This welcome to the tripod appears a little testy, but we understand and freely forgive the craft. There is not such a great difference between the preacher and the newspaper editor after all. To each the devil is a very real person, and each is accustomed to work for nothing and board himself while promoting every noble enterprise.

T. D. Samford of Opelika has been appointed District Attorney for the Middle District of Alabama and Senator Bankhead has notified friends that he has no influence with the present administration in the matter of patronage.

A Birmingham Underwood Club has passed resolutions endorsing the administration of Gov. O'Neal.—Exchange.

I told you so.

Our Alabama appointments still "linger in insipid lapses of delay." If Bankhead could succeed in getting Underwood into the Senate to help him to help the President, we could realize more fully our obligation to send forward just such helpers.

It is said that Woodrow Wilson can't run the government without Underwood. Then why didn't he take Hobson out of the race instead of Clayton? Hobson is the voracious ogre who is eating Underwood raw just at this present writing.

Woody is a wonder. He played the democratic bosses against each other in New Jersey, so as to win the fight for the people, and then manipulated Underwood and Bankhead during the tariff fight. He makes the ambition of the politician to serve us, and then restrains the overplus of ambition.

Candler of Mississippi introduced a bill in Congress yesterday calling for appropriation of one hundred million dollars for good roads. What Chilton gets depends upon what she gives.

F. Loyd Tate, the Solicitor for this Judicial Circuit, has shown marked ability as a lawyer, and conscientious fidelity as an officer of the court at this session. In such hands the interests of the State are safe.

Read what our advertisers say before making your purchases for the holidays.

The imperturbable Woodrow calmly watches while the political misrepresentations of his policy answer each other in Mexico and in Alabama. No need of haste in the execution of his decree for the downfall of the bosses. The cause of truth is never so sure of triumph as when it is posing as the bottom dog in the fight.

In the city of Birmingham it is estimated that there are ten thousand inhabitants who were born in Ohio, and all of them seem to be for Underwood except Brooks Lawrence. That is, Brooks Lawrence is the only Ohio Yankee that the Advertiser has been able to find who is standing with native Alabama patriots in opposition to the liquor forces.

President Wilson's message to the regular session delivered to Congress on Tuesday of this week will be found on our second page. The farmer has a large place in it, and will have in the session now beginning. Our Washington correspondent will give news fresh each week. Get your neighbor to subscribe or he will worry you to death borrowing your paper.

The same people that tell us that Wilson can't run the government without Underwood once told us that Underwood could run it without Wilson, and in spite of all that the school teacher could do to prevent it. By the way, many of their old plate-matter epithets have been merely switched off from Wilson on to Hobson, such as "Visionary," "Dreamer," "Impractical," "Academic Reasoner," Blear-Eyed Reformer," etc.

BAPTIST MINISTERS' MEETING

WELCOME TO VISITORS

It gives us great pleasure to say that our invitations to subscribers and friends have brought many visitors to this office, who give us valuable information in regard to crops and various other questions of public interest. We are also indebted to these visitors for many social pleasures, and appreciate more than words can tell the cordial hand-clasps, and encouraging words bestowed upon us. I am ashamed to say that I often fail to recognize those who call a second time, and want it understood that this is due to a faulty memory, and not to indifference or a want of appreciation. This inability to recall faces is an infirmity that grows upon us with age, and seems to be incurable. If, as the little boy claimed in his school essay, "memory is the thing we forget with," then this editor possesses a perfect specimen of the article, for he hardly ever remembers a face except when he forgets who it belongs to. Whenever you discover that he does not recollect you, just tell him your name one more time, pity his weak-mindedness, and proceed with your interview.

You will excuse us for adding that it is contrary to the rules of all printing offices for visitors to speak to the printers. It causes them to make typographical mistakes, and consumes their time. The printers' time is the paper's money, and it is about the only money the average paper has above other expenses

STRENGTH FOR OLD PEOPLE

Old people, to overcome the weakening, debilitating effects of increasing old age, often make a very sad mistake in using so-called 'remedies' that contain alcohol and dangerous or habit-forming drugs. Often this stuff, because it livens and brightens them up a little just after taking a dose, leads them to imagine that it is doing them good, when it isn't. Remedies that rely for their sale on such deceit, do harm, because the false excitement of the nerves and heart leaves them worse than they were before.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is a real medicine—a splendid body and strength-builder, especially good for old people, because it furnishes to the system ingredients necessary to rebuild wasted tissues, strengthen the nerves, give new energy and a young and livelier feeling to the body. I doesn't contain a drop of alcohol nor any dangerous drug. It may not make you feel better after the first dose, nor perhaps for several days. But if you don't feel much better and stronger before you have taken a quarter as much as you have of other medicines that didn't help you, will gladly give you back your money. That's certainly a square deal.

The four Hypophosphites it contains are used by leading physicians everywhere in debility, weakness and liability to disease, to tone and strengthen the nerves. Purest Olive Oil, one of the most nutritious, most easily digested foods known, being taken with the hypophosphites, gives rich tissue nourishment to the entire system.

You who are weak and rundown, and you who are apparently well now, but are liable to suffer from various cold weather ailments, use Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion to get and keep well and strong. For the tired-out, rundown, nervous, emaciated or debilitated—the convalescing—growing children—aged people—it is a sensible pleasant-tasting aid to renewed strength, better spirits, glowing health. If, it does not help you, your money will be given back to you without argument. Sold in this community only at our store. The Rexall Store—one of many (over 7,000) Rexall stores in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

How to Bankrupt the Doctors.

Powers of Observation.

Answering its own question, "What do most people look at as they walk through the streets?" the London Lancet says: "The regrettable fact is that if a hundred persons who walked down Regent street were asked at Piccadilly what they had been looking at since they left Oxford Circus probably about ninety would reply: 'Nothing in particular;' if they were truthful that is to say, which is hardly to be expected in so large a proportion.

"The ten most observant would, we imagine, all be women who had been looking in the shop windows."

Being Good.

"Too many people have the wrong idea of goodness," said Judge Ben B. Lindsay in an address in New York. "Their idea of goodness is the Puritanical one expressed by little Jimmy.

"'Jimmy,' said the lad's teacher, 'What is it to be good? You don't know, do you?'

"'To be sure I do,' Jimmy answered. 'It's not doing what you want to do.'"

Slow.

"Bitters is the slowest payer in town."

"Is he?"

"Yep. If he owed a man an apology he'd pay it by installments."

Real Thing.

"How was the reverberation in that cave?"

"I don't know anything about that, but the echo was fine."

Point of View.

"I see Bill has fitted his car with a new siren."

"Yes; good looking, too."—Harvard Lampoon.

URGE MEETINGS OF STATE'S FARMERS

LAND CONGRESS WANTS ALABAMA TO PRODUCE OWN FOOD AND FORAGE CROPS.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING

System of This Kind Will Be Inaugurated As Soon As Farmers Can Supply Demand.

Birmingham.—The Alabama State Land congress signalizes its entrance upon the work of another year by requesting the commercial organizations of the state to call quraterly meetings of the farmers around them and start a state-wide movement to produce what Alabama consumes in food and forage crops within the confines of the state.

It seeks first to obtain more general attention to poultry and dairy products, encouraging the farmers to raise more chickens and eggs, and produce more butter. As soon as that movement is fairly under way a system of co-operative marketing will be inaugurated, supplying the cities and larger towns direct from the local producers throughout the state. It is believed that this will tend greatly to reduce the high cost of living in the commercial and industrial centers of Alabama.

IMPEACHMENT IS URGED.

J. F. Corum of Madison County Is Charged With Incompetence.

Huntsville.—Recommending the impeachment of Justice J. F. Corum of the Dallas precinct because of incompetence and because he divides fees with the deputies and will not pay over a sum of money claimed to be due the state, the circuit court grand jury submitted its final report port to Judge Speake and was discharged. The jury also recommended the practice of more economy in the law and equity court, which was claimed to be operated in a needlessly expensive manner.

The jury reported that it found 41 true bills. Some of these indictments were against alleged vote bribers and two were for perjury. Many witnesses were examined and the report stated that but few of these witnesses would give any evidence against persons in the illegal sale of whiskey.

Miss Hawes, with a part yof friends, had gone to the carnival and were shooting at the bull's eye. Moore stooped down to get another gun and as he raised up Miss Hawes, not seeing him, fired at the target.

The bullet struck Moore in the temple and he fell to the ground. Moore was placed on a train and rushed to Atlanta, where he was to have been placed in a hospital, but he died at Dallas, Ga.

Miss Erin put up this summer from a little less than one-tenth of an acre, 1,855 cans of tomatoes. Mrs. Birdie J. Robinson of Auburn, who has charge of the clubs, will accompany the girls to Washington.

FOREST FIRES RAGING.

Fences, Telephone and Telegraph Poles Burned.

Gadsden.—Much damage is reported as result of forest fires around Gadsden. Fences have been burned away and telephone and telegraph poles burned off at the ground. Several outbuildings on farms have been burned but no homes have been destroyed, so far as reports received here indicate.

18,000,000 TONS OF COAL.

Predicted 1913 Will Break all Records for Production.

Birmingham.—The Alabama coal production, according to all indications, will be upwards of eighteen million tons. With only one more month of the present year remaining the indications point to all records being smashed by the Alabama coal operators.

During the first seven months of the year, the output of the coal mines of the state were over the 10,000,000 mark. However, in September and October, there was a slump in the coal production due to the car famine and the scarcity of orders.

In November, however, there has been a decided recovery in the coal situation and the indications are that new records will be made between now and the close of the year.

It is pointed out that but for the slump during the early fall, that the coal production of the state would have exceeded the eighteen million mark.

FORMER GOVERNOR DEAD.

Was In Many Ways Prominent in State's History.

Birmingham.—Rufus W. Cobb, who was for two terms governor of Alabama died at the home of his daughter in Woodlawn. The former governor was 84 years of age. His death was not entirely unexpected, for he had been ill for some days, since he sustained a fall, which fractured his hip. His remains were laid to rest in Woodlawn cemetery.

Rufus W. Cobb was born at Asheville, February 25, 1829, and served as governor of Alabama for two terms, from 1878 to 1882, as state senator from 1872 to 1878, and as probate judge of Shelby county for several years. He was a Confederate veteran, served throughout the war, also took part in the Mexican war of 1847.

IMPROVEMENT IN MINE RECORD.

Fatalities in Mines Up to November 7 Showed Falling of Off 19.

Birmingham.—During the first nine months of this year 19 less persons were killed in the coal mines of Alabama than in the same period of 1912, according to statistics received by Chief State Mine Inspector Nesbit, from the bureau of mines. From January through September last year, 92 miners met their death through fatal accidents in Alabama coal mines. This year's record for that time shows 73 miners killed.

VANDERBILT-ALABAMA DEBATE.

Contest Will Probably Occur Some Time Next Spring.

University.—The University of Alabama and Vanderbilt will again meet in debate this year, according to an announcement made by the local debating council. In reply to a telegram from Vanderbilt asking for a reply to that institution's challenge for a debate, secretary of the council wired back acceptance of the terms, and the two institutions will accordingly pit their best debaters against each other. The contest will take place some time during the early spring, probably about the first of April.

NEW MILITARY COMPANY.

Is Being Organized at Alabama City for Fourth Regiment.

Gadsden.—Alabama City will have a military company. It is being organized under the direction of Dr. Burns, a Spanish war veteran, who probably will command it. It will become a part of the new Fourth regiment, of which Company F of Gadsden is a portion. There also is some talk of organizing a company at Attalla.

DR. J. H. JOHNSON DEAD.

Was Superintendent Schools for Deaf and Blind.

Talladega.—Dr. J. H. Johnson, superintendent of the Alabama schools for the deaf and blind, died at his home here. Dr. Johnson was one of the foremost educators of the deaf and blind in the United States and has been at the head of the Alabama schools for many years.

GINNING IN MORGAN COUNTY.

Report Shows 17,923 Bales to November 14.

Decatur.—John A. Thomason of Decatur, official cotton reporter for the United States government, has just made his report, that the number of bales of cotton ginned in Morgan county up to November 14 were 17,932 bales, as against 12,543 ginned up to the same time last year. This county raises on an average of about 23,000 bales.

$75,000 FIRE AT DEMOPOLIS.

1,000 Bales of Cotton in Winn Warehouse Burned.

Demopolis.—One of the most disastrous fires in the history of Demopolis occurred when the western section of the cotton warehouse of N. G. Winn was destroyed with its contents, about 1,000 bales of cotton. The loss of buildings, cotton and other property is estimated at $75,000, partly covered by insurance.

OBSERVE DEC. 7, AS TUBERCULOSIS DAY

GOVERNOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION—PEOPLE URGED TO AID IN CHECKING DISEASE.

DOINGS AT STATE CAPITAL

Proceedings of Public Events—News of An Important Nature Given.

—Montgomery.

The governor issued a proclamation designating December 7 as tuberculosis day in Alabama and called upon the people of the state to perform every service possible to check this disease. The governor calls attention in his proclamation to the tremendous loss of life annually from tuberculosis. This number has been estimated to be 150,000 annually.

The proclamation states that one-third of all the deaths between the ages of 15 and 65 are due to this disease. "The welfare of state and the cause of humanity alike emphasize the value of earnest, united effort upon the part of all our people," says the governor. "I sincerely trust that the people of Alabama will realize that it is their duty to perform every act within their power to check this scourge and to drive it from our borders."

12,047 Births in Three Months.

Statistics by the state board of health show that there was approximately two and one-half times as many births during the months of July, August and September as deaths. The exact number of births recorded during these three months was 12,047, against 5,382 deaths for the same period.

The above figures are taken from the most recent bulletin issued by the state board of health, and were compiled by members of the department.

Since the last bulletin aws issued, health campaigns have been conducted in Madison, Colbert, Lawrence, Limestone, and Walker counties. The campaigns were in charge of Dr. W. H. Sanders, state health officer, who was assisted by the local county officers.

The bulletin contains many interesting facts about various diseases and the methods of treatment, and makes many suggestions relative to methods of preventing disease.

Abolish "One Man" Decision.

Resolutions urging the supreme court to abolish the "one man" decision were presented by a committee of the Alabama Star Bar association, composed of T. M. Stevens of Mobile, E. W. Godby of Decatur and Henry Fitts of Birmingham. The resolutions ask that the entire court hereafter consider every case in consultation before transferring it to one of the justices to write the opinion. The measures were adopted by the Alabama State Bar association at the annual convention held in Mobile last summer.

Company L Mustered Out.

Company L, of the Fourth infantry, Alabama National Guard, stationed at East Lake, Ala., has been mustered out of the service because of inefficiency, according to an order issued by Adjutant General J. B. Scully. Capt. J. D. Carlisle has been detailed to take charge of the government property in the possession of the company. Major T. C. Locke and Capt. W. P. Screws of the United States army, made an inspection of this company and upon their report the company was mustered out.

Freight Rates on Coal Reduced.

The state railroad commission has issued an order establishing a rate of 80 cents a ton on coal on all railroads running between Birmingham and Selma. The old rate was $1 per ton. The action of the commission in reducing the rate on coal from the Birmingham mines to Selma came as the result of a long and determined fight waged by the Selma Chamber of Commerce.

Argentine Corn Being Shipped.

Five thousand tons of Argentine corn will be distributed soon in Georgia and Alabama to compete with American raised corn at a price 2c a bushel less than the latter, according to a story emanating from New Orleans. The new Underwood tariff bill is responsible, according to this story, for Argentine corn coming into keen competition with American raised grain. The experiment has proven successful in the western states, it is said.

A well known Montgomerian, who has just returned from New Orleans, says he was informed before leaving there that the steamer Newlands is due to arrive at Mobile from Argentine about the latter part of December or the first of January, there with 5,000 tons of this Argentine corn, which is to be distributed in Alabama and Georgia. Other cargoes are to be shipped to Mobile early next year.

[illegible] Argentine corn is said to be very hard, also dusty and ill-conditioned for feeding purposes, especially when mixed with a fresh American corn.

May Meet December 10.

Members of the state democratic executive committee will meet in Montgomery, December 10, according to information obtained at the capitol. No notices have yet been sent out to the members of the committee, but it is said that they will be mailed at once. The call for the meeting of the committee will be issued by R. Tyler Goodwyn, chairman.

When the committee meets the date for holding the next democratic primary will be selected and the question of whether the candidates in the next election will be elected by the majority or plurality plan will be decided.

Should the majority plan be chosen it is practically certain that two primaries will be held and the two leading candidates for each office will have a "run off" n the second primary. Should the plurality plan be adopted there will be only one primary.

No information can be obtained as to the desires of the committee relative to the date of the primary. It is probable, however that the primary will be held some time during April. This time seems to please most of the candidates.

Tyler Goodwyn of Montgomery is chairman of the committee, John P. Abbott of Birmingham is secretary, and Pat McGauley of Montgomery is reporter.

First Report on Liquor Traffic.

The liquor traffic in Alabama's eight wet counties brought in a total revenue of $576,633.90 during the fiscal year ended September 30, according to a report dealing exclusively with the liquor receipts and disbursements filed with Governor O'Neal by State Examiner Gorman.

It is the first report of the kind ever made in the state. The revenue was from licenses in the seven open saloon counties and from the dispensary in Madison county. Of the total the state received $86,179.07, the counties $175,368.56, and the cities, $315,086.27.

The revenues by counties are as follows: Colbert, $15,900; Cullman, $13,400; Jefferson, $265,560; Mobile, $115,980; Montgomery, $86,902; Pike, $9,900; Russell, $30,180. The Madison county dispensary brought $38,771.50.

The cities' shares of the revenues were as follows: Birmingham $139,841.36; Mobile, $46,035.68; Montgomery, $32,900.88; Huntsville, $17,447.17.

The counties' revenue received the following: Colbert, $6,360; Cullman, $5,376; Jefferson, $608,307; Mobile, $46,392.08; Montgomery, $32,900.88; Pike, $3,960; Russell, $1,207.

The probate judges collected $5,378.62 on the issuance of licenses.

The report shows that the total expense of the saloons, including the probate judges' fees and the salaries of excise commissioners, were $32,274.04. The expenses of the dispensary are paid from its profits.

Profit of Oyster Commission.

The receipts of the Alabama oyster commission were less than the expenditures during the last fiscal year according to C. E. McCall, chief examiner of public accounts, who has finished an examination of books of J. A. Joullian of Mobile, secretary of the commission. The receipts amounted to $3,743, and expenditures totaled $4,216.

"During the year there was expended of the $15,000 appropriated by the last legislature, under the direction of the oyster commission, the sum of $3,111.47," says the report. "This includes, among other small expenditures, the sum of $1,871.48 to Nicol & Human, surveyors, for charting the oyster bottoms of Mobile county, and the planting of 20,499 barrels of oyster shells in Mobile and Baldwin county.

"The secretary of the commission has vouchers in hand for all expenditures made by the commission and his accounts are correct."

Lower Rate Pig Iron Shipments.

Establishment of a $1.75 a ton rate on pig iron on all railroads running between Birimingham and Mobile was ordered at a special session of the state railroad commission. The old rate on pig iron between the Birmnigham furnaces and Mobile was $2.75 a ton.

Members of the Mobile Chamber of Commerce and the Mobile Business Men's League called the attention of the commission to the $2.75 rate which the citizens of Mobile claimed was discriminatory in favor of Savannah.

Dec. 19, Knapp Agricultural Day.

Naming Friday, December 19, as Knapp agricultural day in Alabama, William F. Feagin, state superintendent of education, call upon every county superintendent in the state to "see that every teacher who has ever organized a corn club; every boy and girl who has ever had a part in corn or tomato club work, and every person who desires the development of his community and state, shall be sure to participate in the program of this day."

DIVERSIFICATION ON SOUTHERN FARMS

Corn Crop Peculiarly Adapted to Soils in the South.

IMPORTANT CROP IN SOUTH

No Such Risks From Frosts as Menace Farmers of So-Called Corn Belt—Only Necessary to Pulverize Soil to Absorb Moisture.

(By G. H. ALFORD.)

The long seasons of the south make it peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of the corn crop, since there is never any risks from early frosts catching corn as there is in a large part of what is now termed the corn belt. The rainfall is sufficient to produce maximum crops and it is only necessary to pulverize the soil and fill it full of vegetable matter and plant food for from 5 to 15 inches deep so that it will absorb the rain and conserve the soil water by frequent and shallow cultivation.

Fertile soil and good seed are essential to success in corn growing, but without thorough preparation of the soil before the seed is planted we have no right to expect a good crop of corn. If we will only give our lands the preparation that the farmers in the central west give their lands we can, by reason of climatic conditions and natural fitness for the crop, easily beat them in production, and the doing of this is not a question of mere application of so much fertilizer per acre.

The results of the experiment stations seem to indicate that at the usual price of corn and commercial fertilizers, the profitable production of corn upon commercial fertilizers is almost a hopeless undertaking, unless the corn crop is grown in a systematic rotation with nitrogen-gathering crops. The Georgia station says: "That at present prices of commercial fertilizers they cannot be used with profit." The Ohio station states: "In no case has the increase in the crop been sufficient to pay cost of fertilizers." The Virginia station says: "In no instance did the nitrogen application give a gain equal to its cost."

An application of a medium amount of the fertilizer on average land will usually pay a profit. Barnyard manure is a valuable fertilizer. It increases the amount of available fertility in the soil, adds humus to the soil and improves the mechanical conditions.

The average yield of corn in the south is about 15 bushels. It is an easy crop to improve in yield and in quality. The yield to an acre can easily be doubled with very little increase in labor or expense by planting better and more prolific seed in addition to increasing the fertility of the soil and by better methods of preparation and cultivation.

The variety should be adapted to the conditions of the soil and climate in which it is grown. There is no crop grown that is so much influenced by being transferred from north to south of the section where the corn is to be grown. Therefore, we should avoid sending north or south of our latitude for seed, but should take at the start the best corn attainable that has been long grown in our latitude and through careful selection, year after year, bred up.

The average corn grower plows, plants and cultivates one-fourth to one-third of his corn acreage without receiving anything for his labor. This is because of the vacant hills and barren stalks attributable to poorly selected seed.

CORN GROWERS' RULES.

1—Save Seed Before Oct. 1st.
2—Test Each Ear.
3—Grade the Seed and Test the Planter.
4—Improve the Seed.
5—Do Not Import Seed.
6—Do Not Continue Without a Rotation of Crops.
7—Do Not Follow Oats With Corn.

The method of planting must be adapted to the section and nature of the land. Where the soil is high and dry soil, or where very dry weather is likely to prevail during the growing season, planting corn in the water furrow is probably best. The soil can be gradually worked to the corn. Where the land is well drained, it is generally best to plant the corn on a level so that flat, shallow cultivation may be practiced to the best advantage. On wet lands, it is usually best to plant on beds and give the corn ridge cultivation.

The result of the experiment stations seem to indicate that it makes no particular difference in yield whether the corn is planted in hills or in drills.

The distance apart in rows and drills must be settled for each locality and each particular soil. The amount of moisture and fertility of the soil must be considered in deciding the distance in the drill. Where the soil is light and dry, weather usually dry during the growing season, [illegible] generally obtained by [illegible] the young [illegible] or five feet [illegible] with one stalk every three feet apart in the row. Where such thin planting is necessary, it is generally preferable to plant soy beans, peanuts, or some other crop between the corn rows.

The cultivation of the corn crop should always be level and shallow, except in low, undrained lands, where it may be necessary to plant in ridges and to keep the middle clear to assist in drainage. The first cultivation should be made before the corn comes out of the ground, and the best implement to use is the harrow to merely break the crust and allow the corn to come up easily and uniformly. Then follow with a harrow or weeder, going both ways, and after the corn gets six or eight inches tall, the two-horse cultivator, which enables the operator to cultivate both sides of a row at once, is the best implement to use.

It is always much easier and more satisfactory to prevent the growth of weeds or destroy them soon after the seeds germinate than it is to attempt their destruction after they have attained a firm, fast hold. The sectional steel harrow, or the weeder, on light lands full of humus and so on are the implements to use in cultivation.

The later cultivation after the corn gets tall is the small-tooth, one-horse cultivator. Worked in this way the roots are unharmed and the moisture is kept right where they seek it.

Many carefully made experiments have shown that the stalks, leaves and shucks of corn have a feeding value equal to the grain. Of course, if we let the stalks stand in the field until the grain is fully matured the stover will be of very little value. But if the corn is cut while the fodder is still green and untouched by frost, that is, as soon as the ears are well glazed, and is cured in the shocks, the fodder is of far more value for feeding.

GOOD PLACES TO HANG SEED.

1—Dry Ventilated Cellar.
2—Dry Attic or Spare Room.
3—Dry Ventilated Shed.
4—Any Dry Ventilated Building.

BAD PLACES TO HANG SEED.

1—Stable Over or Near Stock.
2—Over Oats or Corn.
3—Damp Cellar.
4—Closed Attic Over Kitchen.
5—Any Damp Close Place.
6—Out in Sunshine.

The most important and valuable invention in the connection with the corn crop in recent years has been the invention of the silo, into which the green corn is cut, preserved in a succulent state for winter feeding and for tiding over a drought in the summer when the grasses fall in the pastures. The silo is indispensable to the breeder of either beef or dairy cattle.

More corn brings into use the pastures and idle lands of the farms. It is a basis for the cheaper food supply for the masses. Therefore, the production of an abundant supply of corn is one of the essentials of good farming. The south will be prosperous when the necessary corn is grown within her borders.

Where it is common only to gather the grain and then turn the cattle into the field to glean the fodder, that, standing in the frost had become practically worthless, the cattle ranging over the soft and wet ground, puddle the soil and do serious injury to it in the future cultivation. Then, too, the land is left bare all winter and loses fertility in winter rains, when it should have the green cover crops on it at all times.

Modern machinery has greatly lessened the labor of cutting and shocking the corn. We now have machines to cut and bind the corn, and we have the huskers and shredders that separate the corn from the stover and tear up the whole stalks and leaves into such a shape that not only is a far larger portion eaten, but the waste part is in such a shape that it makes valuable bedding.

SAND FOR THE SICK CHICKS

Kansas Farmer Saves Many of His Little Fellows by Use of Gravel —Remedy for Lice.

(By J. D. HUNTER.)

I see so often in the paper of people being troubled with white diarrhoea in their chicks. Three years ago we lost most all of our young chicks with this disease and I concluded it was the want of sand, so this year we have sieved sand for them when they are one day old and put a little bran on millet and wheat and corn chop, all mixed, equal parts, on the sand—just a little so they will get more sand than the mixture, and this year I have 150 and have scarcely lost a chick. I had 56 little ones and did not lose one until I ran out of sand, when one died and the others looked bad, so we got the sand right away and they picked up immediately. For mite lice we use a pint of grease and one quart of coal oil and a pint of crude carbolic acid and take a swab or turkey wing and fill all the crevices in the chicken houses, with the mixture and we have not seen any of the lice since two years ago, barring one or two times in the summer when I went right at the roosts with the mixture and they quickly disappeared.

BRYAN'S HARD TASK

MUST DECIDE WHETHER SANTO DOMINGO OR SPAIN HAS THE BONES OF COLUMBUS.

INDIANA MAN RESPONSIBLE

Stutesman's Proposal That Remains of the Discoverer Be Carried Through Canal Involves State Department in Old Controversy.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—In the chapel of the government's Naval academy at Annapolis there are supposed to repose the remains of John Paul Jones, the Scotch-American naval hero of revolutionary days. As everybody probably remembers, the admiral's body was found or thought to be found in a French cemetery and after as conclusive identification as was possible had been made it was brought to this country, accorded high honors, and buried beneath the Naval academy's chapel.

Now it seems likely that the state department will become involved semi-officially in the same kind of trouble over the identity of the remains of Christopher Columbus which the naval department had over the identity of the bones of John Paul Jones.

An Indiana man—James F. Stutesman of Crawfordsville—must shoulder advance responsibility for the state department's future troubles. Mr. Stutesman is the commissioner general of the United States to Central America and the West Indies, in the interest of the Panama-Pacific exposition. It was at a dinner given in Santo Domingo by the president of the Dominican Republic that the Indianian suggested that the bones of the great navigator be taken from their resting place in the Santo Domingo cathedral, be placed in an appropriate receptacle at the prow of the battleship Oregon, that will head the procession of battleships through the Panama canal and be taken to San Francisco for exhibition purposes.

What Bryan Must Decide.

The Dominican Republic has a diplomatic representative in Washington, Senor Dr. Don Francisco J. Peynado, who voices his government's desire that this government shall sanction Mr. Stutesman's plan. The Dominican Republic is urging the carrying out of the transportation and exhibition plan is attempting apparently to secure not only the sanction of the United States for the proposal, but with it what will be tantamount to an official state department decision that Santo Domingo has the only "well-authenticated remains" of the voyager and discoverer which are in existence. Mr. Bryan therefore may be called upon to decide between the claims of Santo Domingo and the claims of the Spanish city of Seville, which asks the world to believe that the only real bones of Columbus are in its keeping.

The controversy over the final resting place of what is left of Christopher Columbus began many years ago and it is an exceedingly lively controversy to this day.

Christopher Columbus died in 1506 at Valladolid, Spain. In his will he asked that his bones be taken across the ocean and buried in Santo Domingo. For a long time this wish remained unfulfilled. Finally, according to accepted tradition, his bones were transferred to Santo Domingo—probably between 1539 and 1549—and placed in the cathedral, together with those of Diego, his son.

Story of the Controversy.

Nearly two centuries and a half later—in 1795—the Spaniards, about to abandon Santo Domingo to the French, resolved not to allow the remains of him who had given them a new world to fall into the hands of the newcomers. So they took from the cathedral a coffin supposed to contain his bones and sent it in a ship to Havana. Nobody seemed to harbor any doubt that the transferred bones were indeed those of Columbus and the resting place to which they were consigned in Havana became a shrine and one of the chief "sights" of the Cuban city.

But in 1877 Santo Domingo gave Cuban and Spanish confidence a rude shock. A Dominican priest named Billini, wishing to open a door long walled up in the cathedral, uncovered one end of a metal casket in a forgotten vault. He lost no time in notifying Bishop Cochia of Santo Domingo, who, in his turn, informed a number of notables of the city, including several of the foreign consuls, of the priest's discovery. Before them all workmen dug into the vault and uncovered the coffin. In it were found a quantity of bones and dust and two inscriptions. One of these was deciphered and declared to be an abbreviation of the Spanish words meaning "Discoverer of America, First Admiral." The other inscription was read as "Illtre y Esdo. Varon Dn. Cristoval Colon (Illustrious and distinguished gentleman, Don Christopher Columbus)." This seemed to show beyond all doubt that the remains of the discoverer had never left Santo Domingo. The natives of the republic took that view without hesitation and celebrated the find with great enthusiasm.

Spain and Cuba made an investigation and declared there was nothing in the Santo Domingo story. Mr. Bryan probably will be called upon to settle this matter of state and he will have no easy job.

Filipinos Glad News to Hear.

The passage of the Underwood-Jones bill providing for the ultimate independence of the Philippines has been received with great satisfaction by the Filipinos in the United States. Resident Commissioner Quezon has cabled the news to Manila, where it has been received with great rejoicing. It is the expressed intention of the administration to give as many minor offices as is possible to capable Filipinos. The direct promise of President Wilson has been that ultimate independence for the islands is the Democratic intention.

Members of congress think that these things already done for the Filipinos in the way of encouragement mean that the bill of Representative Jones of Virginia to give the islands actual independence in 1921 will not be pushed for some little time. The appointments to offices and other things are taken by some members as sufficient acts of encouragement to the Filipinos that eventually the Democrats can be trusted to give them full liberty.

It was the set intention of the Democrats to pass the Jones bill or a substitute for it either at the special session now drawing to a close or in the early days of the regular session which will begin in December. The administration seems to have taken the wind out of the sails of congress. Mr. Wilson has heard some things from men who have made Philippine conditions a study and it seems not at all unlikely that he has been moved by what he has heard to oppose immediate consideration of the Virginia representative's measure.

Wilson Thinks They Should Wait.

The reports of the officials of the bureau of insular affairs are not altogether cheering to men who would like to give a large measure of freedom to the Filipinos immediately. It is likely that these reports have influenced the president in part and that the private advice of the officials have influenced him in greater part. It is said by some men that Mr. Wilson intends to give such recognition to the Filipinos as the adminitration legally can, and thus to appease them so that they will be content to stop demanding that the Jones bill receive the sanction of congress at once. In other words, it is said the administration seems to believe the islanders are not ready yet even for qualified independence and that it is better for them "to wait yet awhile."

When the Jones bill first was introduced the Democrats in congress flung themselves with enthusiasm into the ranks of independence. Representative Jones, it is said, is confident that the Filipinos are prepared for larger liberties and the heavier duties of self-government. It may be that in December the house of representatives, if not the senate, will find itself in direct antagonism to the administration on this "Democratic platform question' of quick liberty for the wards across the sea.

Interest in G. O. P. Convention.

Members of congress apparently are taking a much keener interest today in the forthcoming meeting of the Republican national committee than they are in the currency, anti-trust or any of the other legislation under consideration or to come under it within the next six months. Democrats, conservative Republicans, progressive Republicans and Progressives all are either gossiping or talking seriously, and in some cases apprehensively, concerning the outcome of the meeting of the committee whose duty will be to call the representatives of the Republican party together in extraordinary national session.

Republican leaders who are inclined to progressivism and those who are inclined to extreme conservatism have written on the subject of the gathering of which they hope much and fear more. The fear of the conservatives concerns itself almost wholly with an attempt on the part of the delegates to the convention to make a declaration of principles. Progressive Republicans in Washington say that the convention will consider only changes in rules, but they seem to feel that an attempt will be made to put the delegates on record as in favor of policies which the Republicanism of the old time did not sanction.

Among the progressive Republican leaders there seems to be sincerity of desire that nothing shall be put over on their "friends of reaction" when the national convention assembles. From what these leaders say, however, it is apparent that they believe it will be almost impossible to prevent the delegates from taking matters into their own hands and making attempt to secure the passage of resolutions or the giving of some kind of an intimation that the party intends to cut loose from some of the policies of the past and to take up those which the Progressives have made present, and which the progressive Republicans hope to make future policies.

Change of Rules Not Enough.

Politicians of all parties in Washington are asking why it is necessary to have a Republican convention if the only thought is to make certain changes in the rules which it is known definitely would be made at the regular convention two years from next summer. It is known that the only reason for the convention is the hope that something will be done which will induce the Progressives to come back into the fold. No one seems to think for an instant that the Progressives will come back simply because of an action of the convention which will change the basis southern representation and give approval to the presidential primaries. Neither Mr. Cummins nor Mr. Borah nor anybody else of progressive Republican persuasion, it is said, would have urged an extraordinary convention of the Republican party if it had not been the thought that something could be done to the satisfaction [illegible]

RINGWORM ITCHED TERRIBLY

1545 Aisquith St., Baltimore, Md.—"My children were afflicted with what they called ringworm of the scalp contracted from a house-cat they were playing with. The ringworm formed on their scalps about the size of a silver dollar and their hair fell out, leaving a round scale or crust on their scalps. Their hair fell out in round spots. There was terrible itching, and they scratched till the blood came. They were very fretful and could not sleep at night, and they were very cross.

"They were treated for several months with no improvement whatsoever. I was told they would never have any hair and would always be bald. Then I began using Cuticura Soap in connection with Cuticura Ointment and the first week I could see the wonderful remedies were doing all they were claimed to do and in six weeks' time they were entirely cured. They all have a beautiful growth of hair." (Signed) Mrs. Sadie Pollock, Jan. 1, 1913.

Why Japs Are Undersized.

Every one is eager to add to his fund of information concerning the Japanese, and there are not many laymen who can tell why the Japs are undersized. Japanese surgeons have made measurements of their army, which show that the smallness of the stature is due entirely to the almost dwarfed condition of the legs. This is no doubt due to the fact that from childhood the Japanese practices an unnatural way of sitting upon the legs. When a Japanese child is old enough to sit upon the floor his legs are bent under him. This in time, dwarfs the growth of the limbs. Actual deformity is less common among the peasants than among students, merchants and others of sedentary habits. There is no doubt the coming Japanse, who are rapidly acquiring Occidental customs, will change this habit of sitting upon the feet.

WIFE WON

Husband Finally Convinced.

Some people are wise enough to try new foods and beverages and then generous enough to give others the benefit of their experience. A wife writes:

"No slave in chains, it seemed to me, was more helpless than I, a coffee captive. Yet there were innumerable warnings—waking from a troubled sleep with a feeling of suffocation, at times dizzy and out of breath, attacks of palpitation of the heart that frightened me.

(Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"At last my nervous system was so disarranged that my physician ordered 'no more coffee.' I capitulated.

"Determined to give Postum a fair trial, I prepared it according to directions on the pkg., obtaining a dark brown liquid with a rich snappy flavour similar to coffee. When cream and sugar were added, it was not only good but delicious.

"Noting its beneficial effects in me the rest of the family adopted it—all except my husband, who would not admit that coffee hurt him. Several weeks elapsed during which I drank Postum two or three times a day, when, to my surprise, my husband said: 'I have decided to drink Postum. Your improvement is so apparent—you have such fine color—that I propose to give credit where credit is due.' And now we are coffee-slaves no longer".

VETCH

Mr. P. T. Hinkle, one of the most intelligent and scientific planters in the county, informs us that his experience is at variance with ours as to growing vetch without innoculation. He finds that the first year's crop does not succeed as well as the second, unless the seed has been mixed with innoculating soil. I have found that where the common field-pea has been grown, as it has on all our lands, the bacteria already found in the soil is sufficient. I have applied innoculating soil to one-half of a field, leaving the other half untreated, and found at harvest time that no one could distinguish any difference in the luxuriance and the yield of the vetch in the two halves. I have also seen it stated repeatedly in literature of the agricultural department, that the field pea and the vetch are both inhabited by the same bacterium. Notwithstanding such authority, confirmed by my own experience, I feel constrained to give the experience of Mr. Hinkle, who is competent authority as an accurate and painstaking observer. All theories must bow in the presence of a fact, as courtiers in the presence of the king, whose livery they wear. The reason why I have not said more about clover is that I considered the season too far advanced and too dry, and innoculating material too inaccessible for the present. Vetch can be planted as late as oats can, and according to my experience needs no innoculation. It also makes a heavier yield, and if planted early gives fine pasturage. Besides, the growing plant furnishes nitrogen from its nodules to the grain planted with it, and renders the application of soda nitrate unnecessary.

STORY OF MEAGHER

Did Famous General Die as Histories Relate?

Dramatic Incidents in Life of Noted Soldier and Irish Patriot Recalled by Gory Confession of Murder From Montana.

Chicago.—Dramatic incidents in the life and death of Thomas Francis Meagher have been recalled within the last few days by gory tales from Montana. First came the "confession" of a Frank Diamond, or Pat Miller, that among many crimes upon his conscience was the murder of Meagher. Upon sober second thought Miller repudiated the confession with a vigor that led witnesses to believe there was no truth in it. Then came David M. Billingsley—just when we had concluded that Meagher's memory might continue to rest in peace—with the bald declaration that the historians were all in error, for Meagher had been hanged by vigilantes and his body secretly buried.

Thomas Francis Meagher was born at Waterford, Ireland, August 3, 1823. His father had enjoyed a fortune, accumulated as a merchant in the Newfoundland trade, and for several years represented Waterford in parliament. Thomas Francis was sent to the Jesuit college of Clongowes Wood, County Kildare, when he was nine years old. He studied there six years, then entered Stonyhurst college, Lancashire, from which he graduated in 1843. In 1844 he began the study of law at Dublin and soon after appeared as a public speaker, scattering fiery oratory for the Young Ireland party, whose object was to obtain Irish independence for force of arms. In 1848 he was sent to Paris with an address to the provisional government of France from the Irish confederation and on his return presented the citizens of Dublin with an Irish tricolor, accompanying it with a fiery speech which led to his arrest for sedition. The jury failed to agree and he was discharged. In July of that year the confederation created a "war directory" of five, of which Meagher was a member. With William Smith O'Brien he traveled through Ireland for the avowed purpose of starting a revolution. Meagher was tried before a special commission at Clonmel, convicted of high treason and condemned to death.

Thomas Francis Meagher.

Banishment for life to Van Diemen's land was substituted for the death penalty. Meagher was transported on July 9, 1849, and in 1852 he escaped to the United States.

Immediately upon the outbreak of the Civil war Meagher abandoned his law office, organized a company of zouaves, joined the Sixty-ninth New York volunteers under Col. Michael Corcoran, and served during the first campaign in Virginia. At the first Battle of Bull Run, where he was acting major of his regiment, a horse was shot under him. Upon the expiration of his three months' term of service he returned to New York and organized an Irish brigade. Of its first regiment he was elected colonel.

General Meagher was mustered out of the service in 1865 and was appointed by President Johnson secretary of Montana territory. He was appointed by Gov. Sydney Edgerton to fill the office of governor in his absence. Edgerton was away when Meagher disappeared.

VOL. 4. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY DECEMBER 11, 1913 NO. 36

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

The editor of the Press wishes to give his unqualified endorsement to the following statement made by Mr. J. Bice in a recent communication: "I am willing to be taxed in order for the county to pay into the school fund the same amount as the State pays, and that would double the amount we already have." There is nothing before the people of Chilton county that is more important than our rural schools. Without them all our good roads would not be worth riding over, and our high school would have nobody to attend it.

Unfortnnately for those who think as do Mr. Bice and myself, the State Constitution does not permit the county to vote such a tax as we need for the rural schools. We hope at an early day to see this antiquated constitution amended or supplanted, as the whole State seems now to be aroused over the question, and is clamoring for an extra session of the Legislature to call a constitutional convention, as well as to do some other things. We cannot act independently of the rest of the State, in this matter and we are glad that the rest of the State are as anxious to act as we are.

There is another law which is working a great hardship to Chilton county, not because it is a bad law, but because Chilton is out of harmony with it. It is always unfortunate for one man to buck against his community, or for one community to buck against the whole county, or for one county to buck against the whole State. In a matter of conscience, however, there is nothing else to do, for a man cannot afford to compromize where conscience is involved. But in a matter of mere policy it is different, and it is always bad policy to resist an overwhelming and determined majority. Now this State is at present being swept by an irresistable wave of popular sentiment and enthusiasm in favor of county high schools, and this movement cannot be controlled by us, for it is growing day by day in volume and force. The question is not whether Chilton will pay for the support of high school education. She is doing that now, and the amount she is paying is just on the eve of being largely increased. She has already paid to support of high schools in other counties, more than the $4,000 which she is asked to contribute to build a high school of her own. This is far from being the end of the matter and far from being the worst feature of our case. Besides losing all we pay to run other people's schools, we fail to receive what other counties would contribute to run our school for the simple reason that we have no high school to run. The State has taken it for granted that we would have sense enough to build one, and it has never one time occurred to the State that we would have too much sense to build one. If we had not been too smart to build a high school, we would now be getting $3,000 a year from the State treasury to run one with. We have thus lost $18,000 during these years when we have been making ugly faces at the State because she wanted us to take four thousand dollars out of one of our pockets and put it into another one of our pockets by building a high school for our own children. I am inclined to think that it might be proved that we have not been treated right. I am certain that it might be shown that we have not treated ourselves right, and men are so constituted that they rarely do anything for people who refuse to do for themselves. Even a man wants to lay in a place where he sees a nest egg, and the blessed Lord's policy is that "to him that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance." If we want the world to lay for us we must build a nest.

If we build this high school in Chilton our taxes will not be one dollar more on that account, and if we refuse to build it, they will not be one dollar less.

Again, whether we build or refuse to build, will not affect the funds of the rural schools at all. If it would I should certainly oppose it with all my might. We do not wish to take from the country boy and girl anything they now have but to give them additional advantages. If the Commissioners should give the $4,000 asked for it would not come from school funds of the county. Fortunately we have just now in hand exactly $4,000 which has come into the treasury from the fine and forfeiture fund. It has not been contributed by our good citizens, but by the bad ones, and could not be put to a better use than the building of a high school, which would bring into our county $3,000 a year at the present, and a much larger sum in the future.

FARMERS' CONGRESS

The present Congress of the United States seems to be a 'Farmers' Congress" in a most important sense of that term. It is not a Congress OF Farmers to be sure but a Congress FOR Farmers, and for their wives, and children, their fields and forests. We have been giving a good deal of attention in the past to the health and happiness of the farm animals, so that ticks have been taken from our cows, and our pigs have been protected against cholera, but the present Congress proposes to do something for the women of the farm, and to help our rural boys and girls to a happier and healthier life. The columns of the Clanton Press will contain every week a resume of these proceedings, and every one who lives on the farm will find it especially interesting reading.

WEDDING

Though Cupid works slowly, he is sure with those who are faithful. For many years he has been doing a great work between Miss gussie Calloway and Mr. Grady Harris. But it was not until Wednesday evening, December 3, at eight o'clock that his works reached its climax. Then it was that they were joined in holy wedlock by Rev. W. M. Oliye, Miss Rosa Parrish, Mr. Cecil Harris, Miss Bertha Calloway and Mr. Ephram Smith as waiters. Friends and relatives began gathering about four o'clock in the afternoon and found servants at the gate to care for their horses and carriages, and at the door was stationed Miss Grace Williams who received the guests. And behold on the inside was found everything that is beautiful and lovely, prepared by the skilled hands of a lovely young lady. Among the beautiful things none were more beautiful than the table, which groaned under the weight of everything possible to make an ideal wedding feast. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newt Calloway. She is a young lady who possesses every feature of a lovely wife and is a Sunday School teacher and a life-long Sunday School worker, who numbers her friends by the number of her acquaintances.

The groom is a clngue young man of Clanton, and for some time has been carrying the mail on Route One from Clanton. He is a young man of rare ability, and is appreciated by those who

AGREE TO DISAGREE

Some days ago a very highly esteemed republican friend dropped into this office and subscribed for the Press, saying that unless politics got too hot for him he would hold on to it indefinitely, on account of its editorials in regard to farming. I replied that the position in which he was placing me resembled that of an evangelist I once heard. In addressing a very large congregation, at the first of his series of meetings, he said that at some time during the week upon which they were just entering, each and every one present would feel in honor bound to differ with him in regard to some statement which he would feel in honor bound to make on some phase of some subject to be discussed All of us could see that this was, to the evangelist, an unpleasant thought, for he was manifestly a kind hearted man, who would much prefer being in agreement with everybody, if his conscience and his judgement would permit. "But," he continued, "there is one consideration which is very pleasing to me, and that is that every person present, as well as every person to be present at these services, will find themselves in hearty accord with many, many things which I shall be called upon to say, and I respectfully ask each one to accept what suits him, and leave for others what he cannot accept. Now when this congregation is dismissed I sincerely hope that some good sister will press her way through this surging crowd for the purpose of inviting me to dinner, and I promise now that I am going. When we reach her hospitable home, and walk into the well appointed dining room, I expect to see a table loaded with a great variety of good things, but I am not going to taste half of them, for the simple reason that they would disagree with me, and make me sick enough to break up this meeting. What is one man's food is another man's poison, my dear brethren, whether it comes from the kitchen or from the pulpit, and hence the master tells us to give to each his portion in due season, and to rightly divide the word of truth. Upon your sumptuous board, my dear sister, will be spread in rich profusion all kinds of vegetables—cabbage, and collards, and turnips, and potatoes, and corn, and squash, and beans, and beets, and onions, and radishes, and lettuce, and tomatoes etc. Then there will be meats—ham, and pork, and sausage, and roast, and steak, besides chicken, and perhaps turkey. Along with all this will be corn-bread, and light-bread, and biscuit, and rice, and hominy. At last will come the pies, the custards, the berries, and the ice-cream. Now it would be very ungenerous in you to demand of me that I partake of, and relish all these various dishes, just as it would be ungenerous and bigoted in me to demand that you shall accept every statement that I shall make from this pulpit. Brotherly charity prompts me, as hospitality will prompt you to say: "Help yourself to whatever suits your taste or your fancy." If my sermons contain anything that you do not like leave that part for your neighbor who will feast on it for a week. The joke which you consider unrefined, someone else will roll as a sweet morsel under his tongue, and the argument which to you is weak and puerile, will to another prove to be strong meat, in whose strength he will go through many days of faithful service."

In these columns of the Clanton Press, I shall not preach, but I shall discuss every question which agitates the public mind from the standpoint of a man wholly given to God, and to the service of his fellow-man—politics, agriculture, sociology, industrial progress, educational advancement, scientific discoveries, literary productions, religious uplift, etc, etc, I shall always speak my honest and candid convictions, and I shall frequently be compelled to feel greater respect for those who differ from me, than for those who think as I do. It has ever been so, for sincere people, and people who are of the same spirit, are always in closer affiliation than those who are of the same mind. We are closer to those who agree with us in sentiment, than we are to those who agree with us in opinion. The heated discussion which I have sometimes had with a republican friend, has been the means of revealing to me his intense love for our common country, which to me is dearer than anything this side of the paradise of God. Such men are pitted against each other in argument, but at the scream of the American eagle they are ready to embrace each other in the clasp of a common patriotism. Don't fall out with the dear editor just because he happens to be wrong on some points, or because he happens to be right at the particular points where you are wrong. Let us think and let think, and, if need be, let us agree to disagree in some things. But let us all be sincere with each other, and with ourselves.

THE MONTGOMERY ADVERTISER

The Advertiser's report of Bishop Hendrix's address in which he cautioned the young and inexperienced preachers against discussing boll-weevils and politics in their pastorial visits, was so unfair that the Bishop felt called upon to disclaim in open conference the language and sentiments attributed to him by that paper. The report seemed a far-fetched effort to make this church dignitary arraign and censure the conference leaders, who are largely the moulders of public policy in this state, as a means of discounting and discrediting their influence in the prohibition campaigns. The preachers who have long suspected the Advertiser of unfairness, have in this act ample confirmation of their suspicions, and will know how to interpret its reports of other speeches in the future. There has never lived a Methodist bishop who would dare to dictate to these manly and conscientious men composing the Alabama Conference what they shall think and say concerning prohibition, and the Advertiser will learn better than to do so. It is easy to discover that the clear head and steady hand of Wallace W. Screws is no longer at the helm of the old Advertiser.

DIVERSIFICATION ON SOUTHERN FARMS

Everybody Should Join in the Universal Farm Uplift.

FARM METHODS ARE LACKING

Farmers Can Easily Grow Twice Average of Staple Crops—Many Great Industrial Corporations of Country Are Interested.

(By G. H. ALFORD.)

We have between the average and the best in farming in the cotton belt an attainable 1,000 per cent. This difference of 1,000 per cent. against the average farmer is due wholly to conditions which he can easily control with the necessary knowledge. Every corporation and business man interested in the welfare of the country should join forces with the United States department of agriculture, agricultural colleges, experiment stations, state departments of agriculture and other forces and conduct great educational campaigns until the foolish and criminal waste that is going on every year by reason of unscientific methods of farming is a thing of the past.

Our farmers can grow easily twice the average yield of our staple crops. This increase would pour many millions of dollars annually into our industrial channels. Such an addition could not be made without touching every corporation, every banker, every storekeeper, every doctor, every lawyer, every editor and, in fact, every person in the country.

Many of the great industrial corporations of the country have already joined forces with national and state institutions and are helping the farmers to larger production and to larger life, and are thereby contributing to the prosperity and uplift of the whole people. Some people may attribute this to pure selfishness, but from out of that selfishness will evolve a better condition among the farmers, greater comforts in living, and more luxuries of life and better opportunities for the farmers to educate their sons and daughters—thus the presumed selfishness contains within it a resulting philanthropy.

During the last ten years our acre yield increased, but not half as much as the increase of population. Therefore, there is every inducement to do good farming, and to do good farming we must decrease the number of the acres of cotton and increase the number devoted to pastures, forage crops and live stock. We have all heard the old Dutch proverb quoted before, but we cannot quote it too often: "No grass, no stock; no stock, no manure; no manure, no crop." Holland is almost entirely a grass and stock country, and lands are worth on an average of $500 per acre. These people have found that they can make more out of land from grasses and live stock than they can by cultivating it.

Unnumbered acres of hill land in the cotton belt are making less than one-third bale of cotton per acre, and at the same time making poverty for those tilling them. The cost of commercial fertilizer applied annually is appalling. The razor-back terraces, covered with weeds, grass and briars, and the circled and short rows prevent the use of labor-saving implements.

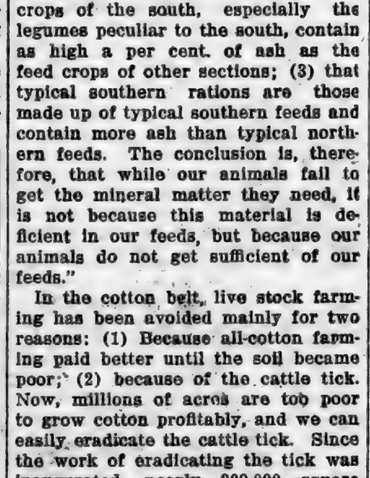
Millions of acres of poor hillside land now producing less than one-third bale of cotton per acre should be plowed deep, well fertilized with acid phosphate and some nitrogen and some potash, when needed, and planted in summer and winter legumes for, say, two years, and then sodded in Bermuda grass, lespedeza, crimson and burr clovers. Only by this method and stock raising can our wornout, gullied cotton lands be restored to fertility and only in this way can the people of our southland become prosperous and contented.

We have worn out our lands in the quickest possible time by growing cotton and rigidly excluding grasses, clovers and live stock. We have depleted the soil of vegetable matter and it has washed away. This poor soil means a poor people, and the poor people means bad roads, uncomfortable homes, poorly equipped farms, very little education, the credit system, and all that retards civilization.

The last census shows that our population increased 21 per cent. in the preceding decade, while our meat producing animals decreased more than 10 per cent. We are facing a very serious situation. The meat-producing animals must be grown on the farm. The farmers will not long continue to grow stock at a loss. The conditions must be such that stock raising is profitable or the farmers will sooner or later go out of the business entirely.

The cotton belt has an overwhelming advantage over every other section in live stock raising. We have great climatic advantages that permit outdoor pasturing and feeding during the whole, or the greater part, of the year. We can obtain large yields of oats, leguminous crops, Johnson and Bermuda grasses, sorghum cane, hay and an abundance of corn for making silage, the most economic form of carbohydrates. The keeping of good cattle and the intelligent use of thoroughly good, permanent pastures and grasing crops, and the economic use of the silo and cottonseed meal will make our lands rich, keep millions of dollars at home that are now sent to the north and west, and make our people prosperous.

The calamity howler says: "What about the lack of lime in the soil?" Dr. Tait Butler, probably the best-posted man on southern agriculture, says, in summing up a most excellent editorial on "Lime in Southern Feeds:" "We have shown: (1) That our soils are not deficient in lime as regards the plant food requirements of our crops; (2) that plants grown in the south have as much ash as the same plants grown elsewhere, and that the feed crops of the south, especially the legumes peculiar to the south, contain as high a per cent. of ash as the feed crops of other sections; (3) that typical southern rations are those made up of typical southern feeds and contain more ash than typical northern feeds. The conclusion is, therefore, that while our animals fail to get the mineral matter they need, it is not because this material is deficient in our feeds, but because our animals do not get sufficient of our feeds."



In the cotton belt, live stock farming has been avoided mainly for two reasons: (1) Because all-cotton farming paid better until the soil became poor; (2) because of the cattle tick. Now, millions of acres are too poor to grow cotton profitably, and we can easily eradicate the cattle tick. Since the work of eradicating the tick was inaugurated, nearly 200,000 square miles have been cleaned for all time; this is an area over three times as large as Alabama. The tick injures the hide, reduces the milk flow at least ten per cent., makes it very difficult to fatten cattle, prevents the introduction of good cattle to breed up our native cattle, lowers the price of our cattle on the markets and destroys more than enough cattle every year to pay for its eradication.

The invasion of the boll weevil and the consequent reduction of the profits of cotton growing is forcing many farmers to grow crops which must of necessity be marketed through the agency of live stock, and it is the function of live stock on the farm to furnish a market for the crops that are grown, enabling the farmers to convert grasses, forage crops, cow peas and soy beans, and so on, into higher priced finished products and to return to the soil the plant food taken from it. The greatest need of the farmers of the cotton belt at present is more grass and more live stock, and those who assist in eradicating the cattle tick and in otherwise helping to create conditions that will enable farmers to grow two good animals in the place of one scrub is surely as great a benefactor as those who cause two blades of grass to grow where only one grew before.

Live stock should certainly be given a prominent place in the agricultural development of the cotton belt. Next to having good and intelligent people in a country, good live stock is probably of the most importance. This being true, every state in the cotton belt should encourage better live stock by eradicating the tick and by teaching improved methods of stock breeding and raising.

DEBATE ON FLOODS

RANSDELL AND NEWLANDS IN RADICAL DISAGREEMENT AS TO CONTROL METHODS.

CONGRESS IS ASKED TO ACT

Louisiana Man Favors Levees and Is Supported by Head of Mississippi River Commission—Nevada Senator Urges Reservoirs.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—United States Senators Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana and Francis G. Newlands of Nevada, both Democrats, disagree radically as to the governmental methods to be employed to control the floods and to regulate and control the flow of navigable streams in the aid of interstate commerce. There were sharp discussions of the question involved at the tenth annual convention of the National Rivers and Harbors congress, which has just met in Washington.

The whole subject of Mississippi river improvement and the prevention of the floods which have devasted the Mississippi valley in recent years is involved in this matter of difference between two senators of the United States, both of whom apparently are trying to reach the same end by entirely different means. Congress has been asked to act and the debate on the subject, especially as it affects the Mississippi valley, will perhaps be sharper in the senate than it was at the meeting of the delegates of the waterways congress.

Col. C. McD. Townsend of the United States engineer corps is the chairman of the Mississippi river commission. Apparently he is opposed utterly to Mr. Newlands' plan, which would provide for flood prevention and protection by means of huge reservoirs for water storage purposes and the protection of water sheds from denudation and erosion. Colonel Townsend seemingly, therefore, is opposed to plans which have received the endorsement of the conservationists who would have reforestation and forest fire protection go hand in hand with the work of flood prevention.

Colonel Townsend's Views.

In writing on the subject, particularly as it relates to the Mississippi river, Colonel Townsend says:

"While of the opinion that levees afford the only practicable method of controlling the floods of the Mississippi river, I desire to state that I am strongly in favor of both reforestation and reservoir construction, but limited to the purposes for which they are adapted. just as I am in favor of re-enforced concrete for small bridges, though not considering it applicable to one spanning the lower Mississippi river."

In the opinion of this engineer officer, the control of the lower Mississippi by reservoirs is impracticable, if not impossible, although he says there are numerous smaller streams where reservoirs can be used with excellent results. He adds:

"The systematic conservation and regulation by the Federal government of the river from its source to its mouth sounds most attractive, suggesting the scientific solution of every problem of river hydraulics, but instead I greatly fear that it is the voice of the siren luring the people to an open pork barrel for every stream in the United States."

Ransdell Is for Levees.

It is probable that Senator Ransdell represents the view of the people of the lower Mississippi section and in part the views of people of other sections. His belief is that the matter must be kept in the main stream during the flood times and that it can be kept there if the proper levees are built.

The Newlands scheme is set forth in a bill in congress upon which the voluminous report has been prepared and published. The Newlands measure is called a bill "To create a board of river regulation and to provide a fund for the regulation and control of the flow of navigable river in the aid of interstate commerce, and as a means to that end to provide for flood prevention and protection and for the beneficial use of flood waters and for water storage and for the protection of water sheds from denudation and erosion and from forest fires and for the co-operation of government services and bureaus with each other and with states, municipalities and other local agencies."

This is a broad bill. Its opponents think that the plan involved would require too much time and "too many hands at work," and that results can be reached more quickly and more cheaply by what they call more direct methods. The Newlands bill provides for a government appropriation of $50,000 each year for ten years, making a total of $500,000,000.

It is said that the printed price lists of what holiday dinners were to cost this dinner were responsible directly for the proposal to have another government inquiry into the high cost of living. The attorney general already is looking into the high cost matters along various lines of supposed trust resistance, and before the winter is ended it is probable that a committee of congress or an authorized commission will attempt to find out why prices are flying so high. A legislative attempt probably will be made to bring the prices down tumbling.

It was Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, who got hold of the holiday clause to take a rap at the party of the Democrats that the tariff and some other things would help out the purse of the purchaser.

The Utah man probably thinks as the Democrats do, that the tariff law has not yet had a chance to prove anything in a price way, because it has been in operation such a comparatively short time, but a political opportunity ought not be lost even if it comes in connection with a holiday supposed to be devoted to prayer and praise. At any rate, the Republicans of course, do not think that there is much occasion for thanksgiving in days of Democratic supremacy.

Blames Cold Storage.

Representative McKellar of Tennessee, who is a Democrat, is one of the leading proponents of the cause of the investigation into the high price matters generally. The Tennesseean apparently thinks that the cold storage houses are responsible in large part for the advanced cost of many food products. Mr. McKellar's thought is in no wise new. The cold storage question has been discussed in congress and out of it time after time. It is believed, apparently, by all of those who suspect the cold storage plants of boosting the price of things, that the ultimate cost is an almost forbiddingly high one because so much money has been put out in intermediate transactions. This question will be gone into specifically by the Democratic board of inquiry, if it gets authorization to go to work.

Congressmen, and others, too, for that matter, have been told that men go through the country districts in the spring buying up eggs for say 14 cents a dozen; that these eggs are then turned over to a dealer for say 16 cents, who turns them over to another dealer, a storage man, on a small scale, for an advanced price, and he finally turns them over to the big concerns which can afford to hold them for seven or eight months, and sell them for three or four times their original cost.

Of course the Democratic inquiry will concern itself with other things than eggs. Butter, beef, vegetables and fruit are higher today than ever they have been and the housewife does not find it necessary to read such a government report as that published recently to prove that providing breakfast, luncheon and dinner for the family is a costly operation. Today they are selling three fairly good apples in Washington for 25 cents. This was the price of a peck of apples not many years ago. "Other things in proportion," as the man said who was sitting down to breakfast alone, ordered a two pound steak.

The desire to rest is just as strong with the president as it is with any member of congress. Mr. Wilson wants to get away from Washington, and so does every man on the big hill, from the speaker down to the smallest page boy in either house. Vice-President Marshall has had a vacation and a good many of the representatives have taken theirs "without leave." The president, however, has had to curb his longings, for he learned through many years as a pupil and as a teacher how to stay in after hours.

New Year's Reception Cancelled.

The New Year's reception, the only great wholly public reception of the year at the White House, has been done away with by executive order, or what is equivalent to such an order. The President is tired out and he is going south to spend a part of the holiday season if congress takes a recess. The canceling of this White House reception led to a good deal of comment, but there is nothing definite to prove that a reception may not be held next year. Many presidents wanted to do away with these receptions, but none of them has felt that he was justified in cutting out the function on the one day of the year when all people without special invitations could come in to shake the hand of the chief executive and to catch a glimpse of the glories of the interior of the great house.

At one time the president thought of going to Panama during the Christmas holidays, but this plan has been given over because the Panama trip, if he wanted to see the canal in all its parts, would probably consume three weeks and to take so much time would keep him away from Washington during at least a week of the deliberations of the lawmakers.

Some of the Democrats in congress are rancorous enough to say that if Mr. Wilson had not been at the outset in such a schoolmaster mood about getting the currency bill passed the measure would have gone through long ago. The "mean-minded ones" meant that their colleagues were resentful of the president's methods and that the delay in currency was the natural result of the resentment. In other words, dragging out the hearings and putting drags on the wheels were due not so much to a disinclination on the part of the senate to pass the bill as to a desire to get even.

There is probably no soundness in what the critics of the administration methods have said, but it is certain, for one only had to look to learn, that members of congress were irritable and snappy under the enforced grinding. The currency is a tough enough subject in itself, for men have disagreed concerning it ever since and probably before sea shells were a medium of exchange. An irritating subject, irritating weather, and irritable members together conspired, perhaps unintentionally, to make the part the progress of legislation of high national moment, and conspired also to prevent cool and proper consideration.

HORRIBLE REPORTS OF TEXAS FLOODS

WOMEN AND CHILDREN WITHOUT SHELTER AND MANY WITHOUT CLOTHING.

THOUSANDS ARE MAROONED

Appeals for Aid Are Unavailing. Relief Cannot Reach Them.

Dallas, Tex.—Horrible conditions were reported from the flood swept area of central Texas. In several of these places smallpox and typhoid have been found in refugee camps. At Kippes bridge, 80 persons are crowded in an old gin house. Several babes have been born here. Pigs and calves being swept past by the flood waters were seized and eaten by the hungry refugees.

The total known dead was 100. The Commercial club of Bryan issued a statement estimating the total dead at 400, but this is accepted with reserve.

In many stricken towns women and children were without shelter, and hundreds are almost without clothing. Appeals for aid for these places went unheeded because neither trains or boats could reach them.

In the gin houses near Wellborn more than 1000 persons are marooned in the upper stories. In Wellborn alone more than 2000 persons are being cared for in the public buildings and homes located on high ground.

Two white men and four negroes were rescued from a tree there after 32 hours' exposure.

The latest reports received here told of the drowning of 50 persons, most of them negroes, at Sunnyside on the Brazos river. No news was to be had of 500 families who were last seen marooned in treetops and on the roofs of houses.

There are 20,000 persons being cared for by the municipal authorities of Bryan, Hearne, Temple, Austin, Waco and a dozen other cities in the path of the flood. All are suffering on account of the lack of food, and the cold wave that followed the flood.

The distribution of the Sea Island cotton for 1913 by states is: Florida, 22,0207; Georgia, 34,813; and South Carolina, 4496.

Domestic cotton exported during month of November, 1913, was 1,504,517 running bales and foreign cotton imported 7918, equivalent 500 pound bales.

WILSON REFUSES ENDORSEMENT.

President Politely Declines to Aid Suffragettes.

Washington.—President Wilson refused to pledge his endorsement of the woman suffrage movement. The refusal came when the fair warriors of the votes for women made their appeal direct to the President in the White House.

In addressing the delegation of 150 suffragists, President Wilson made it clear that he could not act as an individual, but only as a President, and that it would be extremely dangerous for him, in the language of the street, to "start something." He did not vouchsafe to the women what his private conviction was regarding woman suffrage, but conveyed the impression that he was not unfavorably disposed toward it.

MINERAL WEALTH OF U. S.

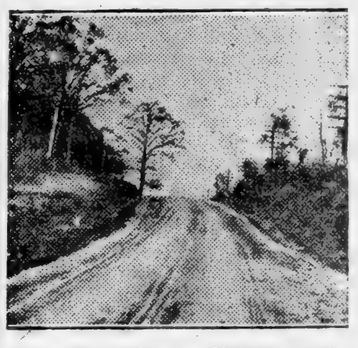
Total Greater in 1912 Than in Any Previous Year.

Washington.—More wealth was taken from the mines of the United States in 1913 than in any previous year, the actual total value of the mineral products being $2,243,336, according to a report by the geological survey. This report says there was an increase of 6 per cent and is more than six times the production of 30 years ago.

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS

PLANNING FOR BETTER ROADS

Method of Construction Must Be Put in Operation Which Will Produce More Durable Highways.



"Waterbound macadam roads, which for practically a century have been adequate for the traffic, have now, under the new conditions, become obsolete, and their further construction means a serious waste of public funds," is the opinion of former President Lewis R. Speare of the American Automobile association.

"Macadam may answer for side roads and cross roads where there is little travel to wear the surface into dust, and few fast moving vehicles to throw the dust into the air to be blown away. But for main roads, anywhere and everywhere, a method of construction must be put in operation which will produce durable roads.

"Wherever it can be used concrete makes a most excellent road, or a road base for some other kind of surface. The state of California has adopted concrete construction for practically its entire system of state highways, after a most thorough investigation. Wayne county, Michigan, has been building concrete roads for the past five years, and they have given most excellent satisfaction.

"Before the Wayne county authorities had learned by experience how to build concrete roads with expansion joints to prevent the concrete from cracking in cold weather and buckling in the hot sun, several miles of roads were built which broke into frequent cracks. To repair these cracked sections of road they poured hot bituminous material into the cracks and covered them with sand. This has worn to the level of the concrete, and the whole forms a most delightfully smooth road to travel over, and one which looks as if it would stand for a generation, at least.

"In some sections of the country the concrete is being used as a base, and two or three inches of broken stone, mixed with bituminous materials, put on for a surface. If properly built this kind of road should be very durable, and should justify the additional expense. The concrete will furnish the strength required to hold up the loads which are constantly growing heavier, while the bituminized surface will prevent the creation of dust, making the road pleasant to travel over.

"The only proper way to figure on the cost of a road is to consider both the original cost and the expense of maintenance for a period of ten or fifteen years. Under present conditions of travel a macadam road would have to be resurfaced every two or three years, and would be in bad condition two-thirds of the time. The aggregate cost would be far greater than that of a concrete road with a bituminous surface and the latter would present a good road all the time."

A Difference in Roads.

Two farmers living in separate counties, but at an equal distance from the cotton market, learned by telephone that cotton had advanced in price $1 per bale. The farmer living on a bad road, according to Arkansas Homestead, responded by hauling one bale of cotton, which was all he could get over the unimproved road, while the other farmer was able to haul four bales, owing to favorable road conditions. The rise in price gained a profit of $4 to one man and $1 to his neighbor.

Auto Owners Contribute.

The automobile owners of Massachusetts have contributed some $300,000 for the betterment of the highways of the state; the state treasury will contribute $700,000 more and the local appropriations for the same purpose will bring the total up to $2,500,000.

Increase Values.

Farm productions are increased in value by getting them where needed at the proper time. Good roads increase values.

TO IMPROVE SOILS

Federal Experts Tell How Nature Does Work.

National Department of Agriculture Gives Advice on Use of Fruit as Food—How to Kill Poultry for Market.

Use a cover crop of weeds, grass, shrubs or trees, and to subsoil by sending the roots down one, two, three or four feet, is nature's plan of improving soils, according to the department of agriculture. By this means the airing and enrichment of the subsoil is brought about without bringing it to the surface. Humus enables the soil to store more moisture, increase the temperature, makes it more porous, furnishes plant food, stimulates chemical action and fosters bacteria life.

There are sixteen leguminous field crops of importance in this country, among which are red, alsike, crimson, white, Japan, sweet and bur clover, alfalfa, cow peas, peanuts, Canada peas, soy beans, hairy vetch and common vetch, velvet beans and beggar weeds. There are few cases where one of these crops can be used in place of another. Cases in which there is a choice are red clover, alfalfa, alsike clover and sweet clover; cow peas, soy beans, peanuts and Japan clover; crimson clover, hairy vetch and bur clover; velvet beans and beggar weeds.

The department's advice is never to plow deep or subsoil in the spring. The subsoil at that time is generally too full of water and it is too late for much effective action of the air upon the soil and for the winter rains to firm the subsoil before planting cotton.

In case no winter cover crop is used level land should be disked or harrowed two or three times during the winter provided it is dry enough. Give good drainage to all parts of the field. Any cultivation done after the deep fall breaking should be shallow—not more than three or four inches deep. The object of deep fall plowing is mainly to increase the supply of plant food and the storage of moisture in the soil.

How to Kill and Bleed Poultry for Market.

"Grasp the chicken when killing by the bony part of the skull," is the advice to farmers, poultry dealers, housewives and others by poultry experts of the department of agriculture. "Do not let the fingers touch the neck. Make a small cut with a small sharp-pointed knife on the right side of the roof of the chicken's mouth just where the bones of the skull end.

"Brain for dry picking by thrusting the knife through the groove which runs along the middle line of the roof of the mouth until it touches the skull midway between the eyes. Use a knife which is not more than two inches long and one-quarter inch wide with a thin, flat handle, a sharp point and a straight cutting edge.

"At least 30 per cent of all the poultry coming into the New York market is incompletely bled. Much of it is so badly bled that it results in the loss of from two to five cents a pound as compared with corresponding poultry which is well bled and in good order. Aside from the bad appearance of incompletely bled chickens, their keeping properties are very inferior. The flesh loses its firmness sooner; its flavor is not so good, the odor of stale flesh and finally of putrefaction come sooner, and in every way the product is more perishable.

"A large proportion of the unsightly poultry in our markets, aside from the rubbing and tearing of the skins, is caused by incomplete removal of the blood. This is evidenced by red dots which frequently occur where the feathers have been removed, especially over the thighs and wings, or by the small veins which are seen over the breast and in the angles of the wings or larger veins which mar the appearance of the neck. Generally it is the neck which shows more plainly the presence of blood in the fowl or that a wrong method has been used in cutting the blood vessels in attempting to empty them. The neck is the first part to discolor, becoming first red and then bluish or purple, and finally green as aging progresses."

The Use of Fruit as Food.

Fruits are wholesome, palatable and attractive additions to our diet, and may be readily made to furnish a considerable part of the nutrients and energy required in the daily fare, state nutritive experts of the department of agriculture. Fresh fruits are diluted foods and closely resemble green vegetables in total nutritive value, but dried fruits and many preserves are much more concentrated, comparing favorably with some of the cereal and other dry vegetable foods in the amount of total nutrient and energy which they supply per pound.

The characteristic chemical constituents of fruits are carbohydrates, and so they are naturally and properly used in the well-balanced diet to supplement foods richer in protein, as cereal grains, legumes, nuts, eggs, dairy fruits, meats and fish.

Fruits contain considerable mineral matter, and as they are diluted foods they may be added to the diet to supply iron and other mineral constituents without unduly increasing the supply of protein and energy. Since they are bulky and often contain fairly large portions of indigestible materials, fruits stimulate what might otherwise be a sluggish intestine. Intelligently used, fruits are a valuable part of a well-balanced diet, and may be used often in larger quantities than at present.

Alfalfa and Soil Improvement.

Sowing alfalfa, especially in eastern states on land which is not in a high condition of fertility, is a great mistake. While it benefits through the addition of nitrogen fixed by organisms forming nodules on its roots and supplies considerable quantities of humus and greatly improves good land, it cannot be considered in this connection with poor soils as it is not a profitable crop to grow on unfertile soil.

Alfalfa is not a soil-improving crop in the sense in which the term is commonly used, as it cannot be used in the same way as such leguminous crops as cowpeas, crimson clover, soy beans or hairy vetch as a means of building up worn-out or depleted lands.

Alfalfa enriches good soils through the nitrogen and humus added to the soil by roots and crowns when the old field is broken up, and also by the mechanical action of its roots upon the soil.

Prepare Your Roads for the Winter.

The department of agriculture advises people of the rural section to prepare their roads for the winter before the first hard freese. One of the best ways in which to put the country roads in good shape for the long winter months is to use the split-log drag.

There are over two million miles of earth roads in the country and the drag has proved an economical instrument in keeping them in repair.

The drag can be worked with two, three or four horses and is easily constructed. A heavy one is not only unnecessary, but cumbersome. The best material to make a drag from is a dry red cedar log. Cut red elm, walnut, box-elder, soft maple or willow will make good drags. The log should be seven or eight feet long and from ten to twelve inches in diameter, carefully split down the middle. The heaviest and best slabs should be selected for the front.

AIM TO PROTECT THE BIRDS

Boy Scouts of America Have Been Taught to Appreciate All the Good They Do.

Many a boy thinks that just because a bird is alive and moves it is a proper target for his air rifle or his slingshot. Let us be thankful that there has now arisen a new class of boys, the scouts, who, like the knights of old, are champions of the defenseless, even the birds. Scouts are the birds' police, and woe betide the lad who is caught with a nest and eggs or the body of some feathered songster that he has slaughtered. Scouts know that there is no value in birds that are shot, except a few specimens collected by trained museum experts. Scouts will not commend a farmer for shooting a hawk or an owl as a harmful bird, even though it were seen to capture a young chicken. They will post themselves on the subject and find that most hawks and owls feed chiefly on field mice and large insects injurious to the farmer's crops, and that thus, in spite of an occasional toll on the poultry, they are, as a whole, of tremendous value. The way the birds help mankind is little short of a marvel. A band of nuthatches worked all winter in a pear orchard near Rochester, N. Y., and rid the trees of a certain insect that had entirely destroyed the crop of the previous summer. A pair of rose breasted grosbeaks were seen to feed their nests of youngsters 426 times in a day, each time with a billful of potato bugs or other insects. A professor in Washington counted 250 tent caterpillers in the stomach of a dead yellow billed cuckoo, and, what appeals to us even more, five hundred bloodthirsty mosquitoes inside one nighthawk.—From "Boy Scouts of America."

VARIOUS FEATS OF SIGNALING

Military Intelligence Conveyed in Many Ways, Though Heliograph Is by Every Test the Best.

The report that at the battle of Ishtib, a Bulgarian cowherd signaled news to his military countrymen relative to the position of the Servian battalions by moving five cows about in various ways on the top of a hill, recalls similar peculiar signaling feats in war.

The Basutos, for example, practically anticipated "wireless telegraphy" in a crude fashion. That is, by striking heavily on a huge drum of goatskin which is placed on a special spot, another Basuto at a distance can gather the purport of the message by placing his ear close to the ground to catch the vibrations—and then he, in turn, passes the message on. So quickly can this be done, owing to the peculiar configuration of Basutoland, that during the South African war the Basutos were said to know all about big battles long before the people in Cape Town.

Of course, given suitable climatic conditions, the military heliograph can transmit messages over enormous tracts of country, and the record is probably held by Captain Sadler of the Sixth Dragoon Guards, who, by this means, succeeded in South Africa in sending a message direct a distance of 120 miles.

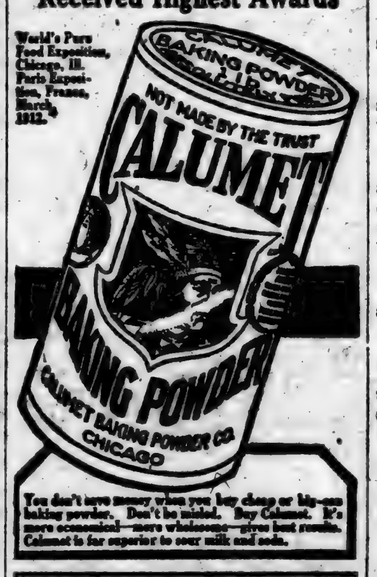
Looking for a Bargain.

Seth Woodbury was a tight-fisted, hard-hearted old farmer. His brother William dying, Seth drove into town to have a notice about his death inserted in the weekly newspaper.

"There ain't no charge, be there?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh, yes, indeed," answered the editor. "Our price is 10 cents an inch."

"Gosh!" muttered Woodbury, "I guess I'll let Bill rest."



The Baking Powder Question Solved

—solved once for all by Calumet. For daily use in millions of kitchens has proved that Calumet is highest not only in quality but in leavening power as well—unfailing in results—pure to the extreme—and wonderfully economical in use. Ask your grocer. And try Calumet next bake day.

You don't save money when you buy cheap or big-can baking powder. Don't be misled. Buy Calumet. It's more economical—more wholesome—gives best results. Calumet is far superior to sour milk and soda.

He Was Real Nasty.

A darky employed as an office boy came to work one morning with a face that looked as though it had been run through a meat-grinder.

"Henry," demanded his surprised employer, "what in the world happened to you?"

"Well, suh, boss," explained Henry, "I got into a li'le argument las' night wif another nigger, and one thing led to another twell I up and hat at him. Well, suh, it seemed lak dat irritated him. He took and blacked both of mah eyes and bit both of mah years mighty nigh off, and split mah lip and knocked two of mah teef loose; and den he th'owed me down and stamped me in de stomach. Honest, boss, I never did get so sick of a nigger in mah life!"

HEAD ITCHED AND BURNED

604 Greenville Ave., Staunton, Va.—"My head broke out in pimples which festered. It itched me so that I would scratch it till my head got almost in a raw sore. What She Got.

"Did you get any?"

"Yes," acrimony.

LEFT THE COLONEL THINKING

Probably After This He Made Some Inquiries Before He Gave Up His Money.

A certain old colonel was noted for his great generosity. He had lost an arm during one of the engagements in which he had seen service, and this made him very sympathetic toward all who had experienced similar losses.

While walking on his estate one day he met an old one-legged man, evidently in abject poverty.

"Ah, you have met with a great misfortune, like myself, I see," remarked the colonel.

"Ah," replied the old man, "and, like yersel', colonel, I have spent a great part o' my life in government's service, and seen a lot o' hard work."

"My poor man!" exclaimed the kind hearted colonel, as he pushed a half dollar into the old man's hand, "I fear you have received but a poor reward for your services."

"Ye may well say that, colonel," replied the veteran as he hobbled away.

"But," added the colonel, "you didn't tell me where you served."

"Well, if it comes to that," the old reprobate answered, with a sly chuckle, "I served my time in j-jail, where they gi'ed me 15 years for stealing jewelry!"

What Could He Do.

"I hate to be contradicted," she said.

"Then I won't contradict you," he returned.

"You don't love me," she asserted.

"I don't," he admitted.

"You are a hateful thing!" she cried.

"I am," he replied.

"I believe you are trying to tease me," she said.

"I am," he conceded.

"And you do not love me!"

"I don't."

For a moment she was silent.

"Well," she said at last, "I do hate a man who's weak enough to be led by a woman. He ought to have a mind of his own—and strength."

He sighed. What else could he do?

Hard to Understand Woman.

"O, you can't please a woman," he said, disgustedly; "it's no use trying."

"What's happened now"

"I met that pretty Miss Sweet in a dark hallway and kissed her. I didn't think she'd mind, you know."

"And she did mind?"

"Well, she pretended to be very angry, so I thought I'd smooth things down by telling her that it was all a mistake; that I thought she was somebody else."

"And then?"

"Why, then she really was very angry."

Short Division.

"Pupil L'Haricot, if I cut a beefsteak in two, and then the halves again in two, what do I get?"

"Quarters, sir."

"Good! And then again?"

"Eighths."

"All right! And then again?"

"Sixteenths."

"Exactly! And then?"

"Thirty-seconds."

"And then?"

SAGE TEA DARKENS GRAY HAIR TO ANY SHADE. TRY IT!

Keep Your Locks Youthful, Dark, Glossy and Thick With Common Garden Sage and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Adv.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR STATE SENATOR.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the Senate of Alabama from the the Fifteenth district, composed of the counties of Chilton, Shelby and Autauga, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

W. W. Wallace.

New subscribers to the Clanton Press are coming in every day. Our reports from the National Capital of what Congress is doing for the farmers is exciting much interest.

Wherever there is a rank growth of any kind on your land you can deepen and permanently benefit your soil by turning it under deep with an Oliver Chilled plow right now.

We give fresh news from Washington every week. Either get your neighbor to subscribe for the Press, or else get a bull-dog to keep him from coming in to borrow your paper before you can read it.

The Governor went to Birmingham and listened to arguments in favor of an extra session. He answers that he must consider the matter and act "for the greatest good of the greatest number." The greatest number with the Governor seems to be number one.

If you want to know whether Underwood is a Woodrow Wilson democrat, just ask whether he has ever ridiculed the big battleships which have floated from Hobson's dreams into Wilson's plans and policy. Will he follow Wilson as Wilson follows Hobson?

While the republicans in Congress have tried to embarrass the administration, the progressive party's representatives have cooperated with Mr. Wilson in Mexican affairs and in everything else. They are pretty good democrats all things considered.

"Either prohibition will go into the very dust, or the democratic party will die."—Underwood.

Well, well. That is the hardest thing that has yet been said about the Underwood type of democracy. It will not die, for it is already dead, in Alabama.

PECANS IN CHILTON

Mr. Ed Smitherman is putting out an acre of budded pecan trees, which in fifteen years ought to bring in several thousand dollars a year. If the pecan is budded into hickory stock which is now bearing it will yield a crop of nuts in two years. The finest pecans this editor ever saw were grown from a hickory sprout which persisted in growing in a field in spite of all efforts to destroy it. The hickory is a native growth, and very long lived, and any boy can learn how to put in a bud which will convert a hickory into a pecan tree worth a hundred dollars. I will tell the boys how to do this when the budding season arrives. In a week or two I will tell them how to prepare for the work.

CONCORD

Montevallo, Ala., Dec. 8, 1913

Editor of Press:

Please give me space in your valuable paper to announce a public speaking and dinner on the ground at Concord school house, Friday, Dec 19, 1913. Everybody is invited to come and spend the day with us that day. Watch for our program next week.

The school at this place is doing some very fine work under the wise instruction of our teacher, Prof. F. B. Williams. We have 61 pupils on roll.

The new preacher, Rev. Freeman, filled his regular appointment at the M. E. church at this place Sunday. He preached a forcible sermon, which was enjoyed by a large congregation.

With many good wishes for the Press, I am

This is a sensible school girl and tells just the things we like to hear in a sensible way.—[Editor.]

10:30. Prayer by J. R. Robinson.
10:40. Sunday school.
12:00. Dinner.
1:15. Male quartette, "We are going down the valley."
1:30. Lessons by three, 20 minutes each, J. S. Jones, G. C. Weldon and J. R. Robinson; M. Lee Robinson and Miss Valley Norris, organists.
3:00. Recess 10 minutes.
3:10. House called to order by singing.
3:15 Lessons by two, Lee Robinson and N. J. Jones; Miss Jones and Mr. Robinson, organists.
3:55. Very impressive comment on the song "Too Late" by Rev. E. A. Norris.
4:00. Discussion by Rev. Norris.

This singing was intended to have been a community singing, but like a good many other secrets, it was "told out of school," and a goodly number were present. A very sumptuous dinner was served—enough to have fed twice the number—which proves these good people were prepared to feed any who might join them in serving God with song.

THE TEACHERS AND THE HIGH SCHOOL

Whereas the teachers of Chilton county assembled in session and realizing the great need of a Chilton County High School, be it,

Resolved, that we want to go on record as unanimously favoring the county officials assisting us toward bringing said school to a speedy realization by requesting the County Commissioners to appropriate money toward the erection of a building.

Passed without a dissenting voice by a representative meeting of teachers assembled under a widely published notice. The Principal of one of the denominational schools at Thorsby was present and expressed himself as favoring the resolution, taking a broad and statesmanlike view of the question of education.

How to Bankrupt the Doctors.

A prominent New York physician says, "If it were not for the thin stockings and thin soled shoes worn by women the doctors would probably be bankrupt." When you contract a cold do not wait for it to develop into pneumonia but treat it at once. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is intended especially for coughs and colds, and has won a wide reputation by its cures of these diseases. It is most effectual and is pleasant and safe to take. Success

Different people have different definitions for success.

Some regard the possession of money as success, the more money the greater the success.

Some men—and in later years, some women—strive for political preferment, and having attained their desires consider themselves, and are considered by others, to have won success.

Others devote their energies to art, literature, music, stock marketing, manufacturing, farming, merchandising.

Whatever results may be obtained, there is no real success unless the individual has been of benefit to others.

The greater the benefit to others the greater the success.

The man who accumulates millions, but says to the world "root hog or die," is not much of a success. The hog may root up a very good living, and in doing so be of help to other hogs. Then the hog is a greater success than the man of millions who never helped any one.

The possession of money by a successful man is a very good thing; being a successful man, he knows how to use his money to be of genuine benefit to his fellowmen.

Political preferment for the man of high character and unselfish patriotism is a good thing, for such a man is given opportunity to benefit his people and his section.

The L. & N. is regarded unfavorably by some. It is not reasonable to suppose that all of the people will think that all of the things we do are the proper things. We may make mistakes; and we regret them more than any individual. But "to err is human," and the human equation enters into every corporation.

But the L. & N. is striving for success, real success. It is working and will continue to work, with might and main and determination, to build up its property, and to build up and be of benefit to the territory through which its lines operate.

We feel that we have been successfull in creating property values. There are sections of the state where land was sold for less than $5 per acre before the L. & N. came. Most of that land is now selling for many times that price, while some of it has been developed into beautiful and thriving towns and cities.

The people got the benefit of those increased values.

There are farms where the land was yielding a bare existence to its owners. The L. & N. experts loaned a helping hand, and now the farms are yielding a great deal more, at no increased cost.

Travel was once slow and uncertain, many hardships being endured on route.

The L. & N. has supplied unexcelled facilities, so that now the people travel rapidly in perfect comfort, and in absolute confidence that they will arrive in safety at their destination.

Let us work together for real success. The L. & N. wants to help you, the people, no matter in what line of constructive endeavor you may be engaged, because the L. & N. knows human nature and knows that the thoughtful, constructive citizen will co-operate with any man or organization working for the general good.

COMMITTEE WILL MEET JANUARY 7

STATE BODY WILL DECIDE ON DATE FOR SPRING PRIMARIES.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings In and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

Members of the state democratic executive committee will meet in Montgomery, January 7, according to a call that has been issued by R. Tyler Goodwin, chairman. Notices to the 45 members were sent out by Chairman Goodwyn. At its meeting the committee will select a date for holding the democratic primaries next spring, will settle the question of Whether or not the "bars" will be put up so as to exclude from the primary all except democratic voters, and will choose between the majority plan and the plurality plan of naming the democratic nominees.

Political developments of the next few weeks are now almost wholly dependent upon the action that will be taken by the committee at the January meeting. Gubernatorial and senatorial candidates are now shaping their campaigns along the lines of the probable action of the committee. Perhaps the most important duty of the state committee will be that of choosing between the majority plan and the plurality plan of selecting the nominees.

If the majority p n is selected it will mean that two p maries must be held. Unless one candidate obtains a majority in the first primary the two leading candidates will "run off" the contest in the second primary. If the plurality plan is chosen the candidate receiving the largest number of votes will be declared the democratic nominees. All indications point to the fact that two primaries will be held.

579 Pensioners Dropped.

An annual saving to the state of approximately $45,000 will result from the action of the state board of pension examiners in ordering the 579 state be stricken from the rolls. The board's action, while not yet officially reported to the governor, followed a three days' examination of 739 pensioners, all of whom were charged with ineligibility.

It is expected that the report is of a most interesting nature. It was learned that out of the 579 pensioners stricken from the rolls that 149 of them were deserters from the Confederate army, absolute proof to this effect having been obtained by H. Y. Brooke in his examination of the war records at Washington. Of the number charged with ineligibility, only 160 were retained, they having convinced the board that they were entitled to receive pensions.

The board has only examined about one-fourth of the counties of the state, none of which are large counties. On the theory that the same ratio of ineligible pensioners will obtain in the examination of other counties, there will be in the neighborhood of 2,500 of them stricken from the rolls when the board completes its work.

Powell and Evans May Resign.

John B. Powell of Greenville, member of the state tax commission, has tendered his resignation from that position, according to semi-official information obtained at the capitol. It is said that Mr. Powell has handed his resignation to Governor O'Neal and that it is effective January 1. It is also rumored that Judge A. A. Evans, also a member of the tax commission, is preparing to resign.

If Judge Evans and Mr. Powell resign, the entire personnel of the tax commission will have changed within the last three months. No reason is given for the changes, other than that Mr. Powell desires to give his full time to his private business interests, while Judge Evans desires to devote his time to his law practice.

Alabama Cases Advanced.

Attorney General Robert C. Brickell received official notice that in response to his request, the Sudie Schmidt and the Singer Sewing Machine cases, both of which are pending in the U. S. supreme court, have been advanced on the docket of that court to January 5. In the first of the cases, that of the State vs. Sudie Schmidt, the principal question involved is in reference to the state's right to several hundred thousand acres of sixteenth section school lands.

Teachers' Examinations Dec. 15.

Applicants for license to teach in Alabama will be examined December 15, according to an announcement of Prof. E. W. Hodges, secretary of the state board of examiners. This will be the third state examination held in Alabama during the year. In the last examination an unusual number of applicants sought teachers' certificates. County superintendents of education will conduct the examination and the questions for the time will be forwarded at once.

To Equalize Passenger Fares.

At the beginning of the new year the two and one-half cent passenger rate will be effective on every railroad in Alabama, with the exception of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis. A petition asking that the two and one-half cent rate be put into operation on this road is now pending before the Alabama railroad commission.

As per none of the railroads that have, according to the commission's order, put on the two and one-half cent rate, made any move to appeal from these orders.

The Louisville & Nashville was the first road that was ordered to put in the reduced rate. Three federal judges upheld the order of the railroad commission and the attorneys for the Louisville & Nashville then appealed to Justice Lamar, of the United States supreme court for a supersedeas. The appeal was dismissed by Justice Lamar. Since that time the Louisville & Nashville has not made a single move to continue the fight. The two and one-half cent rate has been in effect now since last summer.

The Central of Georgia and the Western of Alabama railroads both resisted the order of the commission putting on a two and one-half cent rate on their roads. However, after the three United States judges had refused to grant these roads an injunction against the order of the commission, the rates were put into effect.

The petition of the South and North railroad, which comprises the L. & N. main line between Decatur and Montgomery, for an injunction to restrain the two and one-half cent rate was denied by United States Judges Shelby, Grubb and Niles. The opinion was written by Judge Grubb and was concurred in by the other two judges.

Probate Judges Meet.

The association of probate judges of Alabama was revived and needed legislation recommended at a meeting of some thirty probate judges held in Montgomery.

Judge A. P. Smith of Greene county was elected permanent president, and Judge W. W. Brandon, of Tuscaloosa was made secretary. These, with Judge Charles B. Teasley of Montgomery, were constituted an executive committee to draft a constitution and by-laws and report at a future meeting.

A lively discussion came up on the attorney general's recent ruling that a board of county commissioners can not pay for telephones, ice water and other incidentals used in a court house. Those probate judges who, under the law, are ex officio chairmen of the county boards, were interested mostly in the matter and it was decided that the next legislature should be asked to specifically authorize the conveniences.

It was decided also to ask the next legislature to amend the laws so that probate judges will not be required to make monthly remittances to the state treasury on the last day of each month, but on the tenth of the succeeding.

The association also voted to ask the legislature to so alter the statute relating to advertisements made by probate judges for settlements that it will not be required to post notices of same in public places.

Miller Masonic Head.

Henry Clanton Miller, of Birmingham, the past year deputy grand master of the Masonic grand lodge of Alabama, was elected grand master for the ensuing year. He succeeds Judge Daniel A. Greene, of Birmingham.

Other officers were elected as follows: Walter Smith, Tuscaloosa, deputy grand master; Robert S. Teague, Montgomery, grand senior warden; Percy B. Dixon, Mobile, grand junior warden; J. W. Terry, Montgomery, grand treasurer; George A. Beauchamp, Montgomery, grand secretary.

Right to Condemn Upheld.

The supreme court upheld the statute authorizing power companies to condemn waterways, and decided that the Tallapoosa probate court may proceed to hear the case in which the Alabama Interstate Power Company is seeking to condemn certain water rights and hydraulic machinery owned by the Tallassee Falls Manufacturing Company at Tallassee.

A joint opinion was written by Justise McClellan from the Tallapoosa chancery and circuit courts and the Montgomery city court. Efforts had been made to enjoin the probate court of Tallapoosa from hearing the condemnation proceedings on the ground.

Names Officers Military Companies.

Col. C. R. Bricken of Luverne, commander of the Second regiment of infantry, Alabama National Guard, has announced the names of the officers of the company at Tuscaloosa. The officers of the Tuscaloosa company are Richard M. Snow, captain; Louis P. H. Williamson, second lieutenant. Col. Bricken announced the following officers for Company L at Tallassee: W. M. Weston, captain; D. T. Bauntt, first lieutenant; W. H. Faulk second lieutenant.

Board of Agriculture Meets.

The state board of agriculture will hold its annual meeting at the office of Capt. Reuben F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture and industries, December 12. At this meeting reports will be received from all the farm demonstration agents in the state. The members of the state board are: Capt. Reuben F. Kolb, ex-officio chairman; J. F. Duggar, of Auburn; W. H. Knight, of Greensboro; J. J. Robinson, of Greensboro; and Capt. A. T. Goldwyn, of Montgomery, secretary.

L. & N. NOT ALLOWED TO BUY A., B. & A.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION REFUSES L. & N. PERMISSION TO BUY.

VIOLATION OF TRUST LAW

On This Ground Commission Withheld Its Sanction of the Deal.

Birmingham.—The Louisville and Nashville railroad has given up all hopes of purchasing, in part or in whole, the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad. The interstate commerce commission has refused to permit the Louisville and Nashville either to bid for the road, which has been for sale for some time, it is declared, or to purchase any of the receivers' certificates.

This information was made public in Birmingham. Recently Milton H. Smith, as president of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, privately inquired of the interstate commerce commission whether it would permit him to bid for the Atlanta, Birmingham and Aaltntic,,or to purchase $3,000,000 of receivers' certificates of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic. The commission declined to give its sanction to the intended step, and the Louisville and Nashville has now abandoned the idea of purchasing or controlling the road.

Had the commission permitted the Louisville and Nashville to purchase $3,000,000 of receivers' certificates this step would not have given control of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic to the Louisville and Nashville, but it would have given the latter road a voice in the affairs of the A. B. & A., and would have been the opening wedge for final control of the line. The commission withheld its sanction of the deal on the ground that such a step would have been in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

AWARD TO DUNSTON.

Officially Declared to Be Alabama's Champion Corn Grower.

Prattville.—Judge C. E. Thomas of this place announced that he had awarded Walker Lee Duston of Alexander City the $100 prize trip to Washington, D. C., offered by the State Bankers' association through its agricultural committee for the best corn raised.

Dunston is declared to be the one corn club boy in Alabama for 1913, with the best all round record in a single acre of ground. He made 232.7 bushels of corn at a total cost of 046.40, or at the rate of 19.9 cents per bushel. Valuing corn at 70 cents per bushel, the estimate given by the United States government on November 10th the corn is worth a total of $162.89. Deducting the total cost of producing the corn from the total value at the above price, this boy has made a clear profit of $116.49 on his prize corn.

FIVE ELIGIBLE FOR SCHOLARSHIP

Selection of Scholar Will Be Made During Holidays.

University. — Five young Alabamians who took the qualifying examination for the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford university, in England, held on October 14 and 15, at Birmingham, have become eligible to receive the appointment, according to an announcement made by President George H. Denny, chairman of the Alabama committee for the selectiton of Rhodes scholars. The young men who successfully passed the examination are: B. H. Branscomb, of Birmingham; B. Kelly, of Birmingham; K. M. Williamson, of Jasper; F. L. Carmichael, of Athens, and E. M. Craig, of Prattville.

The selection of the scholar, who will take up his residence at Oxford in the fall of 1914, will be made at some time during the Christmas holidays, the exact date and place of the meeting not having yet been determined.

OLIVER D. STREET RESIGNS

Resignation Becomes Effective January 1.

Birmingham.—O. D. Street, United States district attorney for North Alabama, has forwarded his resignation to the attorney general to be effective on January 1. Mr. Street was appointed district attorney by ex-President Theodore Roosevelt seven years ago and was later reappointed by President Taft. He is a citizen of Guntersville.

MAKES VALUABLE DISCOVERY

Gold and Silver Found in Cullman County.

Cullman. — On a little farm one and a half miles from the city of Cullman the owner, C. Kuhls, found some strange prices of mineruls in the earth and a sample of rock or ore which he sent to Cincinnati for analysis, which is made public for the first time. The assay only shows $2.00 to the ton in the sample but in gold and $2.00 in silver.

EMPLOY SHOT FIRERS.

Chief Mine Inspector Issues Sweeping Order.

Birmingham.—Chief Mine Inspectotr C. H. Nesbitt of the state mining department, issued a proclamation to the coal operators of Alabama instructing the operators to employ competent shot firers, whose duty it shall be to fire all shots where black powder is used and at a special time when no other employes are in the mine. The proclamation of the mine inspector, which relates to the use of black powder in shooting coal, is one of the most sweeping in its effect ever issued in Alabama.

Chief Mine Inspector Nesbitt strongly urges that the use of black powder be discontinued in all mines in the state generating gas or making dust. He recommends that permissible explosives only be used in gaseous mines.

The order of the chief mine inspector requires that in gaseous mines where black powder is used that only one day's supply shall be kept in the mine and that powder jack system be put into effect for storing this day's supply of powder in the mines.

While Mr. Nesbitt has not yet filed with the governor his report on the Acton mine explosion and while it is not known to what cause he will ascribe this disaster, it is understood that if the recommendations set forth in his new proclamation had been in effect that the explosion would probably have been avoided.

HOG RAISING PRACTICAL

Proven Pork Can Be Produced Cheaper Than in Corn Belt.

Auburn.—The work of the Boys' Pig Club throughout the state has proven quite a success in the ten counties in which it has been undertaken during the past year. The club has had a total membership of 350 boys. During the coming year this work will be pushed to take in four additional counties.

Superintendent of the Work C. S. Jones states that the work has been creditable in these counties. He states that "in many of the counties which he attended during the past season that the exhibits made by the boys excelled the exhibits at the state fairs. The boys have taken much interest in the boys' hog judging contests held at the county fairs during the time that he gave lessons in hog judging."

The boys have good types of hogs, which is not due to the breed of the hog as much as it is due to the care that is taken in the feeding of the hog and the character of the feed.

This work will be undertaken by the following fourteen counties during the coming year. They are Tuscaloosa, Pike, Walker, Chilton, Bullock, Tallapoosa, Barbour, Cullman, Marshall, Colbert, Shelby, Butler, Houston and Dale.

Experiments have proven that pork can be produced in Alabama cheaper than in the corn belt, due to the fact that use can be made of the abundance of the growth of forage crops. Yet in Alabama about eight and a half million dollars' worth of pork is imported for their consumption. Alabama is naturally a hog raising state and if the farmers do not grow enough pork to supply the demand of the state for consumption it is because they do not work hard enough and not the fault of the surrounding conditions.

FAIRFAX HARRISON SUCCEEDS FINLEY

VIRGINIAN AND FORMER VICE-PRESIDENT CHOSEN TO HEAD SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

LATE PRESIDENT PRAISED

Harrison, Finley's Close Adviser, Will Continue His Policies and Work for Upbuilding South.

New York.—Fairfax Harrison, formerly vice-president of the Southern Railway Company and for the last three years president of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway Company, of which the Southern is part owner, was today elected president of the Southern Railway Company to succeed the late William Wilson Finley, a special meeting of the board of directors being held for the purpose of filling the vacancy caused by Mr. Finley's death.

Mr. Harrison is a Virginian, his home being at Belvoir, Virginia. He is peculiarly identified with the South, as his father was private secretary to Jefferson Davis while president of the Confederate States, and all his railroad experience has been with the Southern and its associated lines. Mr. Harrison was born in 1869, and was graduated from Yale with the A. B. degree in 1890, and from Columbia with the A. M. degree in 1891. He was admitted to the bar in New York in 1892 and continued the practice of law in this city until 1896, when he entered the service of the Southern Railway in the legal department as solicitor. In 1903, he was made assistant to the president, and in 1906 became vice-president, which position he held until 1910 when he resigned on being elected president of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville. He, however, continued as a director of the Southern Railway so that his service with the parent company has been uninterrupted.

Mr. Harrison was one of Mr. Finley's closest and most trusted advisors and is thoroughly in sympathy with the policies which made Mr. Finley's administration so successful both for the Southern Railway Company and the territory served by its lines. Though Mr. Harrison entered the service of the Southern in the legal department, his experience has not been confined to that branch of the service. He has given much study to financial, traffic and operating problems and is intimately acquainted with conditions on the Southern Railway and throughout the section which it traverses. As president of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville he was actively in charge of the operation of the railway, so that he comes to the Southern Railway prepared by practical experience as well as the most detailed knowledge of the details of its affairs to take up the duties of chief executive. Mr. Harrison today was also elected president of the Alabama Great Southern Railroad, the Mobile & Ohio railroad, and Virginia & Southwestern railway.

Resolutions deploring the death of Mr. Finley and paying a high tribute for his work for the railways he headed and the territory they served were adopted by the board of directors of the Southern Railway, the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, the Alabama Great Southern Railroad and the Virginia & Southwestern railway. These resolutios will be printed throughout the South. Immediately following his election, President Harrison gave out the following statement:

"I am in entire accord and sympathy with the policies of my lamented friend, Mr. Finley, under whom I have worked for seventeen years. I hope to continue to build the Southern as he built it by promoting and enhancing its usefulness to and its cordial relations with the people of the South. I count on the support of the entire present working organization of the Southern, rank and file. Having grown up in the service with most of them, I know how to value them and am proud to believe that they are my friends."

INEXPENSIVE CHRISTMAS GIFTS

By PEGGY POWERS

MOST certainly you promised yourself last Christmas that your future Christmas remembrance would be completed in ample time, and under no circumstances would the next Christmas season find you in a rush and bustle, planning and finishing belated Christmas gifts. What an idle dream that was, for here it is Christmas time approaching again, and you are racking your brain and attempting to decide what to give at the eleventh hour, in a great hurry and turmoil. Isn't it so?

What not to give, would be a more appropriate phrase. For in the selection of your gifts some regard has to be given to the adaptability and the utility of the present. A wise idea is to spend more time than money in thinking what would be suitable and practicable for each individual. Your gift would be all the more appreciated if it expresses something of yourself and shows that your own personal thoughts have been bestowed upon a selection of the tokens.

The real essence of the Christmas spirit is not expenditure. How easy it is to purchase gorgeous gifts if one has a well filled purse! But if the recipient can buy the same article with little effort, the gift idea will not be remembered for very long. Let your gifts be expressions of love and thoughtfulness. The thought and time you put in gifts of your own handiwork will mean much more than if you simply give something for the sake of giving.

The cost of homemade gifts is generally small. A multitude of gifts can be contrived of materials you have at hand, and of odd pieces of linen, ribbons and silk. Clever fingers can fashion charming novelties. Gladness is the keynote of the Yuletide season. Go at your tasks in a cheerful, blithsome manner, and you will find your work one of joy. The following suggestions may provide you with numerous ideas for attractive gifts, which may be made inexpensively.

With little effort dainty sachets to perfume your friends' gowns may be made at a very small cost. Make six sachets in pastel shades of satin ribbon about two inches square. Fill with soft cotton dusted with some fragrant sachet powder. Place the sachets one on top of the other and tie with narrow gauze ribbon. Gilt safety pins are attached to each sachet so the bags can be pinned on the different frocks.

One distinct novelty is a colonial pin cushion. For this unique cushion you will have to purchase a glass candlestick in a simple design. Cover one side of a four-inch square of cardboard with some pretty silk which harmonizes with the color scheme of your friends' bedrooms. Form a mound-like cushion of cotton on the other side and cover with the silk. The cushion is fastened to the candlestick by fine wires or thread. Around the edge of the cushion sew a beaded fringe about three inches long.

Another pin cushion has for the foundation a four-inch wire tea strainer. The back is fitted with a disk of cotton covered in cretonne. The wire part is lined with flowered cretonne and filled with cotton. Wind the handle with narrow ribbon and finish with a pretty bow.

The girl away at college would surely be overjoyed with a shoe bag, which she can hang inside her closet door. The shoe bag should be half the length of the door with compartments for shoes, slippers and rubbers and a long compartment on one side for an umbrella, and on the other for books not in use. The materials used should be heavy denim with the compartments bound in tape.

A pleasing notion would be to make any articles for the girls away at college in their college colors. A piece of gay colored cretonne bound all around with a pretty braid would also be acceptable as a trunk cover.

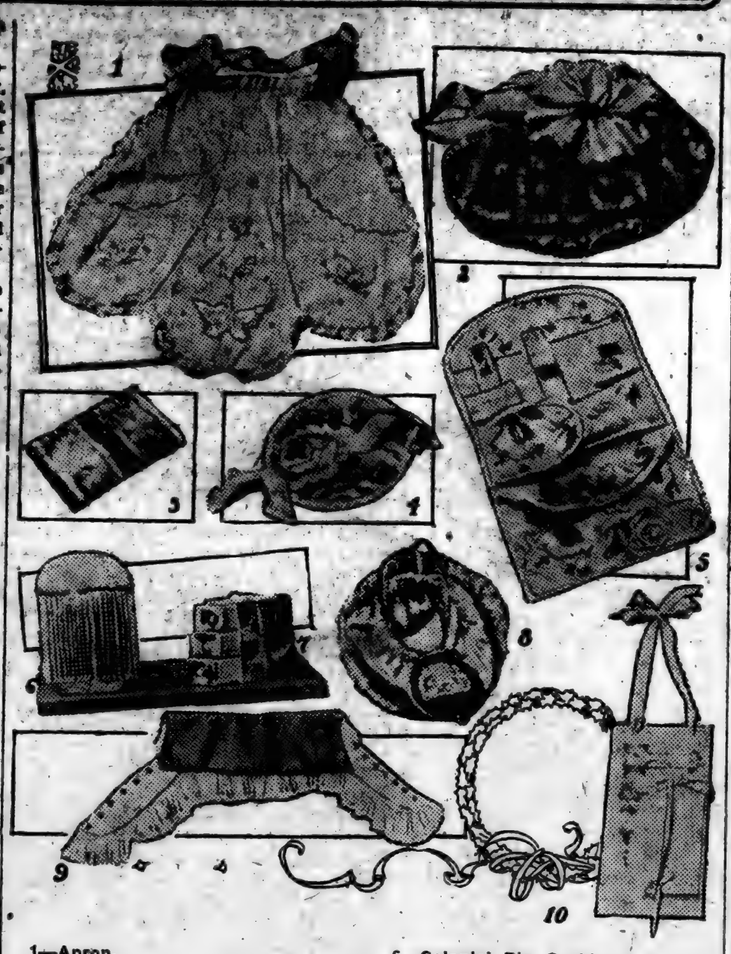
Dear to every girl's heart are pretty dress accessories. The new Robespierre collars with jabots of frilly lace certainly will be a welcome addition to your friends' wardrobes. The collars are usually made of black satin with the ruffles of lace about two inches wide.

Chic boudoir caps are made of circles of shadow lace 18 inches wide with soft ruffles of narrow lace around the crown. The ruffles should be made in the back wider than in the front to give the effect of a Dutch bonnet. The cap is decorated with little pink rosebuds and a band of pink ribbon.

Exquisite La France roses are made out of folded satin ribbon in three-inch lengths. Turn the ends back at the corners to form the petals. Group the petals together and join to a wire stem which has been twisted with narrow green satin.

A natural looking bunch of violets is formed of tiny bows of twisted violet ribbon tied with green silk wire.

Hat pins, collar pins and buckles are wonderfully effective when covered with ribbon roses made of narrow folded ribbon grouped closely together. If you prefer you can use satin cherries made of tiny circles of satin filled with cotton, with petals of green ribbon.



The girl who dances will find much pleasure in receiving a pretty pair of beaded satin slipper bows to match her party slippers.

For the traveler a small cretonne pillow with pockets on one side for magazines and newspapers would be a convenience.

A set of envelopes of white linen to hold the necessary articles, would also be a useful gift. If you have time you could buttonhole the flap in scallops. One envelope for handkerchiefs, one for the night dress, one lined in rubber for the toilet articles, and one large one for the extra waist. The pieces you have left of the linen you can utilize for napkin rings, scalloped and finished with a monogram, or for boudoir lamp shades, which are much admired when inserted with medallions of fine lace.

For the invalid a thoughtful little gift would be a cover for the drinking glass. A glass circle the size of the top of the ordinary glass is required; crochet a cover over the glass in a simple stitch in two colors of mercerized cotton. In the center sew a crocheted ring for a handle.

A tray with a narrow wooden border and brass handles could have a pretty piece of embroidered linen under the glass.

1—Apron.
2—Lantern Bag.
3—Cretonne Pillow.
4—Doily Bag.
5—Sewing Roll.
6—Colonial Pin Cushion.
7—Chest of Drawers.
8—Collar Bag.
9—Robespierre Collar.
10—Telephone Memorandum.

Ribbon bedroom slippers are especially new and nothing could be simpler to make. Sheer flowered ribbon to soft lamb's wool, draw an elastic through a lacing on the upper edge, leaving a heading about an inch wide. Make full rosettes of ribbon and place one on each instep.

A doily case will delight the heart of any housewife. They can be made in different sizes. Figured cretonne may be used in making one case with the inside lined in white material. Cover two circles of pasteboard with the material and finish neatly with a pretty wash braid. Use ribbon to keep the doilies in place.

A set of holders for handling hot dishes are made six inches square, of some pretty chintz. These are attached to an apron to match the material.

A set of boxes covered with a pretty pattern of wall paper would be most useful and acceptable to keep in the bureau drawers. These must be pasted neatly and the covers attached to the box.

Another novelty is a chest of draws for trinkets, hair pins or jewelry. Cover the box with cretonne and fit three smaller boxes into it. The boxes are covered with the same material and have little brass rings sewed on the center of each box, so they can be pulled out like drawers.

Aprons are always charming gifts. There are numberless suggestions for aprons. Fascinating aprons are made of sheer lawn with butterflies embroidered on them. The bottom is finished in three deep scallops edged with a fancy stitch and lace. The two end scallops form pockets for the sewing articles. The belt is formed of ribbon trimmed with jaunty little bows. Then there are chafing dish aprons, overall aprons, and many aprons you can devise with a little ingenuity.

We see bags here, there and everywhere. Bags of all sorts and sizes, from the elaborate affairs made of strips of Japanese embroidery like those shown in Chinatown, to those of the simplest design. Sewing bags, opera bags, laundry bags, shoe bags, slipper bags, corset bags, vanity bags, made of ribbon and fitted out with a small mirror and a tiny powder puff. Manicure bags may be fitted with the smaller size manicure articles, and for the children you can make marble bags, school bags, bean bags and pencil bags.

A useful receptacle for sewing materials is a lantern bag made of plain and flowered ribbon, or you could utilize any material you have. For the bottom of the bag cover a cardboard circle three inches and a half in diameter. Gather the flowered ribbon to this and hem the outside. Run an embroidery hoop four inches in diameter around the upper edge. Join the plain material to this and about eight inches from this place another hoop about four inches in diameter. This is the top of bag and is sheered over hoop. A round cover piece of cardboard is used as a cover and a heavy cord is used to carry it over the arm.

Another original bag for threads and needles is made of two circles of cretonne lined with satin. These are joined at intervals, leaving spaces for the spools. In the center is a little pin cushion. A ribbon drawn through the different sections, drawn this little bag together.

for the thimble and small scissors, which is attached with a narrow ribbon. In the center have squares of white flannel for the needles and pins. When not in use this case can be rolled up and fastened neatly with a loop and button.

Sometimes it is a rather perplexing question what to give a man. Men always like something that adds to their comfort and personal convenience. If you can knit there is not much difficulty in deciding what to give. Knitted silk neckties are much in vogue.

Good, warm, fleecy mufflers are liked by the man who motors, and bed room slippers are also every welcome.

A telephone memorandum with a pencil attached would be a daily reminder of the giver. Cover a piece of cardboard with tan linen embroidered in pink roses. Buy a small pad of white paper and paste it on the linen.

Men invariably are pleased with personal gifts, such as handkerchiefs with the monogram embroidered in the corner.

A rather good idea is to present your friend with his monogram embroidered heavily in black satin ribbon. These monograms will be of service to sew in his overcoat, so that he can easily distinguish his coat from another's in a crowded place.

Then there are whisk broom holders covered in linen, and collar bags made on a circular form of card board covered with rose-colored brocade and edged with old gold braid.

For the man who shaves himself, a shaving pad is useful. Cover two squares of cardboard with any material you desire. Work the monogram on the center of the upper one, insert leaves of tissue paper and tie together with a silk cord.

There are plenty of adorable gifts one can make for the baby. An ingenious idea is to cover an ordinary scale with pink ribbon and slit it down the center, neatly finishing the edges so mother can see every day how much the new baby is gaining. Use narrow ribbon to hang up the scale. Also a cute little water bag covered in soft pretty flannel will be an acceptable gift for his majesty.

Darling little bibs are made of huck toweling with curious shaped animals cross-stitched in red thread across the border.

A carriage strap which affords much amusement to the infant is made of elastic with satin ribbon in pink or blue sheered over it. To this strap, by means of a narrow ribbon, a celluloid whistle, a rubber doll and a teething ring are attached.

An enchanting little nightingale is made out of a square of cashmere, crocheted on the edge with silk or bound with wash ribbon. Satin ribbons are run through a casing to fit the head.

For the child that is a little older you can make a screen covered in snowy plain material and decorated with pictures cut from magazines and books. One section for flowers, one for animals, and one for birds, would be much appreciated.

A scrap book made of dark gray lining pasted with pictures, is also a gift a child can derive much pleasure from. After you have your presents completed, be careful that they are wrapped so that they look a little like book about them. Use plenty of green and white ribbon [illegible]

Birth of the King

Rev. F. W. Shriner

HO, the heaven is all resplendent
With the radiance of a star;
Yonder, in the ether, pendant
Flames its glories all afar.

In the East its splendor shineth,
Sages see its golden gleam;
Read the presage, what defineth?
Follow it to Bethlehem.

Costly gifts and adoration
Hasten they with joy to bring;
Traveling from their far-off station
Come to hail the new-born King.

Still falls the night on Judah's plains,
Shine soft the stars, the welkin gem,
When shepherds catch seraphic strains
From angel chords borne down to them:

Hymn of triumph, hymn of glory,
Sings the shining angel throng;
Shepherds list earth's sweetest story
And the world its gladdest song.

Sweeps the paean down the ages,
Swells the note of joy and praise;
Glide with hope time's opening pages,
Wafts its cheer to latest days.

Earth redeemed with heaven [illegible]
As it sounds the skies refrain,
Glory, glory to the highest,
Peace on earth, good will to men.

Mrs. Chandler's Hospitality Follows Plantation Motif

Among the most delightfully planned of the many gatherings of Clanton's social organization was the plantation party given by Mrs. Harvey Chandler Wednesday afternoon. This Club meets every week for a series of games, playing "42." On this occasion, the "42" pin was captured by Mrs. J.P. VanDerveer; the "84" pin fell to Mrs. J. P. VanDerveer on a cut with Mrs. Samuel Johnson.

Autumn flowers mingling a bright color variation of lavender, yellow and white specimen of chrysanthemum made the house very pretty, especially so with numerous ferns and potted plants bringing out the beauty of the bloom. Throughout each detail of the hospitality, the ante-bellum life of the South was suggested, the score cards bearing water-color sketches of little darkies on bales ot cotton, marking the progression of each seed of cotton. Bolls of cotton holding a placard in its snowy midst, was placed on each table to denote its particular number. At the close of the playing the guests assembled in the dining room to draw for a prize, as the club does not award trophies. Prize winning slips were hidden in bolls of cotton and the lucky number drawn for those present. Delicious charlotte russe and cake was served from a cleverly appointed table, which bore a typical plantation scene. The club members present besides the hostess were: Mesdames E. M. Pinckard, Sam Johnsnn, Arthur Johnson, J. P. VanDerveer, Hugh Jones, J. M. VanDerveer, W. M. Adams, Amzi Gowan, Victor Heard, Barney Roberts, J. H. Middleton, Ross Mullins, J. V. Higgins, Misses Bet-Mullins, Myrtle Mullins, Marguerite Chappelle; the extra guests were Mesdames Duncan, J. P. Hayes, J. W. Moore.

ENTERPRISE

Dear Editor:—Please publish in your paper a few lines of news from Enterprise.

The Enterprise school, taught by Messrs. J. Z. Mims and L. M. Yeargan, is above the average this time. The enrollment has passed the hundred mark.

The singings that the young people are having at Bethany church on Sunday afternoons are exceedingly fine.

The singing people of Enterprise were delighted to have Prof. J. M. Williams back with them Sunday last.

Prof. J. L. Harris' family and friends of Enterprise were delighted to have him return home for a short stay, but are sorry indeed to know of his illness at present.

There was a 'Tacky Party" at at the home of Rev. and Mrs. R. F. Yeargan, Saturday night Dec. 6. Very few of the young people of the home community were present, but some of the young folks from Evergreen were present and the party was enjoyed very much. After about an hour and a half of play and laughter the judges announced that Miss Della Williams of Evergreen and Eddie R. Yeargan of Enterprise were the tackiest dressed and the prizes should be awarded to them. The prizes given were to the lady, a box of "Honest Scotch" snuff, and to the gentlemen a plug of "Red J" tobacco.

All who were not present missed a good chew and dip.

An Enterprise Boy.

We take great pride in our enterprising boys and the Press will take some more of his reports when he will write them.

COUNTY HEALTH OFFICER'S REPORT

Clanton, Ala., Dec. 9, 1913

To the Honorable Probate Judge and Commissioners Chilton County:

Gentlemen: I beg to submit my report for the month of November. As required by law, I inspected the county jail on November 4 and found same to be in good condition.

I visited the poor house on November 5th and found it to be in good condition.

All the doctors who are in active practice have reported births and deaths with the exception of Dr. V. B. Potts, Maplesville, Ala.

The vital statistics are as follows:

Births: White, 54; Colored, 7; Total, 61.

Deaths: White, 16; Colored, 3; Total, 19.

The following cases of infectious diseases were reported: Three cases of typhoid fever, two cases of diphtheria, and one case of scarlet fever, and all have been carefully looked after.

In regard to the poor house, I will state, that I have looked carefully into the conditions of the building and find them amply prepared for the winter, except two buildings which have leaky roofs. The inmates are better cared for than could be expected with the amount per capita appropriated. If more was appropriated some extra comforts might be supplied those bed ridden and infirmed inmates that are not now available.

Respectfully submitted,
V. J. Gragg, M. D.,
County Health Officer.

TO THE TEACHERS OF THE COUNTY

I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are 18 libraries available for the rural schools of Chilton County this year.

Now, it lies in reach of every teacher to obtain one for your community and it devolves upon you as a duty, to put forth an effort to secure one of these libraries.

The schools that have already gotten a library have received great benefits from it and it is a chance whereby we can better our schools to place a library in every district in our county.

The first year every library was taken, but last year a few went lacking. Let the teachers of the county see to it that every one is taken up this year. You cannot serve your people in a better way. Only think, you can secure $30.00 worth of good useful books for only $10. Go to work and get one for your school.

Write to the State Secretary of the Reading Circle for suggestions on raising the funds.

Very truly,
Cecil E. Harris,
Pres. Co. Reading Circle.

This is a vital matter. This circle was founded by Dr. Thach, and fostered and promoted by Prof. Glenn. It is a boon to any community to have the use of a library which has been selected by experts with the good of the community definitely in view. Life is too short to miss an opportunity such as this, and no teacher worthy of the name will neglect this call.

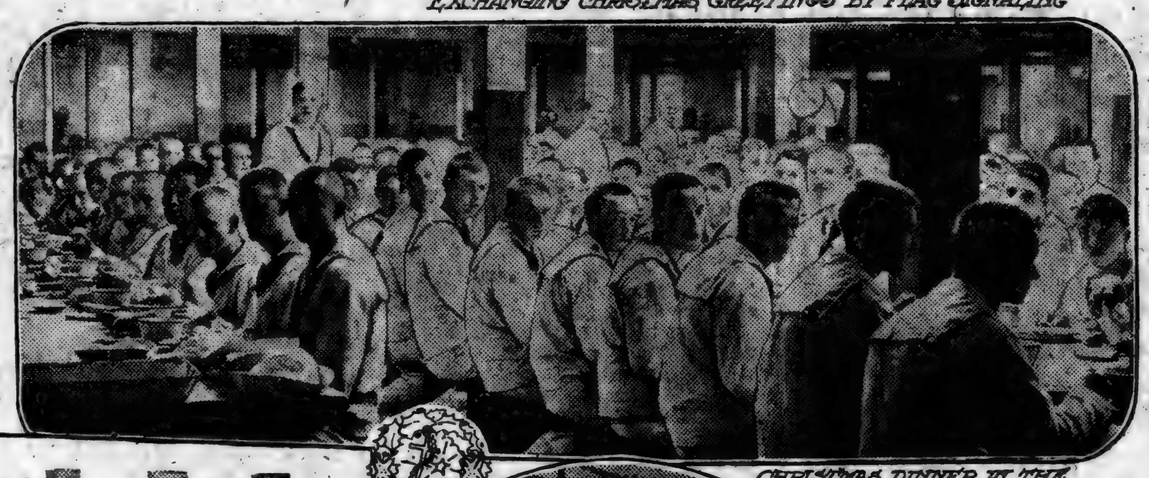
WHEN SANTA CLAUS BOARDS MAN-O'-WAR



EXCHANGING CHRISTMAS GREETINGS BY FLAG SIGNALING

ABSURD as it may sound to every one, the bluejackets still believe in Santa Claus. That rotund, rosy-cheeked little old man pays as much attention to the thousands of boys on board the warships as he does to the thousands of, perhaps younger in years, boys and girls ashore. Instead of coming in a sleigh with reindeer and merry bells, he comes in a precarious-looking boat, fully armed and convoyed, with the boom of musketry and the loud blowing of horns. The blowing of horns is a universal custom with the boys of all countries and colors and with the bluejackets too.

On Christmas day Santy is the highest ranking officer of the fleet, and all flags are junior to his fur tree hoisted to the masthead. With his flag lieutenant, his aide and the rest of the staff, he cruises about among the ships distributing the gifts with which his argosy is laden. His method of doing this is fraught with as much red tape as was ever the greetings of the old admiral of the Dutch fleet in the time of Queen Bess. All the paraphernalia symbolical of austere rank and bounty that can be gotten together are used as adornments and no end of work is expended on the rig of the boat to be used, which is sometimes the wherry and sometimes the punt.

In order to hold to the traditional custom used in the time of Paul Jones and down through the years, the boat is rigged like a brig, that is, with two masts and yard arms crossing, with jib and staysail and spanker out astern. On the fore and after quarters they arrange large wooden tubes, in which are inserted small arms. These "spiggoty guns" compose the saluting battery and heavy main battery also, and are manned and fired by the boatswain of "Der Prosit," who is a ponderous man in his official garb and daring in the way he approaches the ships, whose crews throng the sides and answer the salute with a revolver shot from the poop.

The saluting takes place before "Der Prosit" is within hailing distance, and all hands have a laugh at the tiny sounds, strongly contrasted in their minds with the salute of the big guns which they are accustomed to hear. Next the boatswain gets up in the bows and resting one hand almost on top of the foremast and lifting a megaphone as long as himself to his lips, calls out at the top of his voice, "Ship, ahoy!" The quartermaster answers from the bridge, "Hello, hello! Der Prosit?" "Aye, aye," the boatswain returns. "Come alongside," calls the quartermaster. Then the admiral of "Der Prosit" rises in the stern, some ten feet aft of the boatswain in the bow, his head on a level with the topmast, and bawls out through his megaphone, "All hands fur-r-l sail." With that the crew, consisting of one man, who also acts in the capacity of foghorn, gets amidships and climbs the mainmast, which sways to and fro as if about to capsize the entire craft, and pulls down all the sails. "The vessel is standing to," he then calls out to the boatswain, who reports to the admiral over the crew's head, who in turn reports to Santa Claus, sitting in the stern sheets at the tiller. All these orders are given and carried out in the most solemn manner, to the merriment of the ship's crew looking on from the rail above.

The crew of "Der Prosit" then gets out oars and pulls alongside while on deck the real boatswain's mate pipes eight side boys to stand at the head of the gangway and salute the admiral and Santa Claus when they come aboard. The president of the United States only rates six side boys when he comes aboard, while Santy has his eight, besides his are petty officers while the president's are only good-looking apprentice boys. As the argosy draws alongside the boatswain pipes the long, low tune and three short blasts characteristic of the coming aboard of great men.

No less a person than the captain of the ship meets the admiral of "Der Prosit," his wife, Santy, laden with a huge basket full of presents, the boatswain and the crew, while the bugler sounds three portentious rallies and the ship's company, assembled aft, stands at attention. Indeed the officers are all present, for they believe in Santy as well as do the crew. When the admiral's wife, some fair faced sailor with Manila rope hair and a tawdry skirt, swings aboard holding her train high and exposing a generous view of red stocking to the eyes of the sailors, a great laugh is evoked and a shout goes up, "Higher, higher," or "Oh, you Kiddo!"

The boatswain in command of the crew shouts to his one man for "Attention!" then puts him through a series of gymnastics of a peculiar and intensely funny character. The admiral, still thoroughly taking in the business, lifts a pair of binoculars in the form of two quart wine bottles lashed together, to his eyes and makes a pretense of getting his bearings by scrutinizing the sailors about him. Presently he reports to Santy, who has deposited his basket of presents on the quarter deck, "Sir, I see we are now in the Cannibal isles."

Santy begins then to pick up presents and read the names aloud, giving them to the crew of "Der Prosit" and the admiral's wife, and even to the admiral himself, who distributes them accordingly, cutting many ridiculous capers.

The presents are of a type that bring laughter. They are gotten up and made by the friends of those to whom they are sent, with an idea towards characterizing the ambition, the whim or the standing jokes that mark the receiver. If the captain is a four striper he will probably get an admiral's star, unless he has some other whim by which he is more properly known. When he is presented with this he can only blush in the presence of everybody, and take his dose, as Santy is supreme on Christmas day.

But the greatest gift that Santy can bestow falls to the lot of those who, through some misfortune or slip, have come in line for punishment. It is customary for Santy to walk boldly up to the captain and ask him to "whitewash" the books. In the face of everybody and on Christmas day the captain can not very well refuse this request, although some captains have been seen to wince and cough before granting the immeasurable favor. The report book, in which all punishable acts are entered, is swept clean and the culprits are reinstated to first-class standing and enjoy all the privileges held by their more fortunate shipmates who have not fallen before the multiplicity of temptations that daily assail the man-o'-warsman.

The event which forms a background for all this merriment is the regular "big feed," as the sailors call it. For the last week this has crept into their conversation. Pie, turkey and plum duff are the three great delicacies to the sailors, and they have more respect for them than for the three graces.

"What kind of a feed is the commissary gonna hand us?" one sailor asks of another. During this time of anticipation excitement runs high and the commissary is a very much respected person. In fact, he is never a retired person, for his billet is a hard one to fill to the satisfaction of every one who eats at the general mess. There is always some old tar or other who imagines himself aggrieved by the quality of his food, and the appetites boys take from him the habit of complaining with very little reason on their part. Quarrels of this nature and have to be referred to the "mast," where the first lieutenant (first luff) settles the matter in favor of the commissary, so that the sailor arranges a private settlement with the commissary himself as where the first luff has nothing to say, except it affable lot. The preparation of the potatoes is the work of a dozen men, since they must be extraordinarily nice.

The "skinners" arrange themselves astride a bench in range of a tub where one man sits and tosses potatoes continually. The tub is kept full by another man who dumps in from a sack carried down from the upper deck. So a cycle is made, the clean peeled potatoes going constantly into another tub, which is dragged into the galley and dumped into a great urn through which water is percolating. These are rinsed around by another mess attendant and dumped into other urns where steam is turned on, while another tub of peeled ones are being brought from the skinners.

When they are done the ship's cook himself, who paces to and fro in the galley all the while, mounts upon the nearest urn with his, and taking a great six-foot masher proceeds to pound them into a white flakey mass fit for a king.

But this is not all he has to do, either. The turkeys are browning in the long ovens and he and his three assistants have continually to open the doors, probe with long forks into the swelling breasts and ascertain when to take them out.

The mess tables are all numbered so that each sailor knows just where to go when he gets down through the hatchway, and he doesn't waste any time getting there on this occasion. It is indeed a singular and lively scene on the gundeck at this period. Every man's plate is heaped to the brim before him and all apply themselves with a daring and disregard for mere stomachs that would make a dyspeptic wince and turn his head. Dozens of tables dangle from hooks between parallel columns of sailors, who seem only restrained from eating each other alive by the flimsy, vacillating boards which support the food.

When these ravenous appetites have been slaked and even those who have the dilating powers of an anaconda are put at rest, or in pain, as the case may be, some of the "old shellbacks" will begin to grow reminiscent and tell of the Christmases they have spent in lands where there were no turkeys nor anything else fit for the "big feed."

Says old Pete, the sailmaker's mate: "I mind the time down in Darien, when the steward had nothin' in the storeroom but a ton of crusty hard biscuits full of bugs, so when y' busted 'em with the handle 'ye yer knife they went whimty nifty in every direction—under yer plate, behind yer cup, in yer cleets and arguing the mess pans. But, mates, that was a Christmas for yer life! We couldn't eat the buffalo meat, it was that much like bolt rope, so we drunk or coffee and engaged ourselves in bug races down the table. By-tryin' all the bugs out we got some speedy ones. And they was speedy. I had one that could trot down that table—trot, mind y'—like it was Maude S herself. The devil of it was the bloody bug wouldn't keep in the course between the plates. She'd break for a hole near the finish. I bet big money on 'er, though, and after hours' 30 hours by her duskin' out of it when she was two whole plate lengths ahead, mind y'. I figured I could hand her off the next time and win anyhow, so I put up $6 bones—$4 good cold plunkers on that mighty little spud of a bug, and pickle me hide! you ought a seen that race! Oh! That plucky little bug of'n down that mess table like it was on full heartsease. Crossed the finish a length ahead of the next bug and stopped for a piece of table and then was eaten before I could get hold of her. Lost me $6 bones, but I'll bet you I'd have won if she hadn't been eaten."

RESENTS THRUSTS AT PEACE POLICIES

PRESIDENT WILSON WITHDRAWS MEMBERSHIP IN ORDER OF CARABAO.

ACTION CAUSES SENSATION

Severe Reprimands As Result of Army and Navy Banquet Are Looked For.

Washington. — President Wilson formally withdrew his recent acceptance of honorary membership in the military order of the Carabao committee, composed of regular and volunteer officers of the army and navy who served in the Philippine Islands during the four years succeeding the Spanish-American war.

Earlier in the day the President had ordered an investigation of various satires and travesties on the administration's policy towards the Philippines as portrayed at a banquet of the Carabaos in Washington. The affair was attended by Secretaries Redfield, Daniels and Postmaster General Burleson, Justices McKenna and Van Deventer of the United States supreme court, many members of Congress and hundreds of army and navy officers.

The demand for an investigation, together with intimations from the White House that courtmartials and severe reprimands would not be surprising as a result of the banquet, caused a sensation in army and navy circles in the capital.

The incident of the case came to the President's attention when he read accounts of the newspapers.

Through his secretary he communicated with various members of the cabinet, expressing his indignation that officers of the army and navy should sing songs containing profane epithets toward a people whom the United States was endeavoring to assist to self-government and civilization. No effort, according to White House officials had been made to keep the banquet a private affair, copies of the songs and descriptions of the travesties showing opposition to the administration's Philippine policy being given to the press generally in advance.

It was made plain at the White House that while a general burlesque of the administration's peace policies and thrusts at Secretary Bryan and others were deeply resented because they came from army and navy officers, the chief objection was to the spirit of hostility shown to Philippine independence as the problem is being worked out by the present administration.

Secretary Daniels, who made a speech at the banquet, but left early to attend the congressional reception, said afterward that none of the "stunts," such as the bringing in the "Peace fleet," composed of the battleship models "U. S. S. Friendship, U. S. S. Fellowship and U. S. S. Piffle," had taken place while he was present.

"While I was there," said Mr. Daniels, "the thing I thought was particularly offensive was the song, 'Damn, Damn, Damn, the Insurrectors.' Had I know it was to be sung I would have asked that it be eliminated from the program or I would not have gone."

The chorus of the song which was sung with great zest by hundreds of army and navy officers present was as follows:

"Damn, damn, damn, the insurrectors, cross-eyed, kakiaok ladrones,
Underneath the starry flag, civilize
'em with a Krag.
"And return us to our own beloved homes."

The word "ladrones" is the Spanish for "robbers," and "Krag" is the army abbreviation for the Krag-Jorgensen rifle.

THIS YEAR'S CROP VALUABLE.

Yield of Corn, Cotton and Oats About Largest in History, Says Government Report.

Washington.—With the most valuable crops of corn and cotton ever produced and the second most valuable oat crop the value of the nation's 14 principal farm crops this year aggregates the enormous total of $4,940,301,000, the department of agriculture announced in its final estimates of acreage production and value. This is an increase of $151,558,000 over the value of the same crops last year, and $350,372,000 over those of 1911, based on the prices paid to farmers on December 1.

Algernon Really Had a Right to Resent This Last Action of Unfeeling Editor.

Algernon was a "free-lance" journalist, and at the moment could have done with considerably less freedom—and more money. In fact, he was beginning to realise that a regular salary had its advantages.

So was Algernon's wife.

A somewhat gloomy silence was broken by the letter carrier's knock, and, restraining any undignified haste, Algernon went to the box. It contained a foolscap envelope, which is not the kind that editors drop checks into.

"Shades of the poets!" quoth Algernon. "This is really more than I can bear!"

"What is it, dear?" piped his wife.

"What is it? Why, I sent this editor two stories and the heartless fellow has returned three!"

Lesson in Grammar.

Jenny's uncle, who was a school teacher, met her on the street one beautiful May day and asked her if she was going to the Maypole dance.

"No, I ain't going."

"Oh, my little dear," said her uncle, "you must not say 'I ain't going.' You must say 'I am not going,' and he proceeded to give her a little lesson in grammar. "You are going. He is not going. We are not going. Now, can you say all that, Jenny?"

"Sure I can," she replied, making a courtesy. "There ain't nobody going."

Minister Was Hard Hit.

A charming young widow was being courted by an earnest minded young minister, who sought to help his beloved by lecturing her little son. One day the son, caught in the act of using a swear word, was asked:

"What did Mr. Jones say to you, Reginald, the day when he took you aside for a private talk?"

"He said that I ought to love you better," came the unexpected answer, "that he didn't see how anybody could help loving you too hard to do anything you didn't like."

Was Personally Interested.

"Mother," said a little girl, bringing a grimy little urchin to the maternal fount of kindness, "please wash Dicky's face for him."

"But why should I wash his face, dear? I'm not his mother. If Dicky's face needs washing, wouldn't it be better for him to go home?"

"Yes, mother, only—well, you said it wasn't healthy to kiss dirty faces, and I want to kiss Dicky now!"

SMITH DIES IN GADSDEN.

Slayer of Patrolman Patterson Found Unconscious in Cell.

Gadsden.—J. L. Smith, twice convicted of murder and twice sentenced to hang, is dead. Smith was found unconscious in his cell. He was convicted for the murder of Patrolman Patterson of Alabama City, and his aged father and mother, as well as other members of the family, had spent much in the bitter fight to save his life, which has been waged in Etowah courts and before the supreme court for several years.

Revenue Officers Destroy Still.

Florence. — Revenue officers are at work in this county running down moonshiners, who are said to be operating extensively in this (Lauderdale) county. The posse visited Blackburn beat and captured an outfit on Butler's Creek, nine miles northeast of Florence. The large copper still was put out of commission and brought to Florence where it was exhibited on the court house lawn. This has come to be a common sight in Florence and attracts very little attention.

One Man Is Killed.

Birmingham — Hamilton Evers, aged 19 years, was killed, and Earl Wood, city salesman for a local commission firm of Birmingham, were injured while returning to the city from the mining camps in the lower part of the county. Their automobile struck a stump going over an embankment. The two men were pinned for more than two hours under the car, when a passing wagon with mules in it stopped and rescued them.

U. S. ATTORNEYS ARE NAMED

Bell of Birmingham, Samford of Opelika, and Pitts of Selma Get "Plums."

Washington. — President Wilson in a message to the senate nominated Robert N. Bell, of Alabama, to be U. S. attorney for the Northern district of Alabama; Thomas D. Samford, of Alabama, U. S. attorney for the Middle district of Alabama, and Alexander D. Pitts, of Alabama, U. S. attorney for the Southern district of Alabama.

Robert N. Bell, of Birmingham, the new United States attorney for the Northern district of Alabama, removed to Birmingham from Marshall county several years ago. He has always been prominent in state politics. He came within a few votes of being nominated by the Democrats of the Seventh district for congress.

Thomas D. Samford, the new United States attorney for the Middle Alabama district, is a native of Lee county, Alabama. His home is at Opelika, where he has been a practicing lawyer since his graduation from college. Mr. William J. Samford is a son of the late Governor William J. Samford. He is prominent in the Methodist church councils and is also a prominent Knight of Pythias.

Alex D. Pitts, of Selma, the new United States attorney for the Southern Alabama district, is a prominent attorney of Dallas county. He has served for several terms as a member of the Alabama legislature and has always taken an active part in Alumni society.

DUNSON BREAKS CORN RECORD.

Alabama Boy Is Officially Declared Champion of Southern States.

Washington.—When the figures of the records of the prize corn club boys and the canning club girls for the southern states were completed it was found that Walter Lee Dunson of Alexander City, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, had broken all previous records of corn for boys by raising 232.7 bushels on a single acre.

These exceed the previous record held by Jerry Moore of South Carolina af 228.75 by practically four bushels. Dunson, however, further added to his record by raising the corn at a cost of 19.9 cents per bushel, whereas Jerry Moore's cost was 42 cents per bushel. The second corn club boy was J. Jonas Polk, of Prentiss, Jeff Davis county, Mississippi, with 214 bushels, and the third was J. Ray Cameron, Kingston, Lenoir county, North Carolina, with 190.4 bushels raised at a cost of 33.25 cents per bushel.

The leading girl in canning in the south was Miss Clyde Sullivan of Ousley, Ga., who put up 2464 cans out of a yield of 5354 pounds of tomatoes.

IRON AND COAL RATE CASES.

Rehearing Asked By Three Railroads Involved in Matter.

Montgomery.—Applications for rehearings in the Mobile pig iron rate case and the Selma coal rate case were filed before the state railroad commission by attorneys for the Louisville and Nashville, the Southern and the Mobile and Ohio railroads. Recently the railroad commission issued and order reducing the rate on pig iron from Birmingham to Mobile from $2.75 to $1.75 and the rate on coal from the Birmingham mines to Selma from $1 a ton to 80c a ton.

HOPE TO RAISE LARGE SUM

Millions of Red Cross Christmas Seals to Be Sold for Anti-Tuberculosis Work.

Few people have any idea of the magnitude of the Red Cross Christmas seal campaign. This year over 100,000,000 seals have been printed and distributed. If placed end-to-end these seals would extend nearly 2,400 miles, or practically from New York to Salt Lake City. They have been sent to over 25,000 different agents and will be sold and handled by an army of not less than 100,000 volunteers, including men, women and children. Millions of advertising circulars have been scattered throughout the country, and so thoroughly has the advertising campaign been organized that it is doubtful if many people in the more populous states of the country will not have heard of the Red Cross seal and its mission in the prevention of tuberculosis. It is hoped that at least 50,000,000 seals may be sold this year. The principle upon which the sale of seals is based is that every cent except what little is needed to cover the actual cost of printing and handling shall be spent for tuberculosis work in the community, where the seals are sold.

BAD TETTER ON HANDS

R. F. D. No. 1, Crits, Va.—"I had tetter on my hands so badly that I could hardly do anything. It would begin to come in clear white blisters, then they would burst and peel off all over and crack and bleed. My hands were so sore and itched so badly I could not rest day or night. I could not put them in water nor do my regular work.

"I tried medicine and several different kinds of cream on them but they got worse instead of better. Nothing did me any good until I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. And now my hands are perfectly well and all right." (Signed) Miss Ellen Tudor, Nov. 19, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Not for Ten Cents.

During Robert Edeson's last visit in the south he had occasion to spend the Sabbath with an acquaintance who owned a big plantation near Port Gibson, Miss.

Some time in the afternoon a large gathering of negroes appeared on the banks of a stream that skirted the farm, attracted by a baptism. Mr. Edeson, calling to a black boy who was looking on, said:

"Isaac, I'll give you a dime if you will be baptized this afternoon."

For fully three minutes the darkey looked at Mr. Edeson, then he answered:

"No, sah; you cain't git me to fool wit the Lord for ten cents."

Disappointed in Daddy.

The young daughter of a wealthy man was ill, and papa asked what he should bring her from town for comfort. The little girl asked for a new number of a certain popular juvenile series. Papa returned with the report that the desired book would not be published for some time.

"Well, I don't see what's the use of being a successful business man if you can't even get a book that isn't published," grunted the disappointed damsel. "Anyone can get a new book when it's out."

Red Seals and Christmas Gifts.

A big-hearted purchaser of Red Cross seals in a southern city recently complained because the seals did not come in sheets larger than 100. He had prepared a Christmas package for his daughter and had conceived the idea that he would wrap it entirely in Christmas seals. As the present was bulky, the sheets of 100 were not sufficient. He solved his problem, however, by pasting several sheets of seals on a large piece of wrapping paper, in which he inclosed his daughter's gift.

MINDS IN COMPLETE ACCORD

For Once, at Least, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Found Themselves in Absolute Harmony.

"We are united in this movement," said Thomas M. Reed, a Denver physiologist, apropos of a fight against the drug habit.

"Yes, a single thought possesses us, and in that respect we're like Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

"At 3 a. m. of a bitter cold morning Mrs. Smith in her thin nightgown was pacing the floor with her colic-tormented babe in her arms. The babe's squawks of pain were terrible, yet they were easily drowned by the ear-splitting roars of young Smith, Jr., who tossed about his crib with a toothache.

"Mr. Smith, shivering in his pajamas, bent over the washstand, trying to prepare a cotton filling for his son and a mustard plaster for his babe, when his wife's voice, scarcely audible above the uproar, reached him.

"'John,' she said, 'if seven years ago, I could have looked forward and beheld this scene, do you know what I'd have done?'

"'Yes, love,' Smith answered. 'You'd have done just what I wish I'd done.'"

Household and Mental Order.

Froebel, "father of child-study," said that "inward clearness proceeds from outward order," and there is truth enough in the observation to give food for thought in the careless, untidy mother and father. Froebel's saying was connected, no doubt with his insistence that the child's play and work materials in the kindergarten should be taken out in perfect order and so returned at the close of the exercises, and Dr. Montessori, the Italian educationist, whose method is working a change in the teaching of children, requires the same thing in her "Houses of Childhood." There must indeed be a potent influence in an orderly punctual, wisely-administered household, and there is no question that children brought up in such an atmosphere do show clearness in their mental processes. Fortunately, this is an influence which is independent of riches or poverty and so can be exerted by any mother.

"'Copper.'

"And Lord Lacland, remembering the pale palaces of the copper millionaires overlooking the park, said: 'Ah!' sagely, and was very much impressed indeed."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR STATE SENATOR.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the Senate of Alabama from the the Fifteenth district, composed of the counties of Chilton, Shelby and Autauga, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

W. W. Wallace.

The editor of this paper and others will speak at the Big Rally at Concord on Friday, the 19th.

Read the Washington letter of Geo. Clinton in this issue. Also President Wilson,s lick at the Carbao, and Alford on diversification.

The crowd now tuying to convince us that Underwood's senatorial campaign is not financed by liquor and Wall street, are the very same crowd who once actually persuaded us that Underwood's presidential campaign was not financed by Ryan, using Ryan's $35,000 to buy the newspaper space through which we were persuaded. WOODROW'S TREE

BY C. R. LAMAR.

Woodrow, shake that tree.
Oh, let the plums come down,
To pelt and batter me,
And cover all the ground.
'Neath these umbrageous shades,
No precious fruit shall rot:
For several decades,
We've not been near the spot.

Post offices grow thick;
Judge-ships in clusters hang;
Do shake it hard and quick,
Oh, give each bough a bang.
All show a luscious red,
Mixed with a yellow stripe,
Attornevships are said
To be, now, over-ripe.

Big ministries are dopes
That hang a little high,
But not above our hopes,
As here we sit and sigh:
Our mouths with water swim;
Our hearts are filled with glee;
We dance around our dem-Ocratic Christmas tree.

HOW TO TAKE GOOD CARE OF YOUR HAIR

Nothing spoils your good looks so much as homely hair—stringy, dull-colored, harsh. Nothing adds to good looks so much as beautiful hair—soft, silky, wavy and glossy. No matter how beautiful your hair is now, you can improve its good looks by using Harmony Hair Beautifier. If your hair is homely and ugly now, Harmony Hair Beautifier will make it softer, silkier, glossier, more beautiful in every way. It also makes it easier to put up and helps fit to "stay put." Its rich rose odor hides the unpleasant, oily smell of the hair. Harmony Hair Beautifier is rightly named; it beautifies the hair.

Very easy to apply—simply sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. It contains no oil, and will not change the color of the hair nor darken gray hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick and thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet-smelling cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store—one of the more than 7,000 leading drug stores of the United States, Canada and Great Britain, which own the big Harmony laboratories in Boston, where the many celebrated Harmony Perfumes and Toilet Preparations are made.—Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala.

IDEAL WHISKEY CANDIDATE

Why don't the whiskey people unite on Hobson and put him in the Senate? That is the only place in public life where a man has absolutely no opportunity to hurt the saloon! See? If he should be defeated in the present campaign, and left laying around loose here in Alabama, he would certainly be a dangerous citizens from the saloon point of view.

READ THIS LETTER

Saturday, December, 6th, at 10:45 a.m., Mr. J. E. Littlejohn, one of Chilton county's leading citizens, came into my office and made the following statement: "Doctor, my wife would not take $100.00 for the [illegible] wprk."

Friends and customers, if the leading men of your county make such statements as this about Dr. Higgins' eye work, can't you afford to risk a few more dollars and have your eyes treated to suit your nerves and feelings? But if you want some cheap, sorry "junk" called "specks" to wear over your eyes, Dr. Higgins has some to sell from 50c to $2.50, but the RIGHT GLASS and the RIGHT EYE TREATMENT will cost you more.

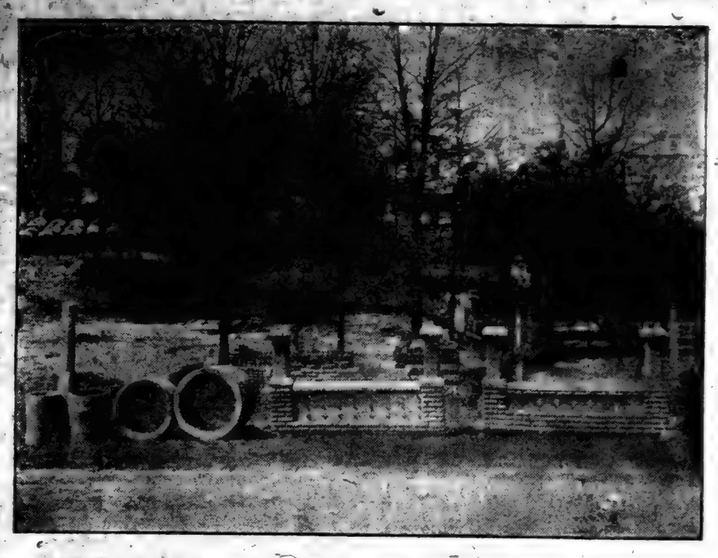
Hon. R. N. Lansing, of Rensselaer, N. Y., Six Times a Member of the Assembly, Tells of Narrow Escape.



"About fifteen years ago I was taken with rheumatism, which affected my heart producing what was called valvular trouble. Three doctors told me I would never do another day's work. While I had many remedies recommended to me I got a bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and it helped me inside of 48 hours. At the end of the week I called on my doctor and asked him to examine me. He said I was better than he ever expected to see me and asked if I was taking his medicine. When I told him I was not, but was taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, he said, 'Thank the Lord for Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy.' I continued to take it, and while I realized my heart was damaged so I could not expect a permanent cure, for fifteen years I worked every day, notwithstanding I had been told I would never work again. In July, 1911, I was taken with rheumatism again, and it went to my heart as before. I got so bad that one of the Albany papers wrote up my life and said I could not live but a few hours. I again took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy with very satisfactory results, and have not missed a day at business or in the legislature since January. I feel that Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has saved my life and cannot recommend it too highly."

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

ASYLUM TRUSTEES PRESENT REPORT

2199 PATIENTS IN TWO HOSPITALS—327 ADMITTED PAST YEAR.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings in and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

The governor has received the printed report of the trustees of the Alabama Insane Hospital for the year ending September 30 last. The printed document also contains the report of the superintendent of the hospitals, Dr. J. T. Searcy, to the trustees.

In his report Dr. Searcy calls attention to the fact that in the two hospitals there were 1399 white patients and 794 colored patients. There were 21 less white patients in 1913 than in 1912. During the year there were 527 admissions to the hospitals, 36 less than last year.

The members of the board of trustees of the Alabama Insane Hospitals are Col. Sam Will John, Massillon; Dr. W. M. Faulk, Tuscaloosa; Dr. J. L. Williamson, Tuscaloosa; Dr. E. D. Bondurant, Mobile; C .B. Verner, Tuscaloosa; Dr. F. A. Webb, Calvert, and J. M. Foster, Montgomery.

The report of the trustees is as follows:

"Dear Sir—We have the honor of submitting to your excellency the following report:

"The annual meeting was held at the Bryce hospital on October 15 and 16, 1913, at which time the usual business was transacted.

"A regular meeting was also held at the Mt. Vernon hospital in April, 1913.

"At these meetings inspections of patients and their treatment were made, and the grounds and buildings were also inspected. We are glad to report that we found everything in a satisfactory condition. In this connection we wish to state that we found more marked improvement in the condition of the buildings and in the equipment for doing surgical work and general treatment of patients. It is gratifying to report further that this has been done, and at the same time the per capita draft for patients has been decreased.

"The term of Dr. J. L. Williamson having expired, he was re-elected trustee to succeed himself.

"We give you herewith reports of the officers of the several departments of the hospitals, which show the extent and importanace of the work."

Covington Bank Closes Doors.

Superintendent of Banks Alex E. Walker received notice that the Bank of Falco of Falco, Covington county, has suspended business. It is believed that the bank's failure resulted indirectly from the failure of the Pensacola State Bank last week. Superintendent Walker has gone to Falco to take charge of the bank.

The Bank of Falco had a paid-in capital of $15,000, and a recent report filed with the superintendent of banks in response to his call of October 4 showed that the bank's deposits were $14,000 with loans and discounts amounting to $22,309.30, demand loans of $800 and total resources of $29,816.55. The bank had been operating only about one year, having been organized by persons residing in the northern part of Florida.

John H. Givens has been president, A. J. Peaden, vice-president, and Oscar Steele, cashier. Notice of the bank's failure was sent to Mr. Walker in a telegram from A. J. Peaden, acting as chairman of the board of directors.

Final settlement of the affairs of the bank will be made and every depositor will be paid every penny he had in the bank, according to an announcement made by Superintendent of Banks Alex E. Walker. The bank's affairs will be placed in the hands of Edward Hammond special agent for the state banking department. Superintendent Walker has just returned from Falco, where he conferred with the officials and directors of the bank.

Now Twenty Vacancies.

Appointment of Alex D. Pitts, of Selma, as federal attorney for the Southern district of Alabama, means that there will be another vacancy in the legislature. There are already more than 20 vacancies which would probably be filled by elections should the governor order the general assembly into special session. In this connection, it is reported that stronger pressure than ever before is being brought to bear on the chief executive to convene an extraordinary session.

Smallpox in Lee Jail

Six prisoners confined in the Lee county jail at Opelika, have smallpox and two other prisoners are in close quarantine, according to reports received by Dr. William H. Oates, state prison inspector, from Sheriff C. P. Miller, of Lee county. All of the prisoners are negroes. Dr. Oates was informed that the prisoners infected were doing nicely, and that all will probably recover. In the meantime six prisoners remanded to jail for any cause are kept in the old prison.

Pension Board Submits Report.

A complete report of the purge of the state pension rolls in 16 counties of the state was submitted to ex-governor O'Neal by the pension board.

It shows that 579 pensioners were stricken from the roll, 149 being deserters from the army or navy of the Confederate states, and 419 were found ineligible because their military records were not established. The report cites two legal authorities for the board's correction of the pension roll.

"From these two cases," it says, "it is clear that there is not and cannot be any vested right in a government pension as has been claimed by a few who have criticised this proceeding."

In the 16 counties so far investigated there were 3,484 pensioners before the board started its work. The 579 stricken from the roll have been receiving from the fund the aggregate sum of $40,300, and in the event that 2,895 are dropped as the result of the board's further investigations the report states the sum of $201,500 will be saved.

The cost of the investigation, according to the report, up to this time is less than one and one-half per cent. of the money shown to be saved.

Will Speak for Local Option.

Local optionists of Alabama are going to concentrate on one of the candidates now in the race for governor and are going to give state-wide prohibitionists of the state a fierce battle in the next primary, according to Governor O'Neal.

"State-wide prohibitionists in Alabama, headed by members of the Anti-Saloon League, have evidently centered upon one of the candidates now in the race for the governorship but when the time comes, they will find the local optionists of the state united solidly behind one candidate. For myself, I will state that I shall take the stump in the contest and speak for local option principles in every portion of the state," said the governor.

No indication was given by the governor as to which of the local option candidates would be supported by the united local option forces, but it is practically certain that the local optionists will center upon the man whom they consider to be the strongest and ablest candidate in the race.

Action on the part of the local optionists is expected to follow the meeting of the state democratic executive committee.

Award Corn Contest Prizes.

Prizes in the corn contest conducted by the state department of agriculture will be awarded December 25 at the office of Capt. R. F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture. Captain Kolb has selected C. G. Abercrombie and H. C. Oliver of Montgomery and Hector D. Lane of Moulton as judges in the contest. All persons interested are invited by Capt. Kolb to be present when the prizes are awarded.

This year more than $2,000 will be given to the farmers who took part in the contest and returned the largest yields of corn on one acre of land. The first prize is $250, the second $150 and the third is $100. Special prizes of $25 are awarded in each county.

Centreville Man Succeeds Powell.

Henry P. White of Centreville was appointed associate member of the state tax commission by Governor O'Neal. Mr. White will succeed John B. Powell of Greenville, whose resignation was submitted to the governor. The appointment of Mr. White was recomended by John S. Mooring, chairman of the tax commission. The new commissioner will assume his duties on January 1, the date on which Mr. Powell's resignation becomes effective. Mr. White is now serving as tax commissioner of Bibb county and is accounted an expert in tax matters.

Road Map of Alabama.

In line with Alabama's progressive good roads policy, a comprehensive road map of the state is being drawn in the office of State Highway Engineer W. S. Keller and, when completed, will be the first and only thing of its kind ever put out in Alabama.

Montgomery Bank Clearings.

Bank clearings in Montgomery have shown a handsome increase in one year. The clearings for November, 1913, were $5,555,318.32, compared with $4,441,091.75 for the corresponding month of last year. The gain was $1,110,316.47.

Boll Weevil in Conecuh.

Farmers in the vicinity of Castleberry are worried over the prospects of the boll weevil devastating their cotton crops next year. They have written Commissioner of Agriculture R. F. Kolb stating that they desire to learn the most improved methods of fighting the weevil and soliciting instruction. Commissioner Kolb, in response to requests, delivered an address at Castleberry on the boll weevil. The pest appeared in Conecuh county a year ago, but so far has done no great damage.

Try Oakland Sammy January 5.

The cases of James P. Kelly, alias "Oakland Sammy," charged with robbing the Marion, Ala., postoffice and who was recently brought back to Alabama after having been taken by Governor Cole Blease of South Carolina from that state, will be tried in the federal court at Montgomery January 5. Kelly, in jail, being guarded by two officers, has been held at Birmingham, Montgomery and Selma, pending the completion of the papers in the case. He was brought back to Alabama from South Carolina after the governor of that state had refused to honor requisition papers issued by Governor Emmet O'Neal of Alabama.

MORE MONEY IN EGGS

Improper Handling Causes Loss of Millions of Dollars

Good Home-Made Candler Can Be Made From Box That Is Large Enough to Cover Lamp—Excellent Results Secured.

The improper handling of eggs throughout the country causes an enormous loss, the amount extending into many millions of dollars annually.

It is an established fact that strictly fresh eggs command a higher price than those commonly designated as store eggs, and if the farmer, who is the largest producer of this well-known perishable commodity, would take more care in selecting, grading and marketing this product he would receive a price higher than the average market one for his eggs. On many farms throughout the country the money derived from the sale of poultry and eggs buys the groceries and clothing for the entire family. The money from this source may be substantially increased by establishing a private trade in eggs of good quality with hotels, restaurants, etc., in towns and cities.

A good home-made egg tester or candler can be made from a large shoe box, or any box that is large enough to go over a lamp, by removing an end and cutting a hole a little larger than the size of a quarter in the side of the box, so that when it is set over a common kerosene lamp the hole will be opposite the blaze. A hole the size of a silver dollar should be cut in the top of the box to allow the heat to escape.

A fresh egg held at the hole opposite the blaze of the lamp will show perfectly clear through the shell. A stale or bad egg will show dark spots.

This egg tester may be used with excellent results in determining whether eggs are fertile or infertile. Many eggs that are laid in late winter and early spring are infertile. For this reason it is advisable, when setting time comes, to set several hens at the same time. After the eggs have been under the hen for seven days they should be tested to see whether they are fertile or infertile. Infertile eggs should be removed and used at home in cooking, for they are just as good as others, and the fertile eggs should be put back under the hen. In this way it is often possible to put all of the fertile eggs under fewer hens and reset the hens from which the eggs have been taken.

In testing these eggs, an infertile egg, when held before the small hole of the egg testing box, with the lighted lamp inside, will look perfectly clear, the same as a fresh one, while a fertile egg will show a small, dark spot known as the embryo, with a mass of little blood veins extending in all directions if the embryo is living. If dead, if the egg has been incubated for at least 36 hours, the blood settles away from the embryo toward the edge of the yolk, forming what is known as a blood ring. The testing should be done in a dark room.

FEW PRACTICAL DUCK NOTES

Avoid Danger of Fowls Becoming Frightened and Smothering Each Other—Keep Food Clean.

Shavings make the best beds for ducks. Let the ducks make their own nests in the shavings.

Unless a lantern or some other light is kept burning at night in sheds where large numbers of ducks are confined, they are apt to become frightened and huddle together and smother each other.

It doesn't pay to feed a duck after it is long-weeks old.

Ducks will not scratch for their food as chickens do, and for this reason they should be fed in troughs.

CARE OF GASOLINE ENGINES

Apparatus Is Handy Power and Deserving of Widespread Popularity —It Fills Many Niches.

Farmers who shelter their machinery in the fields during the winter are not apt to make much of a success of the gasoline engine in farm work.

The gasoline engine is a very handy power and is deserving of widespread popularity. It will fill many niches on a good sized farm and very few of us have begun to know its value.

It must be well cared for and kept well housed, for there are certain condition under which it operates that are simple but inexorable. It will balk quicker than a mule if the conditions are not right.

Any farmer can get valuable assistance from a gasoline engine if he will give it proper care.

Its care is very simple. First comes protection from the weather. A tarpaulin is a very good cover for an engine that is kept out-of-doors, and even one housed is better if kept covered when it is not in use. Live batteries are necessary. Electricity is the spark of life to a gasoline motor.

A clean spark plug is necessary at the other end of the battery wire. The mixture of gasoline and air must be just right for the most effective work at the greatest economy of power, although the motor will work and waste gasoline.

Adjustments of this kind are simple to learn and should be understood by the man who has charge of the engine.

A frequent cause of trouble is the failure to strain the gasoline when filling the tank. Pay but little attention to men who claim that their gasoline is absolutely clean, or the result will be disastrous.

Strain the gasoline through a chamois or a finely meshed strainer.

Good lubricating oil is another important essential. No gasoline engine can give its best service unless it is properly cared for and housed.

FARM REPAIR SHOP IS HANDY

Suitable Place Where Odd Jobs Can Be Done Is Desirable, Especially in Stormy Weather.

(By W. R. BEATTIE.)

A shop or other suitable place where repair work can be carried on during stormy or cold weather is almost as important on the farm as are tools and materials with which to make repairs. A small building devoted exclusively to shop purposes is desirable, but where this is not available a portion of one of the regular farm buildings may be utilized. One side of a wagon shed can frequently be devoted to this purpose. A work bench can be fitted up and provision made for the cars of tools and supplies. An abundance of light in the work shop is essential to good work, and as much of the repair work will be done during dark and cloudy weather, the windows should be numerous and so distributed as to provide for uniform lighting.

Interior of Work Shop With Outfit of Tools, a Work Bench, Sawhorses and Miter Box.

HINTS OF HORSES AND MULES

Pleasure and Inspiration in Breeding and Handling of High Class Animals—Money in Drafters.

In the fields a big team makes haste by the width of the furrow or swath they cut.

There is pleasure and inspiration in the business of breeding and handling high class horses.

Bear in mind in breeding horses that it is just as essential to breed good feet on to them as to get weight and blood in them.

The pure bred mare is a good investment to the small farmer, and if he will allow her to share the work of the place she will do nearly as much work as a gelding, and raise a good colt besides.

The drafter can make more money by his great efficiency at heavy work than the light horse can by his greater speed on the road.

Nowadays farmers are awakening to the fact that it takes strong horses to do good work on the farm.

The stall-floor in the horse stables should be level; inclined planes are injurious. The horse is forced to stand in a cramped position, and if continued through a number of years, generally becomes permanently disabled.

It does not matter so much what sort of a floor is put in, as the care taken of it. Plenty of bedding should be used at all times. If cement is used, roughen it to prevent slipping and crippling.

Worcester County (Mass.) has two dry-farming and irrigation farms, which feed the hordes

BUSINESS OUTLOOK SOMEWHAT BRIGHTER

Sentiment in Financial Circles Improves Noticeably of Late.

New York.—Dun's review of trade says:

"While evidences accumulate of the reactionary trend of business, a disposition is manifest in some quarters to take a more hopeful view of the general outlook. Sentiment in financial circles has improved noticeably of late, and it is significant that a better feeling exists in the Pittsburg district. Reports from that center indicate larger buying of railway equipment than for several months and concessions in prices are of less frequent occurrence, thus suggesting that the bottom point has about been reached.

"Additional encouragement is derived from the facts that the decrease in the unfilled tonnage of the leading interest last month was considerably smaller than anticipated, although restriction of output held the decline in check. Certain other statistics and comparisons for November were not so favorable.

"Failures this week numbered 420 in the United States, against 356 last year, and 46 in Canada, compared with 37 a year ago.

New York.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade says:

"Out of the rather confused reports received this week, there are obtainable items of cheerful import, though the quieting down of some industries has acted as a wet blanket and made further progress. Retail trade is irregularly better as the result of winter weather.

"The advance of the holiday season is felt. The northwest, the southwest and the Pacific note continuance of unseasonable weather conditions.

"Jobbing trade tends to quiet as inventory season approaches at hand Wholesale and far future trade is still under the checkrein of conservatism.

"The financial situation is depressed by the passing of the New Haven dividend and some other stocks have struck the low point of the year, but the belief has been fostered this week that financial affairs abroad are better, developments being the lowering of the German bank rate and the strong position of the Bank of England on increased bullion.

"Business failures for the week were 371, which compares with 281 in 1912.

"Wheat, including flour exports, for the week total 5,501,543 bushels, against 5,632,663 last year."

DOES NOT EXEMPT

SUNDRY CIVIL BILL CLAUSE FAILS TO SAVE LABOR MEN FROM PROSECUTION.

JOHN P. WHITE CASE CITED

President Wilson, Criticised for Signing Measure, Proves He Doesn't Intend It Shall Hamper Department of Justice.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington. — President Wilson, through the department of justice, it is said is going to try to show that there was foundation for the promise made when he signed the sundry civil bill that cases against labor unions accused of violating the Sherman law would be prosecuted even in the face of the exempting clause which was contained in that measure.

There was much criticism of the president's action in signing the bill which contained the clause. It was called class legislation and it also was said that in spirit it was unconstitutional. The letter of the law was made so that it would stand the test of constitutionality.

There are of course all kinds of varying views on the subject of the wisdom and the right of congress to attempt to exempt labor unions and associations of farmers engaged in cooperative work from the action of the Sherman law. President Taft vetoed as one of the last acts of his administration a sundry civil bill which contained the same exemption clause that appears in the present sundry civil bill which President Wilson signed and is now a law. The measure as passed contained this paragraph:

"For the enforcement of the antitrust laws, $300,000; provided, however, that no part of this money shall be spent in the prosecution of any organization or individual for entering into any combination or agreement having in view the increasing of wages, shortening of hours, or bettering the conditions of labor or for any act done in furtherance thereof not in itself unlawful; provided, further, that no part of this appropriation shall be expended for the prosecution of producers of farm products and associations of farmers who co-operate and organize in an effort to and for the purpose of obtaining and maintaining a fair and reasonable price for their products."

Prosecution of John P. White.

Recently Attorney General McReynolds undertook the prosecution of John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers' Union of America, on the charge of conspiring to restrain trade and commerce. Labor colleagues of Mr. White were included in the prosecution, with the United States government as the prosecutor. The funds which were used by attorney general of the White case were not taken from the money provided for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

President Taft was praised for vetoing the appropriation bill which contained the identical clause. After President Wilson who had expressed on many occasions disapproval of class legislation so called signed the bill, the country was surprised, or at any rate manifestations of surprise were in evidence in most of the papers of the country, and were not confined to journals advocating the cause of the Democratic party and standing staunchly in support of the general acts of the administration.

When he signed the bill, President Wilson said: "I can assure the country that this item will neither limit nor in any way embarrass the actions of the department of justice. Other appropriations supply the department with abundant funds to enforce the law. The law will be interpreted in the determination of what the department shall do by independent, and, I hope, impartial judgments as to the true and just meaning of substantive statutes of the United States."

Plan for Alaska Railway.

Almost unquestionably congress is to order the construction by the government of a railroad in Alaska. Uncle Sam will own the railroad after it is built and it may be that he will operate it. In his address to congress when it met in regular session President Wilson recommended that the territorial road should be built and "administered" by the government. "Administered" is taken generally here as in this case being a synonym for "operated."

It is likely that a railroad 400 miles long will be authorized by the expected legislation, and that the law authorizing the road's construction will be so framed as to leave the question of private or government operation to the discretion of the president of the United States.

The chances are that this first venture of Uncle Sam into the railroad ownership field will be made under the guidance of a law framed largely by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon and Delegate Wickersham of Alaska. The plans of these two members of congress differ in parts from each other, but out of the two bills probably will come the legal plan under which the government will go to its building work.

Will Open Up Alaska.

The Alaska railroad bill already prepared and which seems to have President Wilson's approval makes detailed provision for the opening of the interior of Alaska to quick communication with the harbors of the Pacific ocean, so that agriculture, timber, coal and other resources may be developed.

One salient feature of the measure is the extension of the power of the interstate commerce commission to Alaska, coupled with a special provision that the rates for steamship transportation to and from the territory shall be regulated. The assertion is made that water transportation monopoly has been one of the chief causes for the control of Alaska's resources by one great syndicate.

Shuts Out Monopolies.

The contemplated legislation provides for the location of town sites. The acquisition of land for monopoly holdings is prohibited and no person or corporation can acquire land for the purpose of holding it in idleness. The proponents of the measure say that every safeguard has been taken to prevent the exploitation of Alaska for the profit of monopolies, and that the field will be found to be open for "competitive strivings."

Under the terms of the bill the president is authorized at his descretion to take over the holdings of railroads already in operation in Alaska. Any property belonging to the United States now in use in Panama canal construction and which can be of service in Alaska will be transferred from the canal strip to the territory, to be used in railroad building when the engineers on the Canal Zone declare that their work is finished. The financial provisions of the bill instruct the secretary of the treasury to borrow $35,611,000 on the credit of the United States and to issue bonds in the denominations of $100 to $1,000. The sum of $1,000,000 is set aside for administration purposes.

Good Roads Favored.

Before long congress expects a report from its joint committee on federal aid in the construction of post roads. It is believed by the members that legislation for a government appropriation for highway building throughout the country will be made an administration matter, and enacted into law with the sanction of both houses with very few signs of division on party lines. The several states, in order to secure government aid in road building, will be called upon to appropriate their pro rata share of the money.

The joint committee has Jonathan Bourne, Jr., as its chairman. Mr. Bourne is no longer in congress, but he still retains his committee membership. He has formulated his own plans for good roads and his example has been followed by Senator Swanson of Virginia and by Representative Shackleford of Missouri.

The members who have interested themselves in this matter of improved highways have found it exceedingly easy to build good roads on paper, particularly so as the paper used as the paper used as the basis of advance construction has the treasury note formula printed on its face. Money is needed to build good roads, and it is the matter of cash, a lot of cash, which blocks the progress of building and possibly, only possibly, may block the future quick progress of wagons and automobiles. Generally speaking, however, the sentiment for better means of communication through the country is strong in both houses of congress, and the cry of economy will not serve to check the movement.

Bourne's Ambitious Plan.

The plan of former Senator Bourne is ambitious. He would like to have the government issue $1,000,000,000 in bonds, the issue and the sale "not to exceed such amounts as may be necessary from time to time to enable the treasurer of the United States to make payments from the United States highway fund to the several states in accordance with the provisions of this act."

It is a part of Mr. Bourne's plan to have the money accredited to the states in proportion to their total land area, their population, their assessed valuation of taxable property, and the total mileage of public highways. On the basis of appropriations amounting to $1,000,000,000, and provided that all the requirements of the act shall be complied with, the different states will get large sums of money varying of course with the size and wealth of the commonwealths. Illinois, for instance, would get about $40,000,000, while its neighbor state, Missouri, would get about $35,000,000 sums which it would seem would build several miles of fairly good roadway.

What Shackleford Proposes.

Representative Shackleford, who is a member of the joint committee, has allowed some of his views on the subject to be known in advance of the committee's report. He has no such vaulting money-spending ambitions as those which seem to be lodged in Mr. Bourne's head. It is probable that his views more nearly coincide with those of the average member of congress. In truth it is likely that Mr. Shackleford's scheme, which he already has put into bill form, will be found to agree pretty closely with the provisions of the good roads measure as it finally receives the sanction of the two houses.

In the Shackleford bill, in accordance with the state's rights and constitutional method as they appeal to the Democratic mind, the money asked is to be used in the construction and maintenance of rural post roads. New rural post roads generally are the highways of the state, but the fact that Uncle Sam makes no use of them, and that they connect with roads leading into adjoining states, makes the matter doubly safe from the standpoint of the strict constitutionalists, or at any rate the Democrats seem to think so.

An Estimate.

"How much money do you think is on earth?"

"I don't know, but the preachers say there is quite a lot about."

DIVERSIFICATION ON SOUTHERN FARMS

Crops Must Be Diversified to Keep the Money at Home.

BREEDING HORSES AND MULES

Big Key to Agricultural Reform in the South Is More Labor-Saving Machinery on the Farm—Chief Cause of Poverty.

(By G. H. ALFORD.)

We must diversify our crops and keep our money at home to build magnificent homes, churches, school houses, and good roads, and to educate our children and fill our banks to overflowing; keep out of debt and insist on getting all that we buy at the lowest price for cash; increase the fertility of our soils by reducing washing to the minimum, by deep plowing and turning under vegetable matter, a rotation of crops, including leguminous crops, and the addition of barnyard manure and ground phosphate rock; plant the most prolific seed instead of seed that have run out; use economic plants, such as legumes, and small grains and sorghum for feed instead of so much expensive corn; use commercial fertilizers judiciously; drain our lands better; give our soil better preparation and frequent and shallow cultivation, but the use of more horse power is probably the most effective remedy for poverty in the south.

The big key to agricultural reform in the south is more horse power and labor-saving implements on the farm. The average farm worker toils with a small mule or horse, and his total annual income is only about $148. In Iowa, the average farm worker uses nearly four large horses and produces $611.11 annually, exclusive of stock. An analysis of the different states show a much smaller use of power on the southern farms than in any other section of the country, and consequently less use of labor-saving farm implements and correspondingly lower capacity of the farmers.

Probably the chief cause of poverty in the south is the one-horse breaking plow. The small mule and a small turning plow is a guarantee of shallow soil devoid of vegetable matter or humus. A shallow soil devoid of vegetable matter means small crops and poor farmers. The soil should be deep and full of humus in order to increase the storage capacity for water and thereby enable it to hold enough water to carry the crop through the longest drought in the summer though heavily fertilized. We cannot plow deep or turn under the corn and cotton stalks, oat and pea stubble, grass and weeds with a one-horse plow.

Cultivating crops with one-horse plows and one-horse cultivators is a slow process and should not be practiced unless the land is full of roots and stumps. This is an age of labor-saving farm implements, and no farmer can afford to walk down each middle three or four times at each cultivation. The one-row cultivator should be used by every farmer.

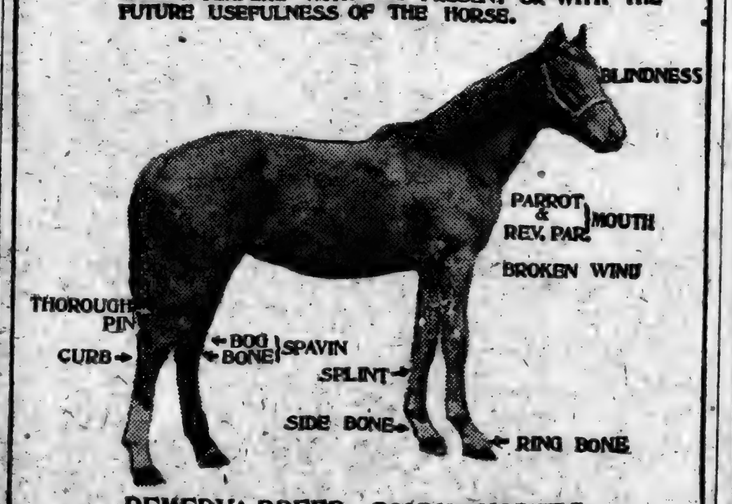
The farmers of the south should raise the necessary horse power. Millions of dollars are leaving the south each year for the purchase of mules and horses. Few small farmers can afford to keep mules and geldings. At least half the work stock on southern farms should be draft mares, actively engaged in heavy work and mule production. It is a great economic waste not to use one or more draft mares on every farm.

The man who employs mules or geldings in farm operations receives in return only their labor. Mares employed for farm work, if intelligently handled, can do all the work that is required and still produce in addition a considerable number of colts, which rapidly develop into marketable animals, thereby adding to the farm income.

It is generally considered that three hundred pounds must be kept by the mare while at work that she can do it well, and the difference in feed cost between a mule and the value of the extra pounds of weight of a good grade of draft mares weighing from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds of fairly good type.

Draft horse sires must not only have weight, but they must possess quality. It has been found that the heavy quality will perform more work with greater ease than will the horse of phlegmatic disposition and temperament. The draft horse that is suited for the south must possess quality. There must be no tendency to coarseness, heavy coats of hair, or sluggish disposition.

The prejudice that exists against the size of the draft horse is not well founded. The Tennessee experiment station uses heavy draft Percheron mares with pronounced success. They perform heavy work at this station and at many farms throughout the entire summer of each year beside small southern-grown horses and mules and without greater discomfort. Aside from being in harness every day, the two mares at the Tennessee station reared a heavy pair of colts that the station refused $400 for when six months old.



The mule is one of the most vital cogs in the industrial, commercial and agricultural progress of the south. It is in consequence of his faithful service that the larger part of corn, rice and cotton, as well as numerous other crops, are produced and transported to market. The mule is without a rival for work in the logging camps, while he excels as a beast of burden in the railroad camps and for trucking and for livery purposes in the cities. He possesses the ability to resist disease and withstand the strain of severe labor on less and poorer feed than the horse. In many lines of work, and particularly those last mentioned, the mule is decidedly superior to the horse, and I have no quarrel with those who claim a mule of proper conformation and quality is more valuable than a horse of equal ers to purchase such draft mares as are suited to southern conditions, but we cannot go north and west and buy such grade draft mares as cheaply as we can grow them. Furthermore, we cannot purchase a sufficient number of draft mares to make much progress within two or three generations.

The colt from a first-class draft sire and one of our small mares will usually weigh from 1,100 to 1,400 pounds. Two or three successive crosses with pure bred draft sires will build this undersized stock up into a

HIGH PRICED ELOQUENCE

Underwood has never prostituted his eloquence to the sordid uses of the Chautauqua platform, for a paltry two hundred dollars a night. The conversational style of oratory, coupled with the button-hole form of address, is the peculiar kind most eagerly sought after by the Wall street and liquor interests, and they are willing to "give a million a minute, with all expenses paid." Meanwhile, the avarice of such men as Bryan and Hobson is the reproach of present day public life. At their own charges they have proclaimed purity in politics upon the hustings until they have made the glad tidings so popular that lecture bureaus are forced to pay for it in order to meet the general clamor. By the way, we have an indistinct recollection of once hearing that Mr. Bryan was a man of "irredescent dreams!" He dreamed of work until he got his hands on the tools and now he works.

HOBSON'S ENEMIES BEING THE JUDGES

Hobson's enemies have suddenly developed a very philanthropic attitude toward his campaign. The Birmingham News is afraid that he will "dig his own grave with his tongue" and all the whiskey papers seem afraid to report his speeches correctly lest they should thus do great injury to his cause. They are frequntly prompted by their feelings of charity to misquote his words, and to misrepresent the ovations accorded to him by the best people in the state and nation, wherever he appears. Mr. Underwood himself, in the kindness of his great heart has gone so far as to interrupt Mr. Hobson on the floor of the house to say: "When the gentleman attempts to inflict a personal issue here, he injures his own cause in the estimation of many of his own people." They all insist that Hobson has long since killed himself, and yet they are vigilantly standing ground to keep his corpse from committing suicide! When Hobson recognizes in Congress the issue which Underwood sprung there, in claiming the nomination for the senate at the hands of the administration, Mr. Underwood who had appealed to Cœsar now shrinks from appearing in Rome, and says: "I hopc for the balance of the time that we are engaged in a personal political conflict, that he (Hobson) will let it be foughf out in the field of politics, and let us devotc our time here to the discussion of public business."

CHRISTMAS

Christmas is a festival which celebrates the birth of Christ. It brings to our minds the greatest of all mysteries—the incarnation. God became man. It should make us think too well of ourselves to do wrong, and it should make us think so well of our fellow men as to serve them in every possible way. Man was created in God's immage, and now since his fall, and in order to his recovery, the eternal "Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." When we allow our thoughts to dwell upon man s present weaknesses of character, and the pernicious tendencies which we discover in his life, a cloud comes over our hopes, and our hearts sicken at the dark destiny that confronts him. The only remedy for this pessimistic frame of mind, is to take a scriptural view of man which is presented as "glad tidings of great joy." The gospel does not deny, but it emphasizes man's depravity. However, it presents at the same time another and a brighter side of the picture. It sets over against what man is, what he was in his origin, and what he may become by reformation, regeneration and fidelity. Man's unworthiness of character is completely eclipsed by the glorious possibilities of his destiny, and the deep-seated consciousness of this fact is an important element in that "faith which works by love," and "overcometh the world." With such soul-stirring thoughts as these in mind, we shall do nothing and say nothing during this season which will offend God, or injure man.

The value of Christ's death is based upon the nature of his birth. It is because he is the God-man that he is able to make an atonement. Uniting in himself the human and divine natures, he possesses the power to reconcile God and man, through the mysteries of the cross. It is there that the profoundest principles of philosophy meet and mingle with the hum-drum details of every day, practical life, so that the one is simplified and explained, and the other is transformed and glorified by the union. In such fashion the eternal Truth actually becomes part of our natures, and we become incarnations of the divine, and also revelations to ourselves. This is self respect in its highest reaches.

RUINED AGAIN

As soon as it was announced that the administration would give relief to the people, by taking over the lines of the telephone trust, rather than contend with Wooddy, bent on having his predestined way, the telephone and telegraph people proceeded to disolve their trust voluntarily. They went further, and offer their lines to the people's independent companies for long distance use. Chilton county people will soon be able to talk with New York from their own homes. So, again the country is ruined, Cuss Woodrow some more.

OUR RURAL SCHOOLS

We need to do a great deal for our rural schools within the next few years. Immediately after the Civil war, and during reconstruction days, the "carpet baggers" and "scalawags" who comprised our legislature, voted bonds and franchises to railroads, and stole the very hinges off of the temple of liberty. They placed a debt on the people of Alabama that exceeds the taxable value of all our property. The gaunt wolf of [illegible] did not stop at our doors, but went through our homes, and emptied our larders and our cupboard. As soon as the respectable white people of the state could get control of our state government, they framed a constitution which put it beyond the reach of any future legislature to make a corrupt use of their taxing power, and in doing so they [illegible] so far as voting school money was concerned. The time has now come to change that constitution, as our state government can never again pass into the [illegible] such a gang of thieves as we had during republican rule in this state. When our legislature meets again they will call a convention which will give to our people the power to promote local taxes sufficient for their own educational necessities, and then our rural schools will meet the growing needs of our rural [illegible]. In the meantime, the [illegible] languishing country schools [illegible] of every ignorant country child cries to heaven against the ruthless robbers that fattened upon their patrimony forty-five years ago. Verily, "when the wicked bear rule the people mourn."

There is one more thing to which the Press wishes to call the attention of our board of revenue whose progressive policy has broken all records. We understand that Mr. W. H. HIGH PRICED ELOQUENCE

Underwood has never prostituted his eloquence to the sordid uses of the Chautauqua platform, for a paltry two hundred dollars a night. The conversational style of oratory, coupled with the button-hole form of address, is the peculiar kind most eagerly sought after by the Wall street and liquor interests, and they are willing to "give a million a minute, with all expenses paid." Meanwhile, the avarice of such men as Bryan and Hobson is the reproach of present day public life. At their own charges they have proclaimed purity in politics upon the hustings until they have made the glad tidings so popular that lecture bureaus are forced to pay for it in order to meet the general clamor. By the way, we have an [illegible] recollection of [illegible] Mr. [illegible] cash [illegible]

OUR COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL A FACT

At Saturday's meeting the Board of Revenue voted the $4,000 asked for, to aid in building a county high school for Chilton county.

FARM WORK

It will soon be too late for deep plowing, as the winter rains should settle the groun.J for a good firm seed bed. Stalks and other vegetation should be turned under now, as they add greatly to soil fertility, as well as to its mechanical excellence. Land that is full of decaying vegetable matter possesses a granular structure, which resists drouth, and at the same time, yields the highest percentage of plant food to the spreading rootlets. A soil that abounds in plant food may fail to produce good crops because of its defective mechanical condition, while another soil comparatively poor may prove more productive if filled with vegetable mould. If the materials for the production of humus are buried deep at this season of the year, they deepen and greatly promote the productivity of the soil.

Deep plowing will enable your land to absorb the water soon to fall upon it, and store it away as a source upon which the thirsty plants may draw next July and August.

Then if you will plant "on the level" and cultivate first with a weeder, and then with the harrow, both for corn and cotton, you will have your crop half made before the grass gets started, and before you undertake the laborious and expensive work of the regular cultivating implements.

TO THE TEACHERS OF THE COUNTY

I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are 18 libraries available for the rural schools of Chilton County this year.

Now, it lies in reach of every teacher to obtain one for your community and it devolves upon you as a duty, to put forth an effort to secure one of these libraries.

The schools that have already gotten a library have received great benefits from it and it is a chance whereby we can better our schools to place a library in every district in our county.

The first year every library was taken, but last year a few went lacking, Let the teachers of the county see to it that every one is taken up this year. You cannot serve your people in a better way. Only think, you can secure $30.00 worth of good useful books for only $10. Go to work and get one for your school.

Write to the State Secretary of the Reading Circle for suggestions on raising the funds.

Very truly,
Cecil E. Harris,
Pres. Co. Reading Circle.

This is a vital matter. This circle was founded by Dr. Thach, and fostered and promoted by Prof. Glenn. It is a boon to any community to have the use of a library which has been selected by experts with the good of the community definitely in view. Life is too short to miss an opportunity such as this, and no teacher worthy of the name will neglect this call.

GOVERNOR'S STAFF SUED BY BRICKELL

STATE NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR EXPENSES OF STAFF MEMBERS AT INAUGURATION.

STATE CAPITAL HAPPENINGS

Doings in and Around the State House Chronicled for Our Readers.

—Montgomery.

Alleging that the State of Alabama was not responsible for expenses of the staff of Governor O'Neal while they were in attendance on the inauguration of President Wilson at Washington, March 4, last, Attorney General Robert C. Brickell has entered suit against ten of the members to recover money paid for this purpose. The suits will aggregate $700 and $383.75 is sought of Montgomery staff members, in suits filed in the City Court here.

Suits against the following Montgomery members of the staff were filed here: Colonel James S. Pinckard, $50.45; Colonel Louis S. Betty, $82.15; General Joseph B. Scully, $76.40; Colonel Everett H. Jackson, $86.30, and Colonel George W. Covington, $88.45.

Similar suits against the following members will also be brought in their respective counties: J. T. Reeder and R. L. Glenn, of Florence; W. J. Vaiden, of Uniontown; Hector D. Lane, of Courtland; Gardner Green, of Pell City, and Judge C. E. Thomas, of Prattville.

The suits charged that although the warrants were issued by the State Auditor and approved by the Governor, the State is not liable for these expenses and the monies should be returned.

Shortage of $8,207 Alleged.

W. E. Harrison, former treasurer of Shelby County, is due that county a total of $2,207 because of alleged discrepancies in his accounts, according to a report filed in the office of Governor O'Neal, by J. L. Foster, examiner of Public Accounts. Of the total amount due the county $902 is due because Mr. Harrison failed to charge himself properly with certain items, $1,329 is due because of illegal interest warrants paid by Mr. Harrison and $6,076 is due because he took credit for sundry items and failed to produce vouchers showing payment, according to the report of the Examiner.

Accounts of four other Shelby County officials were found to be correct by Examiner Foster. These were Probate Judge A. P. Lognshore, W. L. Farley, former treasurer of the county school funds; J. S. Pitts, former tax assessor, and G. W. Greene, former tax collector.

Concerning the discrepancies of the accounts of former Treasurer Harrison, the Examiner said:

"The examination shows that Mr. Harrison was exceedingly careless in the administration of the financial affairs of the county, in that he failed to pay over to his successor, Hon. J. S. Bird, the correct amount of money as shown by his own accounting; that he failed to charge himself properly with some items paid him by the tax collector of the county; that he has illegally paid warrants issued for interest by the board of revenue and has taken credit for numerous vouchers which he has failed to produce and has in very many instances mixed his accounts of the various funds of the county which he is required to keep separate.

On account of the times which he failed to charge himself properly with and pay over to his successor, he is due the county the sum of $902.77.

"On account of the illegal interest warrants which he paid he is due the county the sum of $1,329.26.

"On account of the sundry items for which he had taken credit and failed to produce vouchers showing payment he is due the county the sum of $6,076.04."

New Company Admitted.

Application of the new military company at Alabama City for admission into the 4th Regiment of Infantry of the Alabama National Guard has been approved by Adjutant General J. B. Scully, who has detailed Major N. S. Walker to muster the new company into the service. General Scully has instructed Captain M. H. Jordan, of the medical corps, to conduct the physical examination of the members of the new company. About ninety names were signed to the application for admission.

Sartain Wins Out.

Charles R. Sartain, republican, will continue to hold the office of judge of probate of Walker county. The supreme court refused to grant the application for rehearing of a contest case instituted by James W. Shephard, democrat, whom Sartain defeated in 1910.

The case came to the supreme court on appeals two times, and one time on an application for rehearing. Sartain has been exercising the functions of the office since soon after Receipts of State Treasurer.

Total receipts of the state treasurer during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1913, were $6,551,044.44, and total disbursements were $6,451,776.90, according to the annual report of John Purifoy, state treasurer, made public. The receipts include a balance of $262,052.38 carried over from the year before and $100,000 borrowed by the governor, and the disbursements include $100,000 which was returned by the governor.

Treasurer Purifoy's report was prepared several weeks ago, but was submitted to the printer immediately, and he refused to make it public until it had been placed in book form. Statements of the daily condition of the treasury, giving total receipts and disbursements for each month, show that for the months of January, February and March the disbursements greatly exceed any other three months of the year," said Mr. Purifoy in his letter to the governor.

"This condition was caused by the taking up of hypothecated warrants held by banks amounting to $983,873.20; the payment of the warrant drawn in favor of the treasurer on December 1, 1912, for interest on the public debt due January 1, 1912, amounting to $178,725, and paid during the month of January, and a note for $100,000 paid February 18, 1913, in favor of the First National Bank, Birmingham, making a total outstanding on January 1, 1913, of $1,262,578.20, in addition to the warrants issued for current expenses during that period."

Alabama's total bonded indebtedness at the end of the year was $9,057,000. Class A renewal bonds are valued at $7,137,000; Class C renewal bonds $954,000. The annual interest is $357,450.

Feagin Compiles School Statistics.

That interest in the work done by the county high schools of the State is growing rapidly is shown by figures compiled by W. F. Feagin, State Superintendent of Education, which show that the number of pupils registered in the schools for the first five months of this school year is 3,941 as compared with 3,668 for the whole term last year.

In the schools which offer seventh grade work the number of pupils has dropped this year to 732 compared with 910 last year. This is a healthy sign, according to Mr. Feagin, because it shows that the pupils are remaining in their home schools to take the seventh grade work.

In all there are 4,673 pupils in the high schools of the State. These schools receive $3,000 each year from the State. There are fifty schools, twenty-six of which have the seventh year work.

In Mr. Feagin's list the Blount County High School leads with 152 pupils. This school does not offer the seventh grade work. Of the schools offering the seventh grade work the Lauderdale County High School leads with 163 pupils. Cleburne county has the smallest number of pupils in its high school with forty-one.

These figures were presented to the county high school principals, who met in Montgomrey December 22nd.

Warning Against Damaged Corn.

Warnings to grain dealers against receiving shipments of damaged corn have been sent out by C. H. Billingsley, State Pure Food and Drug Clerk. Mr. Billingsley has discovered that several big grain companies have been shipping damaged corn into this State and during the week he condemned four car loads that were received in Montgomery.

By shipping corn which is not wholesome the dealers violate the State pure food laws and unless they desist in the practice they will be prosecuted, according to Mr. Billingsley.

State Department Takes in $324,245.

Receipts of the office of Secretary of Staate Cyrus B. Brown amounted to $324,245 during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1913, according to J. F. Gorman, Examiner of Public Accounts, who filed a report in the office of Governor O'Neal. It covered his examination of the books and accounts of the Department of State. The receipts this year are greater than the receipts of last year by $15,125. The expenses of the department for the year amounted to $12,137, an increase of $2,227 over last year.

Railroad Commission Upheld.

The state law empowering the railroad commission to require carriers to build and maintain adequate depots was upheld firmly by the supreme court in overruling the application for rehearing in the case of the railroad commission vs. the Alabama Great Southern railroad, appealed from the Birmingham city court. In this case the Alabama Great Southern, the Southern, and Louisville & Nashville resisted an order of the commission for the defendants to establish a union station at Bessemer.

AFTER JUSTICES OF PEACE

Impeachment of Two Guardians of Peace Recommended by Grand Jury.

Birmingham.—The grand jury of the September term of the Jefferson County Criminal Court in its final report recommended impeachment proceedings against Walter C. Agee, chairman of the Excise Commission of Jefferson County, alleging he converted to his own use money paid him month by month by the treasurer of the Jefferson County Law Enforcement Association, composed of liquor dealers, for detective hire and the moral turpitude connected with said conversion of said money.

Impeachment proceedings were also recommended against Henry P. Berry and R. H. Matthews, justices of peace in the county.

Berry, there are sixteen specifications, charging unlawful issuing of warrants, the issuing of garnishment for less than $5, the taking of $10 and other things.

HEALTH CAMPAIGN CLOSES.

Was Very Successful and a New Record Established.

Tuscaloosa.—The health campaign which has been conducted in Tuscaloosa county for the past 10 weeks under the direction of the state department of health came to a close and a new record for the state was established in the fight now being made on the hookworm. During the campaign 4,604 people were examined and 1,120 were found to be infected and received treatment. The largest number ever examined in any previous county campaign was 3,113, in Walker county.

One of the surprising features of the campaign was the large number of students and city people found to be infected. An examination was made of most of the school children and university students and the percentage of infection was almost as high as in the rural districts.

Troy.—The Atlantic Coast Line and Central of Georgia Railways have filed with the Alabama Railway Commission plans for the new union station here. The location is moved across the Coast Line track and will be adjoining the Government building, only an alley separating them. The Central track will be moved over nearer the Coast Line track, both tracks lying east of the station. The plans show a much larger building, but no sheds to protect passengers as they board the trains.

Birmingham.—Thomas A. Duncan, better known as Teck A. Duncan, who confessed to the assassination of Felix J. Ellard at Lewisburg, Beat 22, last year and was serving a life sentence at Wetumpka, died there following a brief illness of pneumonia. He was buried in the Mount Olive cemetery, near Coalburg.

A more unusual finale to life has seldom been experienced than that of Teck Duncan. The last ten years of his 36 were full of intense excitement. Murder was mixed up in his career in more ways than one, and while he admitted that human blood was on his hands, there are many who believe that the actual crime for which society demanded that he be incarcerated was not committed by him. Other deeds, of lesser offense than murder, also came into his career, and a review of his last ten years would have been the basis for a great story.

Duncan claimed the honor of bringing about the revelation of the horrible conditions that existed for years in what has become famous as Bloody Beat 22, which resulted in the hanging of three men, the locking up for short and long periods of many men on charges of murder and other offenses.

He furnished much of the evidence that started the accusations against Walter and Arthur Jones and Will Watson, who gave up their lives in expiation of their crimes on the gallows in the jail yard here. The horrible conditions in Beat 22 came to a climax in the assassination of Felix J. Ellard, who was driving along the Lewisburg road, en route home, when he was shot. Teck Duncan and Henry Cole was arrested in connection with the assassination.

Cole died suddenly in the county jail, and Duncan was tried and convicted and given a life sentence. Then he made a confession. His troubles did not cease, for while at work in the mines near Belle Ellen he lost a hand by a premature explosion of powder. Then he was returned to Wetumpka, where the monotonous life was wearing on his turbulent spirit.

During the great miners' strike in this district he figured prominently, and is said to have made some of the best and longest shots in firing on mine officials and those men who had refused to quit work.

TO HAVE FOREST RESERVE.

President Withdraws 1,600 Acres of Alabama Land for Neucius.

Washington. — The Appalachian National forrestry officials are about to establish under the Weeks law a new purchase are a national forest in Alabama. With that in view the president has withdrawn from entry some 16,000 acres of the 200,000 of public land in Alabama and set it aside as neucius for the new forest.

The land is located in Lawrence and Winston counties on the watershed of the Black Warrior river. This plan is expected to be ratified by the national forest reservation commission at an early meeting. The new forest will be situated at the extreme southern end of the Cumberland plateau. Land adjacent to the public land withdrawn will be purchased under the Weeks law until a good sized forest reserve is created.

SERIOUS REPRIMAND FOR CARABAO ORDER

PRESIDENT EXPRESSES IMPATIENCE WITH SATIRES ON HIS POLICIES.

LETTER IS MADE PUBLIC

"Loyalty Should Be Above All Effervescences of Childish Wit."

Washington.—The President made public a letter addressed to Secretaries Garrison and Daniels, respectively, requesting that a very serious reprimand be administered to those United States army and navy officers who participated in the recent dinner of the military order of Carabao, at which the administration Philippine's and other policies were satrized.

The letter follows:

"The officers who were responsible for the program of the evening are certainly deserving of a very serious reprimand, which I hereby request be administered, and I cannot rid myself of a feeling of great disappointment that the general body of officers assembled at the dinner should have greeted the carrying out of such a program with apparent indifference to the fact that it violated some of the most dignified and sacred traditions of the service.

"I am told that the songs and other amusements of the evening were intended and were regarded as fun provoking. What are we to think of officers of the army and navy of the United States who think it funny to bring their official superiors into ridicule, and the policies of the government which they are sworn to serve with unquestioning loyalty into contempt?

"If this is their idea of fun, what is their idea of duty?

"If they do not hold their loyalty above all silly effervescences of childish wit, what about their profession they most hold sacred?

"My purpose, therefore, in administering this reprimand is to recall the men who are responsible for this lowering of standards to their ideals; to remind them of the high conscience with which they ought to put duty above personal indulgence and to think of themselves as responsible men and trusted soldiers, even while they are amusing themselves as diners out. Sincerely yours.

"WOODROW WILSON."

Secretaries Garrison and Daniels decided to administer the reprimand by transmitting a copy of the President's letter to each member of the entertainment committee.

Secretary Garrison immediately sent this memorandum to Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army:

"It is hereby ordered that the officers of the United States army who were on the dinner committee, and were, therefore, responsible for the program of entertainment at the recent dinner of the military order of the Carabao, held December 11, 1913, be reprimanded in pursuance of the communication of the President to me dated December 22, 1913, copy herewith. The form that the reprimand should take should be to furnish to each of said officers a copy of the letter from the President."

MEXICAN BANK CLOSES DOORS.

Huerta Signs Decree Deeming Action Necessary to Protect Institution.

Mexico City.—The Bank of London and Mexico closed its doors.

Bank officials were unable to secure cash with which to pay depositors and were forced to suspend.

The bankers here generally agree in the opinion that the institution is solvent and the closing may be only temporary.

Provisional President Huerta says in the decree he deems such action necessary to protect the bank until public confidence is more nearly restored. By the decree the bank is absolved from meeting any obligation until January 2. It applies to all banking houses, whether a bank of issue or not.

DEMANDS FROM THE RAILROADS WIDEN

Christmas Sales Compare Favorably With the Year Previous.

New York. — R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly trade review says:

With the approach of the yearly inventory period a general slowing down of business is to be looked for, yet more than seasonable quietness now prevails both in commercial and industrial channels.

Christmas sales compare fairly well with those of one year before, although the activity is not widespread.

Although the running schedule of steel mills is liable to be reduced before the year-end, producers seem to be more confident as to the outlook in the competitive race.

Demand from the railroads is widening and there has recently been some large buying of pig iron, hence the situation appears more encouraging and producers are less inclined to grant concessions in price.

The final government estimates of agricultural resources this year indicate that a vast amount of new wealth has been created by the soil notwithstanding the decline in the yield of some crops, higher prices more than offsetting the loss in production.

Failures this week numbered 416 in the United States, against 353 last year, and 35 in Canada compared with 47 one year before.

New York. — Bradstreet's review of trade says:

Retail and holiday business holds the center of the stage, while wholesale trade and industry tend to quiet downward tendency. Sales are in from the road, inventories will soon demand attention and jobbing trade affected by backward demand at retail caused by prolonged mild weather.

Outdoor activities are naturally slackening and the aggregate number of idle hands is larger than at any previous date this year, but in some instances pessimism seems to have outrun knowledge of actuality, and something akin to a reaction from the blue-tinged type of reports is in evidence in a few lines of trade.

A rather better feeling has developed, as, for instance, in some branches of the iron trade and pig iron sales being quotable larger.

Business failures for the week were 878, which compares with 233 in 1912. Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week total 6,964,102 bushels, against 6,697,540 last year.

Deering Fortune $13,000,000.

Chicago.—The will of William Deering, the harvester manufacturer, which is ready to be filed for probate, provides for bequests to members of his family totalling between $12,000,000 and $13,000,000. A list of charitable gifts already made totaled more than $1,200,000.

CHANCE FOR WOMEN

CONGRESS MAY HEAR THEM IF IT HAS TIME TO CARRY OUT PLATFORM PLEDGES.

MUCH NOW ACCOMPLISHED

Democrats Are Likely to Follow Up Their Anti-Trust Legislation With Some Law Directed Against High Cost of Living.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—It is probable that a report soon will be made to President Wilson by the Democratic leaders in house and senate in order that he may know with something like definiteness how long it will take, with his "one thing at a time" intention, to secure everything which his party pledged itself and him to secure if the people should give them commissions to legislate for four years. Although the Democrats under the Wilson guidance have refused to bunch legislation, they have accomplished considerable already, but whether the accomplishment has been for good or for ill of course there has not yet been time enough to determine.

When the suffragists called at the White House and President Wilson in effect told them that he could not say anything to congress about their case, because it was not mentioned either approvingly or disapprovingly in the Democratic platform, he made it plain that he intends to stick to the Baltimore platform and not to depart from its advice and its recommendations unless necessities so shape themselves that he must. With all the signs that are in view it seems likely, however, in the face of the president's attitude, towards the suffragists, that if the really big things of Democratic promise can be put on the law books the women will be given their day in the court of congress before this administration is eighteen months older.

First the Trust Problem.

It is probable that the president's message or rather his address to congress on the trust problem, will be delivered some time in the second week of January. Then the approval of committees must be given to the anti-trust legislation and the subject must be debated in house and senate. From what men of all parties say about it, it seems likely that a month and a half of winter and as much of the glad spring will pass before the president will get a chance to sign the bill which will "make guilt personal" and will make certain that the "big fellows go to jail."

If the Sherman law is bulwarked with Democratic legislation by April 15, there will be time enough left for the Democrats to take up one or two other matters of platform promises and to put them in fulfillment shape. As soon as anti-trust matters are out of the way the Democrats intend to authorize the building of a government railroad in Alaska.

In checking up the plank of the Democratic platform of 1912, it is found that accomplishment marks already have been placed by the Democrats against the tariff reform plank, the income tax and popular election of senators planks, campaign contributions, physical valuation of railroads and banking legislation. If congress shall sit until June it is probable that in addition to anti-trust and Alaska legislation, a rural credit system will be established, that some provision will be made for the control of the Mississippi river and that something will be done with the party's promise of an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose to recognize the independence of the Philippine Islands.

High Cost of Living.

The second plank in the Democratic platform is recognized by every member of congress, Democrat, Republican and Progressive, as being the most important one from the people's point of view in the whole legislative pronouncement. It is entitled "The High Cost of Living." From time to time individual Democrats, acting however without party authority, have introduced into house and senate bills and resolutions of various kinds looking to a reduction in the cost of food, clothing, household goods and other things usually accounted necessaries. Some of these bills and resolutions have been of the freak kind and no serious attention has been paid to them.

The leaders of the Democratic party promised that the tariff would reduce the cost of living. Prices have not yet come down, but the plea is made that the law has not yet been in effect long enough to produce results. In the Democratic platform it was said that the trusts and commercial conspiracies also acted to keep up the high price of living. An anti-trust law will be passed this winter and then the Democrats apparently expect that this law with the tariff law will bring "the price bird off its roost."

It is becoming evident, however, from the unrest among some of the Democrats that an attempt of some kind will be made to supplement the anti-trust law with some other kind of a law which may act directly to reduce the cost of things which men, women and children must have in order to live. In brief the Democrats still regard the high cost of living problem as the one great problem to be solved in order to make certain the continuance of the party in power.

Excited Over Precedence Dispute.

Take currency legislation, anti-trust problems, government built railroads, independence for the Filipinos, Mexico and half a dozen other things which have been centers for public attention recently, roll them together in one bundle, and the combination will not hold half the interest for senators and members of the house of representatives that today is held by the small, but compact bundle containing the question "Who shall precede?" at the social affairs in the nation's capital?

When the personal element tinctured with a little of the essence of jealousy and a good deal of the essence of pride, enters into a thing it has a more heart-burning interest than anything political or legislative. The senators of the United States are declaring that they should walk ahead of the cabinet officers at all the official and semi-official receptions and gatherings of any kind which are held in Washington. If the senators gain their point it will mean that as guests of honor at purely private functions also they will have "higher seats" than the cabinet officers.

Sees Usurpation by Cabinet.

One of the senators maintains that the cabinet has been put ahead of the senate in the line of precedence and prominence because of the assumption of power in legislative matters by cabinet officers to which they have neither a constitutional nor a personal right. This senator says that in the last few years members of the cabinet have attempted to influence legislation and that in some cases they have succeeded, and that for this reason they seem to think that they are greater than the members of the legislative body.

Others do not look upon the matter in this light, but say that the cabinet members have taken precedence in social affairs and in semi-official affairs because they are members of the president's official family, and therefore are supposed to be as close to his person in the social line as they are in the daily business line. Whatever it is, it is certain that cabinet officers by custom are given the right of way, and now senators are trying to get it away from them.

Nobody yet knows how this matter is to be settled. The chances are, however, that the cabinet officers will continue to lead because of their position relative to that of the president of the United States.

Insular Policy to Be Attacked.

When the Democrats take up legislation looking to giving freedom to the Filipinos, or take up in fact any Philippine legislation, it is believed to be the intention of the Republicans and of some Progressive members not only to attack the island policy of the administration, but to take President Wilson to task for his utterance in his message on former methods of government in Porto Rico and the Philippines.

Former President Taft has defended the course of this government in the Philippines and has inveighed against the proposal of the Democrats to give the islanders independence in short order. Dean C. Worcester, formerly a member of the Philippine commission, and who was in the islands in an official capacity for 11 years, it is expected will attack the Democratic plan and give answer to President Wilson's words in lectures which he expects to deliver throughout the country this winter.

Lively Row May Result.

It is altogether probable that if the Republicans and Progressives move to the attack on the administration, Mr. Wilson and the Democratic leaders in house and senate will be prepared for defense, but the opposition says that the reports of work in the Philippines and Porto Rico turned in by officials, both Democrats and Republicans, show that every effort has been made in the islands to bring progress in the government and in the betterment of the people, and that the results will prove that the presidential criticism is unfounded and unjust. It looks as if there might be a lively row on island matters before spring.

Men opposed politically to the present administration are pointing to the reports of the chiefs of the bureau of insular affairs as proof that the islands are progressing and that American domination has done much for them. Brig. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, who formerly was chief of the bureau of insular affairs, was an appointee and a strong personal friend of President Taft. The man who succeeded him in office, Brig. Gen. Frank McIntyre, United States army, is an Alabaman and a Democrat. General McIntyre's reports on island conditions show progress and apparently good government. It is probable that this Democratic official's report will be used largely by the critics of the words the president used in his message.

A curious case comes from Belgium. Two Englishmen have been arrested in Brussels charged with the practice of bruising their arms to imitate the marks of horses' teeth, and then of claiming compensation by alleging that the bites were made by horses left standing in the street.

SOUTH WINS FIRST HONORS

Harrison of Southern Praises Boys and Girls Who Set Record in Corn and Tomato Yields.

Washington.—Commenting on the statement issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, showing the results attained by the boys and girls who won prizes in the Boys' Corn Clubs and Girls' Canning Clubs in their respective states in the season of 1913, President Harrison, of the Southern Railway Company, said today:

"While the work done by the boys and girls in all of the states was remarkable, it is very gratifying to note that first honors, both in the Boys' Corn Clubs and the Girls' Canning Clubs, went to states traversed by the lines of the Southern Railway system. The wonderful record made by Jerry Moore, of South Carolina, who grew 228.75 bushels of corn on a single acre in 1910, directed attention to the great advantages of the Southeastern States as a corn-growing locality. Now comes Walker Lee Dunson, of Alabama, with a record of 232.7 bushels on a single acre, setting a new mark for the members of the Boys' Corn Clubs throughout the United States. The superiority of the Southeast for corn production is demonstrated not only by Walker Dunson's remarkable record, but also by the fact that the yields obtained by the prize-winning boys in each of the states of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Tennessee exceeded the highest yield obtained by any boy in a Northern or Western state.

"No less remarkable than the record made by Walker Dunson in the corn club work was that made by Miss Clyde Sullivan, of Georgia, who grew 5,354 pounds of tomatoes on a tenth of an acre, surpassing by 1,374 pounds the highest record made by any girl in the North or West. Other Southeastern girls did remarkably well, notably Miss Lizzie Kelley, of South Carolina, with a record of 4,375 pounds on a tenth of an acre.

"Taken as a whole, the records of the Southeastern boys and girls demonstrate the superior agricultural and horticultural advantages of the Southeastern States, not only for purely Southern crops, such as cotton and early fruits and vegetables, but also for crops which are usually associated in the public mind with the North and West. They demonstrate that the states south of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers and east of the Mississippi offer unsurpassed advantages for the man seeking to engage in profitable diversified agriculture."

NEGRO SCHOOL TO BE REBUILT

Fire Loss to Athens Institution Last Week Was $10,000.

Athens.—Plans for rebuilding the Trinity School brick building, which was destroyed here last week by fire, were completed by H. P. Douglass of New York, Educational Secretary of the Congregational Church, under whose auspices the school is conducted. Loss in the fire was approximately $10,000. The school will be rebuilt on the same plans and on the ground where the old building stood.

Trinity School is an institution for negroes, it having about 250 students.

Dinner Evidently Was a Success.

The Ladies' Aid of Buffalo gave a big chicken pie dinner at the sale in Shiell's hall last Saturday. There was a large attendance and the whole affair was a success. The ladies know that advertising pays, and they patronized the pages of the Review liberally with their announcements. The women that made the chicken pies were on the job with both feet and their hats on and the fried cake and bean artists produced an article that tasted more ish. There was a big bunch of youngsters present and when they got action on the chicken pie and other "fixens" the food disappeared like water down a badger hole. The financial end of the dinner produced the sum of $165.50 in cash. There is no disputing the fact that when the Ladies' Aid of Buffalo squares away to do things they do them.—Buffalo (Mont.) Review.

Sorting the Twins.

Twin brothers who have been called up for service in a Paris regiment are so alike that it is impossible to distinguish between them. The other day one of the pair was confined to barracks, but, by changing his cap, with its regimental number, for that of his brother, the defaulter was able to pass the guard with impunity whenever he wished to go out.

The colonel of the regiment has now issued the following order: "The soldier Bonhomme (even number) will wear his hair as long as the regulations, construed with the utmost leniency, will allow, and will shave his beard and moustache. The soldier Bonhomme (odd number) will allow his beard and moustache to grow full and will have his hair regularly cut as closely as possible by the regimental barber."—Daily Mail.

Lauretta, Manitoba. — Canadian Northern train from Duluth, Minn., was derailed near here and five coaches and a baggage and dining car overturned into the ditch. The wreckage caught fire, but the 200 passengers escaped through broken windows, scratched and bruised, and helped extinguish the flames. A brakeman had his skull fractured. Three coaches were destroyed. A relief train took the passengers to Winnipeg.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR STATE SENATOR.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the Senate of Alabama from the the Fifteenth district, composed of the counties of Chilton, Shelby and Autauga, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

W. W. Wallace.

Prof. A. A. Persons is a candidate for State Commissioner of Agriculture. He is a practical and scientific farmer, and the best man in the race, by far.

We infer that the esteemed Geiger Times is to become a daily, and to be greatly enlarged in size, as it has begun to correct the misstatements made by the whiskey press in regard to Hobson.

The administration's currency bill passed the Senate by a majority of twenty, being supported by a good number of republicans and all the democrats. "Peace on earth, and good will among men."

If our rural schools had the money which has been thrown away by the poor people of the county upon the gambling schemes and the low-flung vulgar shows at our county Fairs for some years past, our children would be in better condition to profit by the recent appearance of the new high school.

The crowd now trying to convince us that Underwood's senatorial campaign is not financed by liquor and Wall street, are the very same crowd who once actually persuaded us that Underwood's presidential campaign was not financed by Ryan, using Ryan's $35,000 to buy the newspaper space through which we were persuaded. "They can fool some of the people all of the time."

Senator Bankhead denies that Hobson voted for an anti-prohibitionist when he voted for him, still the whiskey papers go on saying that Hobson voted anti when he voted for Bankhead in preference to White. It is part of the plan to frighten facts off the field of discussion in Alabama.

Those who imagine themselves to be Bryan and Wilson democrats should compare their own views with those of these two statesmen touching the nomination of U. S. Senators by vote of the United States Congress. Mr. Bryan doubtless had these things in mind when in his speech the other day before the National Popular Government League at Washington, he said: "I'd rather trust the people than to have any group of men tell them what questions should be acted upon and how."

From the Opp Messenger.

A TRIFLE TESTY.

A preacher is now editor of the Clanton Press. Success to the parson, and may his religion stand the test—Opp Messenger. It's the acid test all right.—Andalusia Star. Likewise the "test of steel" (pens) —Scottsboro Age.

This welcome to the tripod appears a little testy, but we understand and freely forgive the craft. There is not such a great difference between the preacher and the newspaper editor after all. To each the devil is accustomed to work for for nothing and board himself while promoting every noble enterprise.—Clanton Press.

The above response to the testy welcome is not quoted from the Clanton Press, but from the Andalusia Star's misquotation, which perverts our meaning. We fear fear that the Messenger is growing "Doty at the heart."

High society at Washington which has usually amused itself by frolicking with the inmates of the White House, is passing thro' a lonesome season. The Wilsons won't permit wine in their home, and refuse to have the customary New Year's functions. The President and his family all seem to be busy serving their fellow men, and setting a good example. You must do likewise to be a good Wilson democrat.

Action

To progress there must be action.

The earth, a mere ant hill in the planetary system, is ever in action, revolving on its axis. The sea, more restless than a guilty conscience, is ever responding to wind and tide. The heart and blood of men, women and children, animals, fowls and fish must be constantly in action for them to live.

Action—constant action—was ordained by the Divine.

Baseball, the great national game, must abound in action to hold the interest of the spectators. Let a theatrical manager stage a play; the demand is for action. The public demanded action in pictures and the "movies" became standard. The great men of history—Caesar, Napoleon, Gladstone, Washington—were men of quick, decisive action.

The world loves and honors men and women of action.

All plant life depends on action for existence. Plants, big and little, must be warmed by the sun, cooled by the dew and rain, nourished by the soil, otherwise they wither and die. And there is action in dying.

Action is the very life of agriculture and commerce. The soil must be prepared; seed must be sown; frequent tilling is necessary; a lapse for active maturity, and then the harvest. Commerce enters, in the shape of buyers of the crops and steam engines to move them.

The L. & N. has kept pace with the active and yet more active spirit of the age. Its engines are ever in action throughout the territory traversed by its lines. Its agents and other employees are ever in action, night and day seeking to supply the public demand for satisfactory service. Its agricultural experts are moving from place to place, giving advice here, practical demonstrations there, helpful always—and ever in action.

The L. & N. has tried to appeal to the imagination of men; to stir brains into action. Intelligent activity is an irresistible force for the constructive development of any community. Let men conceive ideas, dream practical dreams, and then put them into action.

The world will progress in industry, commerce, education and social enjoyment.

The L. & N. offers its service as a co-operative force in the active upbuilding of the territory. It wants to work with and for the people, and asks that the people reciprocate the cordial good will in the interest of the general public good.

You, the people, may call on any of the L. & N. officials or employees at any time, and if your call is in the interest of what is good for the territory you will find a quick, active response.

NEW YEARS IN MANY LANDS

NEW YEAR'S GREETING IN JAPAN

BULGARIAN WOMAN IN HOLIDAY ATTIRE

ITALIAN FAMILY TAKING NEW YEAR'S OUTING

GERMAN STUDENTS CELEBRATING NEW YEAR'S

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS CELEBRATING NEW YEAR'S

NOWHERE does New Year's ceremony mean more than in the land of the little people whose faces have become familiar to us on paper fans. Indeed, from a national point of view, this season is the greatest occasion of the year.

Elaborate preparations are made long in advance. Houses are cleaned inside and out. Doorways are decorated with rice ropes and fern leaves and evergreen. Every housewife buys a pot or two of "prosperous age plant," a miniature pine tree, some bamboo, and some plum twigs, to win for her home by ornaments like these the favor of the jealous deities that guard the future.

The city streets resound with the mallet blows of the dough pounders making "mochi," the Japanese equivalent of plum pudding. All debts are paid. New clothes are bought. There are toys for the children, and picture cards that bring good fortune and are good to dream on when tied securely to the wooden pillow.

O, happy New Year! Day will hardly dawn before each town and village will be stirring. There is so much to do in celebration. First there will come the ceremonial breakfast, when the health of all the family must be drunk in that rice wine called "zoni." Then visits must be paid to all acquaintance. Father will wear no more the traditional costume, fantastic and peculiar. For him the frock coat now, of European manufacture. But mother, in her quaint kimono and elaborate headdress, will look just as she has looked on New Year's day since time immemorial.

The children will be decked out in gorgeous colors; they will throng the streets, clattering along on their wooden clogs in pigeon toed but joyful haste, and shouting "Banzai!" to friends and foreigners. In the streets clowns will perform strange antics, exclaiming loudly meanwhile:

"Hail, hail, ye gods of heaven and earth! Significant omens are in the air, and the universe is full of lucky signs."

To accompaniment of flute and drum, two-legged lions will give the "lions' dance" in masque. Strange masqueraders will dart hither and thither through streets and temple gardens.

It will be a happy time for Japanese children. For three glad days every little girl will expect to play her favorite game of shuttlecock and battledore. The boys will fly their brand new kites. The children will play games with brightly colored balls, chanting countless rhymes. Grown people will play New Year's card games. The firemen will give acrobatic exhibitions on their ladders. Every nook and corner of Japan will be in gala dress and gala mood.

Northern France is not far behind Japan in appreciation of the significance of the New Year. There Christmas, so important on our calendar, is scarcely celebrated, except by attendance at midnight mass and by a festal supper. But the last night of the year, the "Vigil of St. Silvestre," calls for observance, and the first day of the new year, "le jour de l'an," or "le jour d'etrene," is dedicated to the renewal of friendship and to general gift giving.

So universal, in fact, has the custom become of giving presents and pretty little souvenirs that the expression "bonne etrene" means good fortune and "mal etrenne" misfortune. Candy and flowers are acceptable gifts in France, but there is only one real rule in the matter—a New Year's gift must not be useful.

In most Scotch households, as in France, New Year's day takes the place of Christmas, an evidence of ancient sympathy when both countries regarded England as a mutual enemy. On the last night of the year, in rural district, groups of men and boys go disguished from house to house singing curious songs, such as this:

Rise up, good wife, and shak' yer feathere.
Dinna think that we are beggars;
We are bairnies come to play;
Rise up and give us hogmanay.

When they have received the cakes and coins they expect they go on to the next place, first, however, having chalked the house, in token of good luck. Next morning all the children get up early and view with wide and interested eyes the blue and white marks that decorate every dwelling in the village.

Scotland is, as well, the land of cakes, and at this season the bakers' shops are filled with toothsome dainties, sugar covered and mottoed in ice.

Germany observes various customs. Calls are made on January 1, and gifts are exchanged; delicious little cakes are eaten in honor of the festal day. Different neighborhoods have characteristic rites and superstitions.

Thus, in the Black Forest a workman likes to work a little bit at his trade the first day of the year, to coax luck in business; most picturesque is the vender of clocks, who sets out to sell one at least of his wares. Munich drinks deep to the health of the season in good Bavarian brew.

Jena, whose people recognize descent from those ancient Germans who believed in god that brought light and warmth each year into the world to overcome the cold and dark of winter, builds in its public square at New Year's time a great bonfire, which typifies this ever new gift of the genial old deity that loved warmth and gave light.

Thither at midnight the people carry the things they wish to cast out of their lives with the old year.

Fire as a New Year's symbol is favored in Wales, as well. There fires are burned on New Year's day to purify the house for the entrance of a new and gladsome era; and the ashes are kept sacredly from year to year, esteemed for special medicinal virtues.

The ringing of bells to announce the death of the old year and the birth of the new one is common in England and Scotland and in some parts of the United States. In many English churches impressive midnight services are held.

In the dales of Westmoreland it is usual to open the west door to let the old year out and to open the east door to let the new year in.

In England it is still an enjoyable practice to offer a mince pie to every caller during the last week of the old year, for every pie eaten under a different roof represents a happy month during the year to come. Often as January 1 draws near one hears the expression:

"Thanks, I have eaten my twelve, so please excuse me."

What probably is the strangest New Year's rite is held in the Cevennes mountains, in southern France. At the last evening mass of the old year the herds and flocks of the peasantry are gathered before the portico of the little stone church high up on the mountain side and are blessed by the priest and sprinkled with holy water by the acolyte who follows him, in order that that this, the sole wealth of the countryside, may increase and prosper during the year to come.

The sight of the holy hour is wonderful. As the church bell tolls above them the frightened animals bleat and bellow and try madly to escape. First the oxen are blessed, then the cows, next the sheep and lambs, and finally the goats and pigs.

Throughout Europe many delightful customs prevail. In Scandinavia a feast is always prepared for the little birds, which might otherwise go hungry, on account of the deep snows.

In Holland, as in Scotland, the wind is noted with care, because the luck of the year will be determined by the direction whence it blows. The south wind brings heat and fertility, the west wind milk and fish, the north wind cold and storm, and east wind a fruitful season.

In Italy the New Year is a day of greeting and good will and special feasting. Sicilian peasants take advantage of the fete to drive to town in their gay carts, so that the country roads are merry with the music of tinkling bells.

And Swiss folk, practical, industrious, stop their work for the nonce and visit friends, even when they have to carry their babies down the mountain slopes in cradles on their heads.

Bulgaria's heart history is of especial moment just now. On happy New Year's day in Bulgarian villages the small boys run from house to house waving branches of the cornel tree and shouting greetings as they tap all they meet with the luck bringing branches.

Bulgarian girls go through an interesting ceremony in an effort to pry into the secrets of the days to come. On New Year's eve a queen, chosen by lot, guards a kettle full of water, in which both men and maidens have dropped finger rings or some personal trinkets. Till dawn she watches.

Then to an open place in the center of the village she takes the precious kettle, covered with a cloth, a dancing, singing crowd following her. An oracle, who has been selected for eloquence of speech, proclaims successive fortunes. He cries:

"The lucky girl whose ring shall appear shall marry the best man in the village."

The queen of the festival dips her hand into the kettle and brings forth a ring, and its owner receives it from her secure in the belief that good luck betides her matrimonially before another New Year.

GETTING BACK.

"Why do you insist on trying to sell me beefsteak and beans and buckwheat cakes?" demanded the barber. "I told you all I wanted was two fried eggs."

"Well, I was in your shop yesterday," retorted the restaurant man. "All I wanted was a shave, but you bulldozed me into a shampoo, a foam fizz, and a tonic rub."

A SAD AWAKENING.

"Warden, where are my flowers? Give me those flowers."

"Those flowers are for an embezzler in the next cell."

"Flowers for an embezzler, with a murderer in the same jail? A life of crime is not what I was led to expect."

NOT DIFFICULT.

"I wish I could do something startling," said Gladys Gloom, sick unto death with ennui.

"Well, Gladys, that is easily accomplished," said her close friend, Dain Blaine. "Go back to that little old-fashioned town where you were born and famous for climbing on the 'public square.'"

Testimonial From High Authority

New Betty Lyler Wilson (of Nashville, Tenn.)

Famous For Her Cakes Recommends

Mrs. Wilson of Nashville, Tenn., is famed the world over for her wonderfully delicious cakes. They are shipped to all parts of the Globe for special affairs where the best of Cakes are demanded.

This year, as in former years, Mrs. Wilson enjoys the distinction of making the President's Christmas Cake, using Calumet Baking Powder.

Mrs. Wilson's Baking Motto is:
"To have complete success with no failures, care should be used in selection of Baking Powder."

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

Some little time ago I made a careful study and investigation of the baking powder subject and I feel fully repaid. I am firmly convinced from the results I have received that there is no baking powder to equal Calumet for wholesomeness and economy, and I also recommend Calumet Baking Powder for its never failing results.
December 9, 1913. Mrs. Betty Lyler Wilson.

Calumet also received the Highest Awards at the World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago and Paris, France, 1912.

Buy a can of Calumet Baking Powder at once, and use it in your Holiday Bakings, making your Christmas Cakes as good as the President's.

WOULD HAVE THEM HANDY

Married Man's Explanation of Large Order Will Be Understood by Many Similar Unfortunates.

A brisk individual with the accumulated look of 20 winters of married life entered a hardware shop and without waiting for preliminaries asked:

"Do you keep hammers here?"

"That is our specialty, sir."

"Put me down for a dozen. How about screwdrivers?"

"Our great feature. Patent reversible or plain edge?"

"Give me a dozen of each; if you have any other varieties I'll take 'em, too. How about gimlets?"

"You are now mentioning our pet product. All styles."

"Give me all styles—long, short, medium, thick, thin, from the size of a needle to a pickax. Saws?"

"Of every description."

"I'll take 'em—say half a dozen or so—cross-cut, plain, round and square."

"It's down, sir. Can I interest you in nails?"

"You can indeed. I'll take some of all that you have, put up in separate packages; also tacks, brads, screws, rivets, staples—everything. And I want hooks, every hook you have, big and little. Also—"

The clerk leaned forward.

"Pardon me, sir," he said. "You seem like a sensible person. Unless you are opening up a business, I am at a loss to understand your requirements."

"It is perfectly simple, sir," said the brisk person. "I have been married for 21 years, and not once since the ceremony have I been able to locate a single implement when I wanted to put up a calendar or do any other necessary thing about the house, and the next time there is need of anything done I am going, so far as human foresight can provide for it, to have the means instantly to put my impulse into play."—Life.

Of Contradictory Weight.

"What does you understan' by 'circumstantial evidence?'" asked Miss Miami Brown.

"As near as I kin splain it, f'um de way it has been splained to me," answered Erasmus Pinkley, "circumstantial evidence is de feathers dat you leaves lyin' round after you has done et de chicken."

Slow to Realize.

"My dear," said Mr. Bickers to his wife, "I saw in the papers today a decision of a Virginia court that the wife may, in some cases, be the head of the family."

"John Henry," replied Mrs. Bickers, "the courts are sometimes very slow in finding out things!"—Puck.

Plain Prophecy.

"What did the doctor tell you today about old Uncle Jake's condition?"

"He was telling us that his mean temperature was—"

"Telling you about his mean temperature, was he? That's no news. Everybody who knows Uncle Jake knows that he hasn't anything about him that isn't mean."

He Got It.

"The doctor told Hobbs that he must take longer rest, so he bought himself a racing automobile."

"Did that bring him rest?"

"Oh, yes. He's in a nice, quiet hospital for three months now."

Modifications.

"Your speeches indicate that your views have changed."

"Not exactly. My constituents' views have changed, and I am keeping in touch with the wisdom of the plain people."

Bad Form to Be Amazing.

There are no posers on the grand scale now. Our musicians have short hair and play golf. Authors cannot be distinguished from ordinary men. Art students are abandoning their amazing clothes. Even poets have given up poetical locks, and instead of writing pretty fancies worry us with poems of the outspoken natural school. Music is in tweeds, literature is in navy blue, and poetry is in a bowler hat. Apparently there is no chance of any return of affectation. The world becomes more natural every day, and every hour some neglected pose dies a natural death. There are no startling and picturesque figures. The glittering Whistler was the last of the artistic masters to pose, the last man willing to spend an hour before a looking-glass, the last man—to use his own word—who could be called "amazing." For now it is bad form to be amazing, and every one is expected to be as insignificant as possible. The only affectation left is the affectation of being natural. And there could not be a duller one.

Posts, Up or Down?

The agricultural experiment station of Ohio has been making some tests as to which end of a post should be set in the ground. Farmers generally believe in planting it with the butt or root end upward, on the principle that, as it is easier for the sap to run up the tree than down it, setting the post upside down tends to prevent the rise of water and helps to keep the wood dry.

The Ohio officials planted 156 black locust posts 20 years ago. One-third of those set top down have rotted off and only a little more than one-sixth of those set top up have met a similar fate. They reach the conclusion that there is no difference which end is put into the ground, except that the sounder or longer end should have the preference.

Sensible Realization.

Quinn—Where is the young poet these days?

De Fonte—Doing well. Always has a dollar and wears a new suit. He's realized something.

Quinn—Sold some of his poems, eh?

DeFonte—No, realized that he is not a poet and got a job as bookkeeper.

Recreant Auditor.

"You went to sleep during your wife's speech."

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "Henrietta has been rehearsing that speech for a week. I told her I had better not come here. I knew something like this would happen if she couldn't shout 'Are you listening, Leonidas?' every now and then."

Cranky Speeders.

Tjark—Ever notice these motorists winding up their machines in front? Every auto must carry a crank.

Bjenks—Yes, from the way some motorists yell at pedestrians some autos must carry two or three cranks.

A Marvelous Linguist.

"Dobbs will never let himself be downed by anything."

"For instance?"

"He was reading a newspaper out loud the other day and when he came to a pied line he translated it without a moment's hesitation."

Uncomplimentary.

Hicks—Your wife has no sense of humor.

Wicks—You never saw her. How do you know?

Hicks—She married you.

FOR OWNERSHIP OF WIRE LINES

POSTMASTER GENERAL BURLESON FAVORS ACQUISITION BY GOVERNMENT.

SERVICE SELF SUPPORTING

Declares Postal Service Will Be Conducted for Efficiency Rather Than Profit.

Washington.—A sweeping declaration in favor of the principle of government ownership of telephone and telegraph lines and an assertion that the postal service now is self-supporting for the first time since 1883, are features of the annual report of Postmaster General Burleson, transmitted to congress.

Concerning the acquisition of telephone and telegraph lines, Postmaster General Burleson says that the government has demonstrated its capacity to conduct public utilities, and, from his present information, he is inclined clearly to the taking over by the postoffice department of the telegraph lines and, possibly, also, of the telephone lines. Discussing that the postmaster general says:

"A study of the constitutional purposes of the postal establishment leads to the conviction that the postoffice department should have control over all means of the communication of intelligence. The first telegraph line in this country was maintained and operated as a part of the postal service, and it is to be regretted that congress saw fit to relinquish this facility to private enterprise.

"The monopolistic nature of the telegraph business makes it of vital importance to the people that it be conducted by unselfish interests, and this can be accomplished only through government ownership.

"The act of July 24, 1866, providing for the government acquisition of the telegraph lines upon payment of an appraised valuation and the act of 1902 directing the postmaster general 'to report to congress the probable cost of connecting a telegraph and telephone system with the postal service by some feasible plan,' are evidences of the policy of this government ultimately to acquire and operate these electrical means of communication as postal facilities, as is done by all the principal nations, the United States alone excepted.

"The successful operation of the parcel post has demonstrated the capacity of the government to conduct the public utilities which fall properly within the postal provision of the Constitution."

DANIELS FOR "HYSTERICS"

He Says So-Called Hysteria Is the Real Democracy.

New York.—"Reactionaries who think to weaken the advocacy of Progressive measures by declaring that they are the products of 'hysteria,'" were roundly denounced here by Secretary Daniels of the navy in an address at the dinner of the North Carolina Society of New York.

"A few days ago," Mr. Daniels said, "a distinguished educator from a Southern state in a speech in New York, declared that such new and progressive measures as the initiative and referendum were 'revolutionary.' Another distinguished authority, a statesman and an educator, referred to certain modern American political doctrines as 'wild theories' which common sense and wise experience demand be rejected 'as the result of hysteria.'

"The real trouble is that this so-called 'hysteria' hurts. It keeps party pledges, it does not take from labor the bread it earns, it makes protection-built wealth pay income tax. It elects senators direct from the people."

Parcel Boast Record Broken.

Chicago.—Since the Christmas rush of business began here a new record has been established in the Chicago postoffice by theh andling of an average of 215 tons of parcel post matter a day. Another local record was established the first ten days of December when $1,000,000 worth of stamps were sold.

Lived in One Spot 100 Years.

Statesboro, Ga.—Prigen Beasley, one of the oldest men in Georgia, was buried near his home in this county. Mr. Beasley was born in Bulloch county and lived in the same spot for over a hundred years. He was born in a leap year, on February 29, and though he has seen 100 summers, he has had but twenty-five actual birthdays, this date falling every four years. On his one hundred anniversary he was given a celebration which was attended by 1,500 people. He was at that time in the best of health.

Thirty Sailors Saved.

San Francisco.—Given up for lost, the crew of the dismasted and abandoned steel ship Dalgonar, owned in London, are on their way to Dover aboard the French ship Loire, which picked them up October 9, a thousand miles off the coast of Chile. Capt. J. Ibester and three of his men are dead. First word of the loss of the Dalgonar, which carried a crew of about thirty, reached here on December 16, when the French bark Marie Antoinette, Captain Morisot of the rescuing ship, arrived.

CURRENCY REFORM BILL IS PASSED

MEASURE FRAMED BY DEMOCRATIC SENATE CAUCUS ADOPTED.

CARRIED BY VOTE OF 54 TO 34

Bill Will Be Completed by Conference Committee and Will Be Ready for President to Sign.

Washington.—The administration currency reform bill, proposing a revision of the financial system of the United States and the creation of regional reserve banks to act as stabilizing elements in the banking and financial world, passed the senate by a vote of 54 to 34.

Forces that had fought together for improvement and amendment of the measure to the last divided when the final vote came. Senator Hitchcock, who had led the opposition to the bill, returned to the Democratic ranks and Senator Weeks, one of the leaders on the Republican side, with five other Republicans, and Senator Poindexter (Progressive voted for the passage of the measure.

Wide differences exist between the form of the legislation passed by the senate and the bill that passed the house several months ago. Democratic leaders already have partly adjusted these differences, however, and it was predicted that the bill would be completed by a conference committee and sent to President Wilson for his signature.

The adoption of the administration bill, known as the "Owen bill," followed upon the formal defeat, by 44 to 41, of the "Hitchcock bill" which had been endorsed by Senator Hitchcock and the five Republican members of the evenly divided senate committee that passed on the legislation. The senate had previously rejected, without a roll call, a "central bank" bill offered as a substitute by Senator Burton.

SUFFRAGISTS IN WRANGLE

Break Threatened by Removal of Officer Who Refused Accounting.

Washington.—A nation-wide break in the ranks of Suffragists is threatened as the result of the action of officers of the National American Woman Suffrage Association in ousting Miss Alice Paul from the chairmanship of the congressional committee of the national association.

This action is said to be virtually a declaraton of war between the national association and the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, which is headed by Miss Paul, and which raised $25,000 last year to carry on lobby work in Washington for the national association.

Officers of the national association demanded that the money raised by Miss Paul as head of the Congressional Union be accounted for to the treasurer of the national association. Miss Paul's refusal caused the national officers to remove her as chairman of the national association's congressional committee.

As a result of the internal strife, Miss Paul collapsed from a nervous breakdown in Washington while delivering a suffrage speech, and is now confined to her home in Morristown, N. J. Her removal from office while too ill to journey to New York City to defend herself has created indignation in the ranks of the Congressional Union.

Officer Imprisoned for Zabern Affair.

Strassburg, Germany.—A sentence of forty-three days' imprisonment was pronounced by a courtmartial on Lieut. Baron Von Forstner of the Ninety-ninth infantry. The courtmartial was opened on Lieutenant Forstner for cutting down with his saber a lame shoemaker in Zabern, Alsace, on December 2. The charge brought against him was: "Willful assault and causing great bodily harm by the illegal use of a weapon." Lieut. Von Forstner was the officer who brought about the recent troubles between the military and civilian population of Zabern.

Famous First Bale Negro Dead.

Albany, Ga.—Deal L. Johnson, known throughout the South as the "first bale man of Georgia," and one of the most prominent negroes in this section of Georgia, died in Albany as he was being hurried to a hospital. Jackson was one of the most interesting men in this part of the state, and though he refused to take active part in politics, was an acknowledged leader of his race. His big plantation in the western part of Dougherty county is one of the best in southwest Georgia.

Church Installs Barber Shop.

New York.—A special barber is the latest innovation in church life. St. George's Episcopal church, which the late Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan endowed with half a million dollars, has installed a barber shop for the clergy. The Rev. Karl Reiland, rector, in announcing the new venture said, "For the sake of uniformity in the appearance of our clergy here and at allied [illegible]."

NOT HARD TO SATISFY HIM

Many Will See a Peculiar Reason for Seemingly Modest Request Made by the Jew.

A P. M. G. reader sends us the following little story—certainly one of the best of its kind:

To the great god Buddha came the representatives of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish religions, to pay him homage. Buddha, very flattered, told each of them that if they would express a wish, it would be fulfilled.

"What do you wish?" he asked the Catholic.

"The answer was "Glory."

"You shall have it," said Buddha, and turning to the Protestant, "What do you wish?"

"Money."

"You shall have it."

"And you?" This to the Jew.

"I do not want much," quoth he; "give me the Protestant's address!"—Pall Mall Gazette.

THE RIGHT SOAP FOR BABY'S SKIN

In the care of baby's skin and hair, Cuticura Soap is the mother's favorite. Not only is it unrivaled in purity and refreshing fragrance, but its gentle emollient properties are usually sufficient to allay minor irritations, remove redness, roughness and chafing, soothe sensitive conditions, and promote skin and hair health generally. Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, it is most valuable in the treatment of eczemas, rashes and itching, burning infantile eruptions. Cuticura Soap wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of ordinary soap and making its use most economical.

HAD "THE GOODS" ON GERALD

Little Sister, After the Manner of Her Sex, Was an Eager Witness Against Small Brother.

Geraldine was a moaning patient, and her twin brother, as physician-in-chief, was dosing her, to their supreme delight, when their mother chanced to observe them. Being a Christian Scientist, she told them that they must not "play sick"—they must play pleasant games.

A few days later Geraldine ran to her mother, shocked and horrified, exclaiming: "Mother, Gerald said an awful bad word!"

The mother turned toward the boy, who had sulkily followed his sister, and who now sturdily declared:

"I didn't!"

"Yes, he did, too," protested the girl, dropping her voice to a sepulchral whisper. "He said 'Doctor.'"

Something to Be Thankful For.

In her dressing room one evening Sarah Bernhardt summoned one of her attendants, and ordered her to bring some peaches from the nearest shop. Either the maid misunderstood the order or she thought, as the saying goes, "That any old fruit would do," for she came back a few minutes later with half a dozen plump, juicy pears in a basket.

At the moment, Bernhardt was declaiming to a friend about the dearth of good new plays, and anybody would have thought she was too absorbed in her lamentations to notice the maid's mistake. She took a pear from the basket slowly and, apparently, unconsciously, and the maid turned to leave the room.

In an unlucky moment the girl paused at the door and looked round. Then, with astonishing swiftness and accuracy of aim, Bernhardt raised her hand and the pear flew through space, smashing itself to a juicy pulp on the girl's face.

"Thank heaven!" was all she said; "thank heaven it wasn't an apple!"

Tea From Coffee Leaves.

Tea, as everybody knows, is made from leaves, while coffee is derived from berries or beans. Just here is where something has been overlooked, in the opinion of a scientific investigator. The leaves of the coffee plant are not only available for making a beverage, but they possess properties which make them more valuable than the coffee beans.

In appearance and fragrance the dried coffee leaves very much resemble those of the tea plant. An infusion of them being made, just as in the case of ordinary tea, an aromatic beverage is produced that is bitter to the taste, but not disagreeably so, and which contains almost as much theine as real tea, while there is a much smaller proportion of tannin.

It may yet be possible to grow tea and coffee on the same plant.

Mean Swindle.

Bishop Blougram, at a tea in Denver, said of the exploitation of "white slavery" by novelists and playwrights: "These weak writers can't even shock us. They have neither the pluck nor the power to shock us. And thus those who read their vapid stories or see their vapid plays are fooled as badly as the 75,000 German schoolgirls.

"In Germany, the other day, a scoundrel inserted an advertisement in all the newspapers of the land—an advertisement of a book entitled 'What Every Young Girl Should Know Before Marriage.' This book would be sent securely sealed in a plain wrapper, on receipt of $1.50. And so forth and so on.

"Wel, 75,000 German girls each sent $1.50 to the advertiser, and guess what they got for their money! They got a cook book."

Forgiven.

The priest had warned Pat a number of times of the probable consequence of his intemperate habits and as many times had secured the Irishman's promise to reform.

Finding Pat drunk one day, the reverend gentleman began his customary rebuke by expressing his sorrow at finding Pat once more in the condition.

"Are you really sorry?" asked Pat.

"To be sure I am," responded the priest.

"Well, then," replied Pat, "if you're sure you're sorry, then I'll forgive you."

The Irishman in France had been challenged to a duel. "Shure," he cried, "we'll fight wid shillalahs."

"That won't do," said his second. "As the challenged party you have the right to choose the arms, but chivalry demands that you should decide upon a weapon with which Frenchmen are familiar."

"Is that so, indade?" returned the generous Irishman. "Then we'll foight it out wid guillotines."

Upper Cut.

Mrs. French Vanderbilt, at a luncheon at Harbourviewe, her beautiful Newport villa, said of the nouveaux riches of Gotham:

"These people form, undoubtedly, a very splendid and ornate society—but it is a social upper crust based exclusively, as it were, on the financial dough beneath."

WILL WOMAN BE SUPREME?

Prophets Declare That Men Are Destroying themselves by Many Bad Habits.

It is becoming fashionable to wail about the physical shortcomings of modern men, and to predict that in the near future women will surpass their brothers in bodily strength. Sometimes this prophecy is based on evolution. More often the prophets declare that men are destroying themselves by bad habits, and that women, who lead more cleanly lives, will inherit the strength of the earth.

Such predictions are nonsense, of course. But they have this much of foundation, that the habits of men and boys are less conducive to health and strength than those of women and girls. Smoking during the period of growth is bad for persons of either sex; but in this country, at least, few girls in their teens have anything to do with tobacco. Liquor drinking at the same period tends to stunt growth, and more boys drink than girls.

The practical result of these prophecies of woe will be to spread good physical habits, without relation to sex. In spite of their long residence side by side, men and women still have something to learn from each other.

Women began their learning first. They have opened windows, claimed their share of fresh air, and taken part in athletics. If men are now moved to turn to cold baths for stimulants and exercise, at least until the period of growth is finished, the race will be gainer.

Avoiding the Issue.

Gloom in the law office of Platt & Jones was thick enough to cut. Clients were unknown, and neither of the partners had any ready money. Nevertheless, at the close of day, Jones, who was young and audacious, approached the senior member of the firm, who was working out an imaginary case.

"I say," he began, nervily, "lend me five for a week, old man."

The other shook his head, without looking up. "I might do it for a week old woman," he said, "but not for a week old man."—Youth's Companion.

Knew His Business.

Dick and Jimmy were visiting their grandmother, who spoils them, as all grandmothers will. One night they were saying their prayers, and little Jimmy vociferated his petitions to the heavenly throne in a voice that could be heard a mile away. He was telling the divine Providence what he wanted for Christmas, and this enthusiasm in the cause got on his brother's nerves. "What are you praying for Christmas presents so loud for?" interrupted Dick. "Th' Lord ain't deaf." "No," whispered Jimmy, "but grandma is."

Greek Rulers.

Greece has not trusted her rulers well since she threw off the yoke of the sultan ninety years ago. At the outset she tried a president, Capodistria, who was soon assassinated; then Otho of Vavaria was chosen king, but after a stormy reign was forced to abdicate. After that the crown went begging for a while. The duke of Edinburgh and the earl of Derby both refused it, and it was rumored that Mr. Gladstone would have had it by the hiring of an agent.

Was He Sensible.

"My husband is very sympathetic."

"Never brings unexpected guests home to dinner?"

"Yes; sometimes he does; but he is always before doing it, points to leftover entrees and a can of corn and says:"

Naturally So.

"I have asked all the guests who dare not leave a dollar bill."

"The hall is empty."

"Yes, all but one."

HIGH SCHOOL AGAIN

The State Superintendent of Education, Mr. Wm. F. Feagan, writes to Prof. J. J. Pickens under date of Dec. 24th, that the State High School Commission, consisting of the Governor, the State Superintendent and State Auditor, are ready to visit Chilton county at any time the Governor may name, for the purpose of deciding upon the location of the County High School. He says: "I should like very much for Chilton county to have a high school for the year beginning July 1st, 1914. I wish you to inform me how many other places in Chilton county desire the high school."

If the school is to open in July, work on the building should begin in January, and the question of location should be settled at once.

The New Haven Railroad Company, and some other trusts now under prosecution, are about to follow the example of the telephone trust, and surrender to our trust-busting Woody by a voluntary dissolution.

From north to south, from east to west, banks and big business everywhere unite in proclaiming that the currency bill abolishes panics.

We offer The Progressive Farmer for six months and Clanton Press one year for $1.25. We also offer Collier's Weekly and Clanton Press both for one year at $2 50, the price of Collier's alone.

The funds raised by the Clanton Press gave each of the paupers, some goodies and one dollar in cash.

Notice.

All persons indebted to me for professional services are requested to call at the Upchurch Drug Co. and make settlement. Dr. Upchurch is authorized to receipt all accounts. Early settlements will be appreciated.
